CATALAN LINES BREAK; REBELS DRIVE FOR SEA

Near Aim of Cutting Spain in Two.

HENDAYE, France [at the Spanish Frontier], April 2.—(AP)—Capture of the strategic city of Gandesa by the Spanish rebels today capped the drive in eastern Spain which has added an estimated 2,600 square miles to their conquests in a week.

The fall of Gandesa placed the onrushing rebels within twenty-one miles of the Mediterranean, their objective in the offensive to split in two the territory controled by the government.

The official rebel announcement of the city's fall said 2,000 prisoners were taken and that other government troops were surrendering.

Six Miles of Mountains Ahead.

Only six miles of mountains that make up the Sierra de Pandos southeast of Gandesa separated its Navarrese captors from the wide valley of the Ebro river, which forms a natural highway to Tortosa and the sea.

The advance was described by some military observers as one of the most important of the civil war, now in its 21st month.

Dispatches from Madrid and Barcelona tonight admitted that rebel troops had fought their way into Lerida, forty-two miles north of Gandesa, after a heavy battle on the outskirts of the city. Street fighting was reported in progress in Lerida, which is the "gateway" to Barcelona, eighty miles away.

At the northern end of the rebel front, Benabarre, important road center, also fell to Gen. Francisco Franco's Fascist forces.

Rebels Hold 125 Mile Line.

The rebel line extends more than 125 miles from Benabarre down into the Catalonian provinces of Lerida and Tarragona and south almost to Morella, in Castellon province.

With the sweep eastward gaining momentum, French officials in Paris made preparations for quick evacuation of French citizens from Barcelona, the Spanish government's provisional capital.

At no point on the fifty mile rebel front in the southern sector of eastern Spain were Franco's troops more than thirty-seven miles from the sea.

Gen. Miguel Aranda's soldiers were approaching Morella, southwest of Gandesa, where there is a route through the mountains leading to the Mediterranean by way of San Mateo and Vinaroz.

Seek Junction at Tortosa.

Between this force and Gandesa legionnaires pushed beyond Valderrobres, apparently in an effort to effect a junction at Tortosa itself with the Navarrese, who will seek to drive down to that port from Gandesa. The way was not so easy for these legionnaires, however, since the path lies over the rugged Sierra de Montenegrelo.

Gen. José Miaja today went to the newly active Guadalajara battlefront, seventy-five miles northeast of Madrid, to direct government operations there. Semi-official reports said the Guadalajara campaign continued favorable to the government. The fighting is near the scene of the great government counteroffensive in March last year when a powerful Italian army was routed.

Dispatches from Madrid said the loyalist offensive had netted an advance of about ten miles. Two villages and four mountain slopes were reported taken in the offensive.

Rebels Bomb Railway.

CERBERE, France, April 2.—(AP)—Rebel bombing planes rained explosives on the railway line between the French frontier and Portbou, Spain, tonight just a few hours before four trainloads of refugee Spanish government militiamen arrived at the border en route to Spain.

More than 4,000 of the Spanish government's fighting men who fled across the Pyrenees into France rather than surrender to the rebels came to Cerbere from Bagneres de Luchon after a secret vote on whether they wished to return to government or rebel Spain.

A thousand additional soldier refugees were left at Bagneres de Luchon. Some of them will follow tomorrow.

In compliance with preferences expressed in the secret balloting, 185 of the refugees made ready to go to Gen. Franco's territory in rebel Spain. The balloting was conducted by French officers.

HORAN'S OUSTER OF 30 DEPUTIES STARTS BATTLE

Bailif Defies Judges' Rehiring Order.

A political battle of import between judges of the Municipal court, headed by Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby, and Albert J. Horan, court bailif, was in progress last night after the judges had ordered Horan to reinstate thirty deputy bailifs whom he discharged last month, allegedly because of political connections.

Horan is one of the chief supporters of the Horner-Lucas-Jarecki faction in the Democratic primary fight. The thirty deputies all are regular organization supporters, most of them precinct captains of the Kelly-Nash wing of the party.

These thirty, and one other who did not carry his fight to the judges, were fired last month in what Horan said was an economy measure. They petitioned for reinstatement by the judges, who have the power under the statutes, by majority vote, to discharge or reinstate any bailif.

Judges' Vote Is 30 to 1.

Yesterday thirty-one of the thirty-six judges, in a closed meeting in the city hall, voted 30 to 1 to put the deputies back on the rolls. Judge Charles S. Dougherty, a Horner supporter, was the only judge voting against the order.

After the vote a general restoration order was drawn up and signed by the chief justice. It held there was no legal cause for removal of the deputies. They were instructed to report at 9 a. m. Monday, and if there is any trouble about it to "come upstairs and see us." Pay for the entire month of March was ordered given to each.

Horan Says He Won't Comply.

The judges' action brought an immediate outburst from Horan. Last night he declared:

"The associate judges of the Municipal court have made good on the Kelly-Nash dictum, 'We've got the judges!' I shall refuse to comply with the order. Those employés were dismissed for the sake of economy necessitated by a reduction in the business in my office. If I deem it necessary for the purpose of economy, I shall not hesitate to reduce further the personnel of my staf."

This raised the question of what is likely to be the situation when two sets of deputy bailifs report for work tomorrow. Horan, according to reports, has nired twenty-four deputies to replace those fired. [There are 330 all told on the Municipal court pay roll.]

Judge Sonsteby directed yesterday that Horan produce a list early tomorrow of any bailifs appointed since the mass firings, but Horan was not expected to comply with the request.

Ousted Deputies Testify.

Early in yesterday's meeting, George Pigott, Horan's secretary, appeared with a list of the bailifs discharged and a terse message from Horan in which he said they were fired "for efficiency and economy."

Then the judges called on the deputies. One by one, they filed in. Some had records of thirty-five years' service. Here are statements made under oath by some of them:

JOHN BARTZ, 49th ward: "I was called in by Tom Loftis, one of Horan's assistants, and told to go along with the Horner organization if I wanted to keep my job. I said I couldn't do that. That was at 3 o'clock in the afternoon a week ago Friday. At 6 o'clock that night I got a registered letter from Horan's office. I was fired."

LUCIUS BARNETT, 44th ward: "Six weeks ago, Horan told me to join up with the Horner organization in my ward. One of the Horner men told me that if I would come over to their headquarters and help them, I'd get a $400 a month state job. A couple of days later, Al Horan called me in and told me, 'Any man that does not deliver for me is going to be fired.' I picked up my hat and reported to my own ward committeeman."

WALTER J. BIALZAK, 35th ward:

Mystery Hides Cause of Elgin Patient's Death

Where Ray Gordon Emery, who died Friday at the Elgin State hospital for the insane, received bruises and fractures which contributed to or caused his death, was as much a mystery last night as it had been yesterday morning before the inquest in Elgin. The injuries apparently resulted from a beating.

Although physicians and specialists attached to the hospital testified at the inquest that Emery received his injuries before he was admitted to Elgin, there was evidence that on March 26, the day after he was admitted, no fractures had been observed by hospital authorities.

Retires a Year Ago.

Emery, who lived at 4744 Washington boulevard, retired as an executive of A. G. Spalding & Bros. about a year ago. His mental condition became progressively worse, and on March 21 he was placed in the Psychopatihic hospital by Mrs. Emery.

Dr. Francis J. Gerty, superintendent of the Psychopathic hospital, said last night that Emery was struck on the nose by another patient soon after he was admitted. Dr. Gerty said there was no fracture of the patient's nose and added that the injury was slight.

On March 24 Emery appeared in the County court of Judge Edmund K. Jarecki and was committed to the Elgin hospital. Mrs. Emery was in court and saw her husband, stripped to the waist. At the inquest yesterday she said he had only one small bruise on the upper part of his body at that time. He was taken to Elgin the next day.

Refused Admittance.

On March 26, Mrs. Emery testified, she went to Elgin and was refused admittance. On March 28 she received a letter from Dr. Charles F. Read, managing officer of the asylum, which said her husband had received a number of body bruises. On March 29 she was notified by the hospital that her husband was seriously ill of pneumonia.

When she went to see him, she said, he not only had pneumonia, but his nose had been broken, and he was black and blue over most of his body above the waist.

The inquest was conducted by Coroner L. Victor Peterson. In attendance and assisting in the questioning was A. L. Bowen, director of the state department of public welfare.

Seven doctors and hospital officials testified as to Emery's condition at various times. Dr. Eric Liebert, pathologist, who performed the autopsy at the demand of Mrs. Emery, said Emery's nose was broken, that two ribs were fractured, and that there were multiple bruises and contusions. He said the fractures were from five to twenty days old.

The jury's verdict was that Emery came to his death from exhaustion due to mental ills, and that his broken nose, broken ribs, and pneumonia were contributory causes.

Records at the Psychopathic hospital show that Emery walked out the morning he was taken to Elgin "whole and sound," Dr. Gerty said last night.

LOSERS OF PRIMARY ELECTION SHOOTING MATCH TO EAT CROW

Izaak Walton leaguers of Lake county started yesterday on a drive against crows that will last until June 15. W. I. Lyon of Waukegan, president of the group and an ornithologist, said that while crows are of some use they eat a lot of eggs of other birds and beside there are too many in Lake county.

To make it more interesting twenty-five crows have been banded with the names of primary election aspirants and released. The team that shoots down the most of the banded birds receive prizes and a dinner at which the losers will eat, literally, crow.

No holds are barred. The nimrods can shoot sitting or flying, and the gauge of the shotguns can be anything that's legal.

State Tests Show Reduced Speed Will Cut Gas Bills

Springfield, Ill., April 2.—(AP)—The state highway division informed motorists today how much their gasoline bills can be cut by reducing driving speed. Experimenting with four makes of low priced automobiles, state engineers determined that a car will travel 26 miles to the gallon of gasoline at 25 miles an hour will go only 24 miles at 30, 22.5 at 40, 20 at 50, 18 at 60, 15.5 at 70, and 11.5 at 80.

Hen Lays 213 Eggs in 213 Days for World Record

San Louis Obispo, Cal., April 2.—[Special.]—A white Leghorn hen belonging to the California State Polytechnic school here was registered today as having broken a world mark by laying 213 eggs in as many days. The hen started laying Sept. 1, 1937, and has not missed a day since. The bird is being handled by a second year student at the state school.

750 Ft. Tower Soon to Extend Voice of WGN

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Within a fortnight W-G-N will start erection of its lofty new transmitter tower which will reach skyward 750 feet—130 feet higher than the World's Fair Sky Ride. The tower will be the highest of its type in the United States and it will be the tallest structure in all Chicagoland.

The new radiator is to be constructed on a newly acquired tract 24 miles northwest of the loop on route 53, two miles north of Irving Park boulevard, well off the regular lanes of air trafic. It will be brightly painted and well lighted at night so that it may be readily seen by all flying craft.

The new radiator is expected to increase vastly the signal strength of the 50,000 watt station, thereby improving reception in many areas.

Will Abandon Elgin Site.

A complete new transmitter and transmitter house is also to be built, the whole project to cost in the neighborhood of a quarter of a million dollars. Carl J. Meyers, W-G-N chief engineer, is directing the project. The old transmitter site near Elgin is to be abandoned on completion of the new broadcasting plant.

The new radiator, which has been fabricated by the Truscon Steel company of Youngstown, O., represents the very latest and newest in transmission design.

The entire tower, with a weight of more than 130,000 pounds in the main mast, is to be delicately supported on a single pivotal base of porcelain, a scant six inches in diameter. From this "pin-point" base the shaft spreads out to an equilateral triangle—10 feet to a side—and rises in this shape to the top. It is supported by sets of guy wires attached at 286 feet and again at 562 feet. The guy wires, which also have points of insulation, will be so tightened that they exert a tremendous downpull on the base insulator—which it is estimated will be able to support 1,800,000 pounds, or 900 tons.

Able to Withstand Gales.

The tower, naturally, will sway under the stress of winds. But it will be so constructed that it will withstand gales up to 110 miles an hour, considerably greater than are experienced in the midwest.

This vertical radiator plays the Austrian Nazis Put Torch to 'Tyrant' Prison

VIENNA, April 2.—(AP)—Nazis in a huge demonstration tonight burned down a part of the Wallersdorf concentration camp—a symbol of what they called "Schuschnigg tyranny."

As he spoke, sparks, smoke, and flames billowed hundreds of feet into the sky. Burning of a part of the Wallersdorf camp—where thousands of Nazis had been incarcerated before the fall of Chancelor Kurt Schuschnigg—was reminiscent of the spectacular 1933 reichstag fire or the Nazi book burning in Berlin.

Stolid peasants, some of them women with babies in arms, attended the demonstration. Several hundred of the 8,000 who at one time or another were imprisoned in the camp were honored guests.

152 Buildings in Camp.

The display began at 8:30 p. m., when ten men who had served the longest time in Wallersdorf for illegal Nazi activities, ignited a gasoline soaked structure. It was one of the 152 buildings that once constituted a famous munitions plant and were later deserted until the Austrian government started using them as prisons for agitators.

Prespiring profusely in the terrific heat, Buerckel said in a brief, emphatic speech:

"We stand in a historic spot which characterized the message of one group of usurpers who, through terroristic means, held a people in subjection and who wanted to prevent anschluss [union of Austria and Germany].

"But we attempt no act of revenge against those who merited the death sentence many times over but whom Der Fuehrer graciously has granted the permission to live."

Crowd Sings Nazi Song.

Barbed wire entanglements about the whole area gleamed in the firelight.

The roar of the fire drowned out Buerckel's closing words. When the flames died down the crowd burst into "Deutschland Uber Alles," and the Nazi "Horst Wessel" song.

In place of the ruined building will soon arise a monument to the unsuccessful Nazi attempt to seize power in Austria in 1934.

Girl Who Shakes a Pretty Leg Earns the Big Money!

Atlantic City, N. J., April 2.—[U. P.]—Bankers and brokers no longer are the big spenders, hotel men were told at their convention today. Sloan and Owen D. Young combined."

REVOLT FORCES CONCESSIONS BY ADMINISTRATION

But Fight on Bill Will Continue.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 2.—[Special.]—Members of the house of representatives went to their homes in perplexity tonight over the day's developments in their consideration of the government reorganization bill sponsored by the Roosevelt administration.

Earlier in the day they had been moved to a wild demonstration when a Democratic leader announced that congress would be permitted to control any reconstruction of the government decreed by President Roosevelt under the terms of the reorganization measure. Cheers greeted this apparent concession, which was given the indorsement of the President himself after his leaders had consulted him this morning over the long distance telephone to Warm Springs, Ga.

Jubilation, Then Puzzlement.

The jubilation turned to puzzlement, however, when it was discovered that the concession is admittedly of doubtful constitutionality.

The concession to the foes of the reorganization bill was announced by Representative Lindsay C. Warren [D., N. C.]. He said it would take the form of an amendment to the bill, to be sponsored by the committee on reorganization, and that it would provide that any reorganization program drafted by Mr. Roosevelt may be defeated by adoption of a concurrent resolution requiring only a majority vote of each house of congress.

The bill as it now stands requires a two-thirds majority of both houses to override any decree of the chief executive. It was this feature particularly which caused opponents of the measure to term it a bill to set up a dictatorship in America. They pointed out that a one-third minority in either house could block any effort to overrule the President's program.

Fears Amendment Is Invalid.

The representatives' bewilderment began when Representative Warren, member of the board of strategy guiding the bill, admitted he did not think the amendment was constitutional. The President himself does not think it is constitutional, it was recalled. He said so in a letter to an anonymous friend several days ago. Regardless of his doubts as to the legality of the amendment, Warren said he would sponsor it.

But as the situation now stands, it was pointed out later in debate, the President will be required to sign a measure containing a provision which he considers unconstitutional. After six hours of hectic debate, members of the house quit until Monday, shaking sorely addled heads. Debate on the measure will be resumed next week.

One point was clear. The concession was made by house leaders because of grave fears that the entire measure otherwise would be killed. They were frightened by last night's vote which registered the resentment of the house against closing off debate by the emphatic majority of 191 to 149.

Finds Country Afraid of Bill.

Outstanding opponents of the bill, however, including Representative John J. O'Connor [D., N. Y.], admitted that the concession probably would serve to permit passage of the measure although it may be amended drastically.

O'Connor stated that he would vote against the bill, even if the title alone remained. He declared that the country was afraid of the measure because of its dictatorship implications. There was no need for haste, especially in view of unsettled conditions in the nation, he asserted.

Representative Gerald J. Boileau [Progressive, Wis.], denounced the amendment proposed by Warren as a piece of deception.

Declares It Would Be Joker.

"The President said a concurrent resolution was only an expression of congressional sentiment," he told the house, "and that such a resolution could not repeal an executive act. Do you believe he will sign this bill after making such a statement? The amendment is not worth the paper it is written on and is intended to deceive members into believing they will retain control over reorganization of the government."

Boileau predicted that the amendment, after it had served its purpose of placating the house, would be eliminated in a conference between the two houses.

Insists Amendment Stands.

Warren jumped to his feet and shouted: "I guarantee here and now that if the house passes the amendment, it will be in the bill when it goes to the President."

Boileau has suggested an amendment which provides for rejection of any reorganization plan by joint resolution. Although such a resolution is of unquestioned legality, it requires the signature of the President, whereas a concurrent resolution does not.

In the case of a joint resolution, the members asked, would not the President have the same veto power as he has in the present bill. If he refused to sign the joint resolution, a two-thirds majority would be needed to pass it over his veto. It was all very confusing, but the lawmakers hoped to clear the situation up before finally voting some time next week.

The house was silent and expectant of something unusual when Warren took the floor this afternoon.

Warren Starts with Tirade.

Warren, an administration die-hard, is not of the type to make a concession easily. He started with a tirade against the opposition. He assailed what he termed the dilatory tactics practiced by those who did not want to conclude debate in three days.

"They want to keep this bill from a vote while the propaganda continues to pour in," he shouted. "And that propaganda is being organized by the sweet-scented rosebud, Dr. Edwin A. Rumely." [Rumely is executive secretary of the National Association to Uphold the Constitution.]

Waving a typed statement which he asserted had been distributed among members today, Warren yelled that it contained language so shocking and so horrible that it could not be read into the record. The statement was an attack upon President Roosevelt.

"Opposition to this bill," continued Warren, "is being used by opponents of the President as a vehicle to annihilate and destroy him."

Words Cause Him Effort.

"However," he went on, and it was obvious that the words were causing him an effort, "by direction of the reorganization committee, I am authorized to say that it is the purpose of the committee to offer an amendment to the bill that any executive orders by the President shall lie here in congress for a period of sixty days while we are in session and that they may be stopped by adoption of a concurrent resolution."

The members sat stunned for a moment, then burst into cheers, yells, and whistles.

"We are thus yielding to a sincere desire on the part of many members to eliminate a feature which they deem unattractive," Warren continued. "They have asserted that it is one of the reasons why this bill can't be supported."

Another Important Concession.

The North Carolinian then announced that the committee would make another important concession in regard to the section of the bill creating a new department of welfare. The bill now proposes that one of the duties of this department shall be the promotion of the cause of education. Warren said the committee would offer an amendment to strike out this phrase, continuing the bureau of education in its present status under the department of the interior.

"A vile whispering campaign has surged through this country with the intent of disturbing a great church," Warren declared. "This damnable propaganda would have it that the bill provides for federal control over education. Nothing could be more untrue, but in order to assuage the fears of members of this great church, the committee will remove this item from the bill." [Warren referred to the Roman Catholic church which provides for the education of Catholic children in parochial schools.]

Amendment Denounced.

The Warren amendment was later denounced by Representative Gerald J. Boileau [Prog., Wis.] as a piece of deception.

"The President of the United States said a concurrent resolution was of doubtful constitutionality," he declared. "He said it was only an expression of congressional sentiment and that such a resolution could not repeal an executive act.

"I ask you if you believe the President will sign this bill if it contains this provision for a concurrent resolution. It is not worth the paper it is written on and is intended to deceive the members into believing they will retain control over reorganization of the government.

"What will happen is that the provision will be knocked out in conference."

Warren jumped to his feet and shouted: "I guarantee here and now that if the house passes the amendment, it will be retained in the bill when it goes to the President."

Boileau pleaded for substitution of an amendment he has offered which provides for rejection of any reorganization plan by joint resolution. The difference between a joint and a concurrent resolution is that the former requires the signature of the President.

Another Democratic leader, Representative John W. McCormack [D., Mass.], also violently denounced opponents of the bill.

"The real issue here is the President," he declared. "They call him a dictator, a communist, a Fascist. This is a campaign of hatred to destroy that great humanitarian, Franklin Delano Roosevelt."

McCormack said he would sponsor an amendment to exempt the veterans' bureau from the legislation. There are several score amendments to the bill to be proposed and the mood of the house was such that it seemed certain that the bill will be emasculated of much of its power before the house finally passes it.

Gag Again Voted Down.

The members went on debating happily after these incidents. The concessions of the leaders robbed the discussion of the bitterness which has characterized previous debate. No attempt was made to end debate and members will be allowed next week to talk as much as they desire, Speaker W. B. Bankhead said.

Warren's announcement came after the house for the third day running had been forced to a record vote on whether to consider the measure. The decision was 207 to 150 to resume consideration.

Further strategy to combat the threatened revolt against the bill likely will be discussed at a white house conference tomorrow. The President arranged to confer with congressional leaders shortly after his return from Warm Springs, Ga., where he has been vacationing.

Bitter Compromise

ROOSEVELT OFF FOR CAPITAL AND DICTATOR FIGHT

President Ends 10 Day Vacation in Georgia.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Aboard Presidential Special En Route to Washington, D. C., April 2.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt tonight was homeward bound after a ten day vacation at the little White House on Pine mountain to one of the major congressional battles of his administration, the reorganization bill which would give him dictatorial powers over the executive branch of the government.

House action on the bill called the President away from his packing as he was preparing for his journey this morning. Congressional leaders called by long distance telephone and proposed a compromise on the measure. The President gave no hint as to his answer, if he made any.

[The action of the sponsors of the bill in proposing a compromise in Washington after the phone call, however, is considered evidence that he consented to it.]

Two Aids Board Train.

Solicitor General Robert H. Jackson and Benjamin Cohen, a White House adviser, boarded the presidential special when it reached Atlanta. It was presumed they had come with the draft of a message and an outline of proposed legislation to curb monopolies.

During the homeward journey Mr. Roosevelt also was expected to give his attention to a resolution calling for a congressional inquiry into the Tennessee Valley authority. The resolution was sent to the President today for his signature.

The President boarded his special train here at 4 p. m. Before his departure he paused at Georgia hall, the administration building of the Warm Springs Foundation, where the 116 paralysis patients of the institution waved him farewell. He will arrive in the capital about noon tomorrow.

On the return trip the President was accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt and Harry Hopkins, WPA administrator.

Rebels Nearing Sea

Spanish civil war developments yesterday included:

1. Rebels capture Benabarre, important road center.
2. Madrid admits rebels have entered Lerida.
3. Rebels take Gandesa, 21 miles from Mediterranean.
4. Barcelona-Valencia-Madrid highway, which rebels seek to cut.
5. Loyalists report 10 mile advance in Guadalajara offensive.

tonight had said the French cabinet would decide Monday what should be done with the refugees, those who chose to remain loyal to the Spanish government entrained at Bagneres de Luchon for Cerbere during the night.

Expected to Cross Today.

Railroad employés here said they would cross over into Spain early tomorrow despite the earlier announcement that a cabinet decision was awaited. The announcement, it was said, was made "only to fool the Fascists" and prevent bombardment of the frontier as the militiamen crossed.

The refugees' only means of entering Spain tonight at Cerbere would be a long march through the frontier railroad tunnel. Bombardments have made the passage of trains impractical.

In addition to the soldier refuges, there were some 2,000 civilian refugees in France, mostly women, children and elderly men. These hungry, ill clad noncombatants, who brought pitiful stories of privation, were transported to camps in the interior of France. Many required immediate hospital care.

Bomb Toledo; Eleven Die.

BURGOS, Spain, April 2.—(AP)—Rebel headquarters announced today that eleven persons were killed and thirty-four wounded by bombs during a government air raid on Toledo.

MYSTERY CRAFT AT JAP ISLAND NOT U. S. SHIP, ADMIRAL BLOCH SAYS

HONOLULU, April 2.—(AP)—Tokio newspaper reports that an American warship might have been the mystery craft which turned searchlights on a Japanese mandated island were discounted today by Admiral Claude C. Bloch, commander-in-chief of the United States fleet. "I have no knowledge of any warship having entered the harbor of any mandated island," he said.

In Tokio, the newspaper Hochi, quoting "various quarters," said a warship believed to be American entered the harbor of Truk about 2 a. m., March 27.

U. S. to Move Embassy from Barcelona Today

BARCELONA, Spain, April 2.—(AP)—The United States embassy and consulate will be transferred tomorrow to San Vicente de Llevaneras, near the coast twenty miles northeast of Barcelona. It will be one of the last embassies to be moved out of this war-threatened capital of Spain.

600,000 CHEER HITLER; ELECTION DRIVE SPEEDS UP

Pan-Germans Harangued by Many Speakers.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, April 2.—The campaign for the April 10 plebiscite on Germany's annexation of Austria reached a high pitch tonight when Reichsfuehrer Hitler addressed 600,000 frantically cheering followers on the Theresien meadow in Munich. The scene was lighted by hundreds of blazing cressets placed on scarlet pylons. This was Hitler's sixth election speech this week.

Tomorrow morning the Fuehrer will leave for Graz, where he is scheduled to start an election tour through Austria. The tour will wind up in Vienna on the eve of the plebiscite.

23 Massmeetings in Berlin.

While the Fuehrer was speaking in Munich, twenty-three massmeetings were held in Berlin. All evening the Schutz Staffel [picked guards], storm troopers and other Nazi organizations kept marching through Berlin's streets, cheering, singing Nazi songs and listening to election speeches.

In provincial towns Hitler's lieutenants told Pan-German voters they must turn out to a man at the "holy election." Dr. Wilhelm Frick, home minister, said in a speech at Coblenz: "By reuniting Austria with Germany, Hitler has won a world war without shedding one drop of blood. In an incredibly short time we have become the greatest power in Europe after the unparalleled collapse of 1918."

In Chemnitz Dr. Robert Ley, chief of the Labor Front, proclaimed:

"This is no ordinary election, but a profession of faith."

Bar Jews from Festival.

Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, minister of air, told listeners at Salzburg that all Jews will be removed from the famous plays of the Salzburg festival, held for one month each summer.

"German audiences," he said, "shall enjoy German players."

German newspapers gave prominent display to the address of Gen. List as he took over command of the former Austrian army in Vienna.

"It is my earnest desire to fashion this army under my command into a sharp and ever ready sword on which Der Fuehrer can always rely," Gen. List told the troops.

The Austrian army was organized into the 17th and 18th army corps after Germany's annexation of the country. The troops will be garrisoned in Vienna and Salzburg. Gen. Kineitz, a German, is commander of the 17th corps, and Field Marshal Beyer, former inspector general of the Austrian army, commands the 18th corps.

Britain to Close Legation.

German officials were elated over Great Britain's decision to withdraw its legation from Vienna on April 15 and put its affairs there in charge of a consul general. This step, which Sir Nevile Henderson, British ambassador, communicated to Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop today, was interpreted here as British recognition of the Austrian union with Germany.

The British ambassador, however, pointed out that "England reserves to itself all rights arising from the treaties it has with Austria."

While England was being patted on the back the Nazi press launched a bitter atttack on France, accusing it of returning to Barcelona the militiamen who fled from rebel forces in Spain to France.

The Berliner Tageblatt said "this measure represents a new flagrant violation of international rights and nonintervention. France becomes the 'base' of Red Spain. Men are being nursed in France only for the purpose of making them fit to return as cannon fodder for Moscow."

Kidnaping Feared

MISS NANCY FROME.

[Associated Press Wirephotos.]
MRS. WESTON G. FROME.

Pecos, Tex., April 2.—(AP)—An automobile found abandoned in the west Texas hills sent officers on a search today for Mrs. Weston G. Frome, 46 years old, of Berkeley, Cal., and her daughter, Nancy, 23 years old.

At Berkeley the husband and father, an assistant sales manager for the Atlas Powder company, expressed fear they had been kidnaped and murdered. He left California by plane to join the hunt.

The car was abandoned on the road to San Antonio, miles off the route the mother and daughter had planned to take on their way to Parris Island, S. C., to visit the Fromes' other daughter, Mrs. Benjamin McMakin, wife of a naval officer. The women left El Paso Wednesday. They were reported to have carried $125 in cash in addition to jewelry and luggage.

VATICAN'S ROW WITH GERMANY GETS NEW TWIST

Radio Address on Bishops Brings a Denial.

VATICAN CITY, April 2.—(AP)—Another chapter was added to the history of the Catholic church's relations with Germany today when a Vatican news service issued the statement that a Vatican radio broadcast last night was made "without the knowledge of the [papal] secretary of state."

This broadcast spoke of pastors who "shortsightedly join the victorious of the day." It was made to refer to the Austrian Catholic church by quoting an editorial in yesterday's edition of L'Osservatore Romano, the Vatican newspaper, which said the Vatican had no knowledge of the Catholic bishops' declaration read in Austrian churches last Sunday.

[In that declaration Cardinal Theadore Innitzer, archbishop of Vienna, and five other prelates said it was their duty "to declare our loyalty as Germans to the German reich [nation]" in the April 10 plebiscite on union with Germany. There was no comment by Vatican authorities on the Austrian bishops' recognition of Nazi authority until L'Osservatore Romano said it was made "without previous or subsequent approbation of the Holy See."]

No Official Comment.

It was shortly after L'Osservatore Romano appeared that last night's broadcast was made over the Vatican radio. It was a long statement in German on "false political catholicism" which had "brought heavy damage to the honor and esteem of the church."

There was no official comment on this broadcast today, and Osservatore Romano made no mention of it.

The Vatican state secretariat said it had nothing to say officially about it, though Andrea Marchese, chief of the Vatican radio station, did make this statement: "The broadcast was a regular one, treating religious subjects, and so far as I know no special authorization was given for that particular address. I myself do not even know yet what was said."

Was of "Private Character."

The statement on it made by a Vatican news service was: "The talk made yesterday on the Vatican radio in the German language regarding the Austrian situation was of a private character and was made without any understanding and even without the knowledge of the secretary of state.

"The coincidence between the talk and the note in L'Osservatore Romano, which established that the holy see had nothing to do with the declaration of the Austrian bishops, was purely fortuitous.

"In fact, German language transmission is made regularly every Friday at 8 p. m. and that is the reason why it coincided with L'Osservatore Romano's note."

Cardinal Makes New Pledge.

VIENNA, April 2.—(AP)—A reaffirmation of Austrian Catholic bishops' support of the Nazi régime in the plebiscite on union with Germany drew wide attention in Austria today.

The restatement was made by Cardinal Theodore Innitzer in a letter yesterday to Joseph Buerckel, Reichsfuehrer Hitler's lieutenant in charge of the April 10 poll.

German Prelate Makes Appeal.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, April 2.—While ignoring yesterday's radio and press comments from Vatican City regarding Austrian bishops' support of Austro-German union in connection with the plebiscite to be held April 10, Nazi papers hailed today the first Catholic church dignitary on German soil to issue an appeal to his flock to indorse the anschluss [union].

He is Dr. Johannes B. Dietz, bishop coadjutor of Fulda, who said: "I have reason to hope that the creator of Pan-Germany will combine national union with magnanimous pacification and therefore appeal to my diocese to share my confidence and vote 'Yes' on the plebiscite day."

Lutheran bishops met and formulated an indorsement of the plebiscite in which emphasis was laid upon the necessity of continuing to preach the gospel of Christ in Germany. Even ministers of the Confessional [Evangelical Lutheran] synod, which opposes Nazi domination of church affairs, adopted a prayer of thanksgiving regarding the plebiscite. The prayer will be read in all Confessional churches tomorrow.

CAUSE OF SU-LIN'S DEATH SOUGHT IN POST-MORTEM

Mystery surrounding the death Friday of Su-Lin, baby giant panda at the Brookfield zoo, will not be cleared before tomorrow, when a post-mortem will be performed at the Field Museum of Natural History. Because this is the first complete body of a giant panda ever available to anatomists, scientific importance is attached to the findings. The autopsy will be performed by two specialists, under the supervision of Dr. Wilfred H. Osgood, the museum's curator of zoölogy, and Robert Bean, assistant director of the zoölogical park.

Su-Lin's death at first was thought due to an infection caused when an oak twig lodged in her throat, but posthumous examination disproved this theory.

Mei-Mei, a younger panda, purchased this year, will continue amusing the public in two daily appearances. During the cool weather her exhibition will be limited to one hour each morning and afternoon. On warmer days the time will be extended to two hours.

Fire Sweeps Wood Fiber Plant; Loss Set at $50,000

A 3-11 fire swept a wood fiber and plastic materials factory at 1912-24 South Western avenue yesterday afternoon, destroying most of the building and its contents. Damage was estimated at between $40,000 and $50,000 by fire officials. The plant normally employs about 100 workers, but only four were there when the fire occurred. H. C. Barber, the manager, jumped from a second floor window and was slightly injured. One employé was rescued by firemen.

—CORRECTION—

In our advertisement, part 8, page 11, in the dress section, lower right hand corner, two of the illustrations are incorrectly described. The second illustration from the left should be described as a "monotone print" at $5.95. The fourth illustration from the left should be described as a Junior Ensemble of "Koolstripe" at $22.95. We regret this error.

In our Men's hosiery advertisement, page 13, part 8, the illustration shows only Ev-R-Up short socks. There are plenty of regular length socks in the assortment.

HENLEIN, HITLER'S STRAWMAN, DONS HAT OF DICTATOR

But in Eyes of Czechs He Is a Traitor.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Eleventh Article.

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia.—A dictator without a country, ostensible leader of a party of constitutional opposition, yet in the eyes of loyal Czechoslovaks a traitor whom they could hang if it would not mean civil war, Konrad Henlein is the Sudeten mystery, and, as his followers like to say, the Sudeten miracle.

Acknowledged leader of 65 per cent of Czechoslovakia's three and a quarter million Germans, Henlein, outside of parliament himself and holding no official position, is absolute chief of the largest single political party in the Czechoslovak state.

He protests loyalty to the state and constitution, yet his party by its propaganda seeks to undermine and discredit the republic in every possible way.

Henlein a Social Outlaw.

Socially, Henlein is an outlaw. Foreign diplomats do not dare to have any contact with him or his lieutenants, so violent is the feeling against him in Prague. Called "Mein Fuehrer" by the rank and file of his followers, he is, according to official Czech information, merely a straw man who does not dare make the slightest move save on orders from Berlin.

This 51 year old ex-bank clerk, ex-gymnasium instructor, five years ago virtually unknown even to his countrymen, has carved out a unique destiny for himself. War or peace in Europe may depend upon him.

I motored to Teplice to meet Henlein. He had been out hiking in the mountains with one of his lieutenants. He greeted me in sweater and boots, a tall, beefy man with a big head, looking almost a little top-heavy. His face is full, smallish, with a round chin. He has a sharp nose and sharp eyes behind glasses.

Has Sense of Humor.

Henlein is friendly, simple, has a nice, unexpected sense of humor. I liked him. He talks quietly, very earnestly, looking down at the floor, fidgeting a little with his fingers, and seemed on the whole to find the ordeal a bit trying. Once a political question brought an angry flush to his cheeks and his voice shook a little, but he quickly mastered himself.

It had been agreed that Henlein would give me a statement for publication, on condition that it would be handed to me in writing in answer to written questions submitted in advance. After this interview he answered off-the-record questions, which were confidential. The written interview added nothing sensational to what already is known.

Henlein, in his answers to the off-the-record questions, however, appeared embarrassed and was apt to be evasive. His answers seldom were wholly satisfactory. They left me wondering whether he is afraid of the give and take of free conversation because he does not trust his own emotions, or whether, as the Czechs say, he is afraid to say anything on which he has not been coached by Berlin.

Seeks to Enter Parliament.

He answered one question, directly, however, and said I could quote him on it. He said that he had changed his mind about never entering parliament and would run in the next elections.

Sudeten Fuehrer

Konrad Henlein, leader of German party in Czechoslovakia, who protests loyalty to the state, but whose organization seeks to undermine the republic.

More interesting were the personal facts about Henlein which I learned from one of his confidants. His tastes and habits confirm the impression that he is an entirely healthy, normal man, not the usual type of neurotic agitator.

He is married, has three children, lives quietly with his family in the little town of As [Asch] near the German border. He has a passion for keeping fit, likes all sports, including boxing, smokes an occasional cigaret, and drinks moderately. He likes to gather with his cronies over a beer mug in the evening.

Like all Germans, he is fond of music. Favorite composers: Beethoven, Wagner, Schubert. He entertains friends himself by playing the violin, sometimes.

History His Favorite Reading.

His favorite reading is history, and particularly historical memoirs, biographies of great men. From this it is permissible to assume that he is ambitious and that he considers himself designated to play a historical rôle.

A curious psychological detail—Henlein's mother was Czech. He is said to have no personal hatreds of the Czechs, nor even of Jews, but undoubtedly he considers it his mission to serve the interests of the German race in opposition to the Czechs and Jews.

There was something about Henlein, particularly his handshake, his earnestness and good fellowship, which made me think of a Y. M. C. A. or Boy Scout leader. This is not surprising. He was a gymnastics instructor, and gymnastics play a big part in his movement. He was no ordinary gym instructor. He is essentially a pedagog and something of a philosopher and his gymnastic system is really a discipline of physical and moral education.

A "Turnverein" War.

Doubtless he was influenced considerably by the Czech Sokols, which played an incredible rôle, really religious and political, too, in shaping the modern Czechoslovak soul. From one point of view the struggle between Henlein and the Czechoslovak state is a "turnverein" war. Don't laugh. It is a very important thing.

Henlein, you see, was leader of all the German gymnastic societies and the lay prophet of a new cult at the time the German National Socialist [Nazi] and nationalist parties were banned in Czechoslovakia. He was drafted by his fellow citizens to head a patriotic, nonpartisan front of all the Germans to replace them.

He has managed to keep the political side of his movement pretty clear of the Nazi ideology and tactics, which would have given the government a good excuse to dissolve it.

Claims to Be Democrat.

Henlein claims to be a Democrat. Official party propaganda points out that leadership of the party is based upon free elections from below, culminating in a supreme council which every year has to confirm Henlein as party leader. From there on, however, the Fuehrer principle applies. Henlein appoints and dismisses all party officials who are responsible solely to him, assigns each member his mission, and his word is law. Even deputies in parliament must resign if he recalls them, an obvious nullification of the parliamentary theory.

CZECHS TO GRANT AMNESTY; NAZIS WILL BE INCLUDED

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, April 2.—In an effort to improve the atmosphere during negotiations with minorities, it was announced today, amnesty for political offenders will be proclaimed soon. Sudeten Germans [Nazis] will be the chief beneficiaries of this act, the scope of the amnesty, however, is not yet known. It also was announced that it is intended to hold municipal elections in June. These elections were postponed indefinitly last year for fear of political strife. Municipal elections are overdue in Prague in 12,000 out of a total of 16,000 communities, the holding of these elections had been urged by the Sudeten German party.

Rob G. O. P. Ward Leader of $12, but Overlook $600

Charles L. Gerds, Republican committeeman of the 7th ward and head of a motor sales agency at 7355 Exchange avenue, was robbed of $12 yesterday by two men who halted him at 73d street and Exchange avenue. The men missed a package in which Gerds was carrying $600.

HITLER'S TERROR IN AUSTRIA TOLD BY EYEWITNESS

The "inside story" of Austria—how the German Nazi Brownshirts subjugated the country by a "bloodless reign of terror;" how hundreds of innocent Austrians were imprisoned by Nazi zealots seeking to settle petty personal grievances; how the Jews are being persecuted, and how the work of leaders in art and science, for which Austria is famous, is being suppressed — was described for the United States last night by Edmond Taylor, correspondent for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, in a broadcast from London. Mr. Taylor was in Vienna when Hitler seized Austria and covered the events there. His broadcast was heard over W-G-N and the coast to coast Mutual network.

Mr. Taylor said stories of Nazi violence were not "atrocity propaganda," but facts. He contrasted the Nazi methods, however, with those of soviet Russia. The Nazi's, he said, "got over their point" by a great display of military might and troops "with smiles on their faces," but with few killings, while the soviets killed thousands.

Mr. Taylor said the Austrian Nazis were somewhat disappointed, since they had not received the jobs they expected. The Austrian people as a whole, he said, were shocked at the loss of their country's independence.

STRUCK ON HEAD, KNOCKED DOWN IN BOARD ROOM

Detroit, Mich., April 2.—(AP)—John W. Hubbard, wealthy Pittsburgh manufacturer, was under a doctor's care and his son-in-law, John C. Williams, of suburban Grosse Pointe farms, was held by police following a quarrel in the board room of a downtown stock brokerage firm today. Hubbard, who is 77 years old, was struck on the head and was knocked down.

According to Detective Lieut. Edward Radtke, Hubbard came here from Pittsburgh earlier in the week to inquire about disposition of approximately $380,000 he had given his son-in-law for investment. Hubbard is chairman of the board of Hubbard & Co., Pittsburgh shovel manufacturers.

150,000 CHINESE TROOPS TRAPPED, JAPANESE CLAIM

Canal 'Runs Red' in Great Battle for Town.

SHANGHAI, April 3 (Sunday).—(AP)—An official Japanese statement said today that 150,000 Chinese troops in southern Shantung province had been encircled and were "doomed to defeat in the near future."

The statement termed optimistic Chinese reports "obvious fabrications" and said air attacks on retreating Chinese had been so effective they were causing the Grand canal to "run red."

"The Chinese field commanders dare not honestly report to Hankow on the true situation along the Tientsin-Pukow railroad, fearing the same fate of Han Fu-chu," the statement asserted.

[Gen. Han was executed Jan. 25 after repeated Japanese successes in Shantung, over which he then had command.]

Japs Use Forty Tanks.

Meanwhile, the little city of Taierchwang, on the Grand canal fifteen miles north of the vital east-west Lunghai railway, was the scene of one of the fiercest battles of the war. With both sides using heavy artillery, large air forces and mechanized land equipment, the fighting continued unabated.

This city stands in the way of Japan's offensive against Suchow, junction of the Lunghai railway, vital transportation artery of central China, and the Tientsin-Pukow line.

Chinese reported the Japanese launched two furious attacks on the city, aided by forty tanks, but were driven back into small villages north of Taierchwang, leaving 1,000 dead.

They said they had recaptured Hanchwang, a small town thirty miles west of Taierchwang, and that their air squadrons were bombing Japanese troops extensively in the Yihsien-Taierchwang area while their new armored units were facilitating the defense.

Rejects British Protest.

The Chinese asserted they had been victorious in a two day battle in the Lake Tai district, west of Shanghai, killing 4,000 Japanese. Earlier the Japanese had reported routing Chinese from that area, saying more than 6,000 Chinese had been slain.

Gen. Shunroku Hata today rejected British protests against reported Japanese threats and discourtesies to British nationals. Gen. Hata, commander of Japanese troops in Central China, denied that Japanese soldiers had been guilty of offensive acts charged by Gen. A. P. D. Telfer-Smollet, commander of British forces at Shanghai.

Britain Prepares to Guard "Life Line"

Fearing the day may come when the route to the far east through the Mediterranean and Red seas will be closed by an enemy fleet, Great Britain is building new and strengthening old bases to protect its communications. The dotted line shows the route Britain would be compelled to use should the Mediterranean route (shown by heavy line) be closed.

BRITAIN TO BUILD NEW NAVAL BASE IN SOUTH INDIA

Prepares for Attack Upon Life Line to East.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

COCHIN, India, April 2.—Development of Cochin as a naval port is the latest step in Great Britain's move to build up its chain of bases to the east.

Rear Admiral Herbert Fitzherbert, commanding the royal Indian navy, recently visited the port to investigate its naval possibilities.

He reported that it was ideal for development for naval purposes, it is understood, and this is taken to mean that work will go forward.

Build Experimental Airdrome.

An experimental airdrome already has been started on reclaimed land. Cochin is considered a valuable site for air force use.

Cochin lies in the extreme south of India, about 680 miles south of Bombay and 160 miles north of Cape Comorin. It is the best harbor and the only really sheltered harbor in all that area.

Naval men consider that if war ever enforced use of the convoy system for shipping between Aden and Ceylon, Cochin would be of great strategic value as the only practical base from which to operate convoys.

Development of Cochin will be a logical continuation of the policy of the last two years—inspired by the Mediterranean crisis over Italy's war in Ethiopia—of building up existing bases and creating new ones all along Britain's vital trade routes.

Develop African Bases.

Singapore, Malta, Gibraltar, and Aden all have been strengthened. Cyprus is being turned into an important base.

Along the Cape of Good Hope route, which would be the British life line if the route through the Mediterranean were barred by hostile warships, Freetown, in Sierra Leone, is being converted into a base, and at Cape Town a $75,000,000 program for converting the harbor into one of the empire's key bases is under way.

The chief task of the British mission now in Portugal, England's "oldest ally," is understood to be to persuade the Portuguese to allow use of their harbors and bases by the British in case of war. That would provide one additional link in the chain of bases available to British ships, whether they went through the Mediterranean or around Africa.

3 KILLED IN NILE DELTA ELECTION; POLLS GUARDED

CAIRO, Egypt, April 2.—(AP)—Three persons were killed in the Nile delta region today as Lower Egypt voted in the general election, results of which thus far indicated a big majority for young King Farouk's handpicked cabinet.

Police armed with batons guarded Cairo polling stations following reports that Wafdists [nationalists] intended to create a disturbance. The voting in Cairo was quiet, despite clashes in outlying regions.

Wafdists contended that some of them were deprived of identity cards and not permitted to vote. Of forty-one contests decided in Thursday's balloting in Upper Egypt only one seat in the new parliament went to the Wafdists.

[King Farouk ousted Mustapha Nahas Pasha, Wafdist premier, last Dec. 30 and installed Mohamed Mahmoud as head of a new cabinet.]

DIES FROM FALL INJURIES.

Louis Voyda, 61 years old, 1615 Newberry avenue, died yesterday in the County hospital of a suspected skull fracture suffered in a fall in his home on Jan. 11. He was discharged from the hospital, but returned on March 25.

MUSSOLINI TO STAGE GIGANTIC WARPLANE DISPLAY FOR HITLER

ROME, April 2.—(AP)—Italy's air force intends to stage "the greatest aerial display ever seen" for the benefit of Reichsfuehrer Hitler when he visits Premier Mussolini in May. Officials said the exhibition would be "essentially warlike."

Three hundred land and sea planes, divided into ten squadrons, will drop live bombs of various sizes along a stretch of Mediterranean coast near Rome, the announcement said.

Then, flying in formation, they will attack assigned objects. All movements will be directed by radio from the ground. Interplane communication by radio will be used to coördinate the attack maneuvers. Targets with the apperance of camouflaged warships, troops, ports and industrial zones will be constructed for the bombing show.

ARKANSAS CONVICT KILLED.

St. Louis, Mo., April 2.—[U. P.]—John E. Hardy, 22 years old, a Negro convict, died today of gunshot wounds inflicted yesterday when he attempted to escape from two officers returning him to the Arkansas state penitentiary at Gould.

EMPLOYERS REFUSE ARBITRATION TO END FRENCH AUTO STRIKE

PARIS, April 2.—(AP)—Settlement of the ten-day strike in aviation and metallurgical plants ran into a snag tonight when the management of the Citroen automobile factory refused to accept government arbitration on the strikers' demands. In a letter to Vincent Auriol, cabinet minister assigned by Premier Leon Blum to handle the strike situation, the Citroen management declared the wage controversy should be settled according to existing laws.

Blum immediately conferred with Citroen officials after workers' delegates had accepted the proposed basis of an accord, which provided that the plants be evacuated at once by the strikers; that the management pay employes back wages which had been held up more than a week, and that the government arbitrate the differences between the employers and employés.

IDENTIFY BODY FOUND IN LAKE AS LETITIA ECHERT'S

The body of a woman washed ashore at New Buffalo, Mich., Friday, was identified last night as that of Miss Letitia Echert, 30 years old, 2546 Eastwood avenue, who had been missing since Feb. 17. She was a journalism student at Northwestern university, and librarian at the Logan Square branch of the public library.

The identification was made by her father, William Echert; her brother, George, and two friends, Hortense Meyers and Ruth Utter, who drove to New Buffalo after seeing a story in THE TRIBUNE about the finding of the body. Mr. Echert said he had no idea of what happened. Miss Echert, a graduate of the University of Chicago, had been ill at the time she dis-

STATE PAY ROLL IS BACKBONE OF HORNER MACHINE

71 of 101 County Leaders Work for Governor.

BY PARKE BROWN.

While Gov. Henry Horner has built up a Cook county machine with which to battle the local machine headed by National Committeeman P. A. Nash, it is flimsy in contrast to the Horner downstate machine.

Gov. Horner.

There the governor has all the advantage, for the huge pay rolls of the ten code departments under the chief executive make political jokes of the rosters of employés under the other five constitutional officers aligned with the Nash machine.

Chairmen on Pay Rolls.

Downstate machinery is built around the chairmen of the 101 county central committees. Gov. Horner has had and is believed now to have, almost three-fourths of those 101 Democratic chairmen on his pay rolls.

Under the Springfield system the records for 1938 are not available. The books for 1937 show 71 of the 101 county bosses working, or at least receiving money for working, for the state.

In contrast to this, the total number of chairmen receiving checks from Nash allies in the state government was exactly three. Thus the score on this basis was, and probably is today: Horner, 71; Nash, 3.

Three Support Nash.

The complete list of the county leaders who might be expected to be supporting the Horner ticket is published separately. The three who last year received money from pro-Nash coffers were:

Charles L. Carson, Edwards county, who was paid $600 as a clerk in the office of State Treasurer John C. Martin.

James McDonna, Stark county, who received $1,800 as a clerk in the office of Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes.

A. W. Stoltz, Wabash county, who was paid $1,200 as an assistant under Attorney General Otto Kerner.

Chairmen Indorse Ticket.

Particular interest attaches this year to the Horner list of seventy-one chairmen because of the method used in launching the Horner state ticket. On Jan. 31 a meeting was held in Springfield. It was announced all the 101 downstate chairmen had been invited by the governor. That meeting indorsed the main part of the Horner ticket and since then the governor, Congressman Scott W. Lucas, his candidate for United States senator, and others on his ticket have spoken of that ticket as one indorsed by all 101 chairmen.

A red, white, and blue folder distributed by the thousands from Horner headquarters as its principal piece of printed matter for campaign purposes carries in its opening paragraph the popular figure 101.

"When a man receives the indorsement of 101 of the 102 Democratic county chairmen in Illinois to be the representative of the Democratic party in a senatorial campaign, he must have qualifications which especially fit him for high office," the pamphlet says.

"What sort of a man, then, is this Scott W. Lucas, Democratic candidate for the senate?"

Challenges Use of Figure.

Thomas P. Sinnett of Rock Island, majority leader of the Illinois house of representatives during Gov. Horner's first term has repeatedly challenged this use of the magic figure. He has said only forty-one county chairmen were present at the Horner meeting on Jan. 31 and that they merely carried out their orders in placing an O. K. on a slate agreed upon in the executive mansion the night before the meeting.

Former Representative Sinnett is now managing the downstate campaign of District Attorney Michael L. Igoe, Lucas' opponent, who is backed by the Nash Cook county machine. A telegram to him at Igoe headquarters at Springfield asking him on what he based his statement that only forty-one chairmen attended the Horner-Lucas meeting brought this response:

"My statement that only forty-one county chairmen were present was based on statements to me by participants whose confidence I do not wish to betray. Do not forget that the meeting was secret, that the press and all outsiders were barred.

"Other sources have verified the number since the meeting. The slate was presented by F. Lynden Smith, Gov. Horner's director of public works and campaign manager, and there was no discussion, even of the qualifications of the candidates.

One question that has not been answered is whether any or all three of the downstate chairmen on pay rolls of anti-Horner officials attended and participated in the indorsement meeting. Some doubt is expressed on this score.

Horner Leaders on Pay Roll

Below is a list of seventy-one downstate Democratic county chairmen whose names are now or recently have been on the pay rolls of Gov. Horner's state departments. After the name of each chairman is the title of his position, the name of the department paying his salary, and the amount shown to have been paid to him during 1937. Figures for 1938 are not available. Only three of the 101 downstate county chairmen whose names appear on the pay rolls of state officials are aligned against Gov. Horner in the Democratic primary fight. They are not included in this list.

HORAN'S OUSTER OF 30 DEPUTIES STARTS BATTLE

Bailif Defies Reinstatement Order by Judges.

"On March 18, I was called in to Horan's office and Bennie Adamowski [Benjamin Adamowski, Horner candidate for renomination as state representative from the 25th district] was there. Horan told me, 'I expect you to get 750 votes in your precinct for Adamowski or else you'll be fired on April 12th.' I didn't say much. A week later I got one of those registered letters."

After the bailifs left the issue was put up to a vote. Before the roll was called Judge Dougherty said, "I don't think we ought to take a vote on this now. We are in the heat of political battle. For the party's sake we ought to investigate the respective claims of Horan and the bailifs."

In response, Judges Oscar Caplan, John Gutknecht, and Eugene L. McGarry each made short speeches defending the vote.

Judge Sonsteby announced the vote to the waiting deputies. He told them they were restored to their jobs with full pay from the date of their discharge. "You will report for work Monday morning as usual," he said. "If there's any trouble or mixup, let us know up here."

The single ousted deputy who did not seek reinstatement was John Szumnarski, 35th ward Nash-Kelly committeeman.

LYONS A FIGHTING CRITIC OF ABUSES IN BOTH PARTIES

G. O. P. Senate Candidate Has Little Opposition.

[This is another in a series of informal sketches of major candidates for state offices in the April 12 primary.]

BY PERCY WOOD.

To head their state ticket as candidate for senator this year, organized Republicans of Illinois have chosen an ebullient, youthful appearing man of 42 who for ten years has kept the house of representatives at Springfield in a state of uproar on the frequent occasions when he didn't like the way things were going.

Richard J. Lyons.

It didn't matter much to Dick Lyons—the name will read Richard J. Lyons on the primary ballot—whether he was attacking Democratic or Republican actions. He entered the house during the Republican régime of Gov. Louis L. Emmerson, but when Emmerson vetoed the state dry law repealer Lyons' was one of the most condemning voices raised against him.

Attacks Relief Handling.

In recent years the administration of relief has brought Lyons to his feet time and again, principally to charge that pay roller social workers were getting more out of the system than the reliefers. His verbal bout on that subject with Robert J. Dunham, then chairman of the relief commission, was one of the high spots in legislative memory. The men were perfectly matched, although possessing opposite attributes—Lyons, explosive, quick witted, and accusative; Dunham, imperturbable, solid, and shrewd. The fight was a draw.

The parole board was another of Lyons' pet aversions. He didn't approve of their secret actions or of secret paroles. On the latter point he once locked horns with the then speaker, Arthur Roe of Vandalia, a Democrat, who adjourned the house in a rage and left the Republican only half through his accusations. But Lyons jumped to the rostrum, shouted that he was going to be heard anyway, and invited the members to stay for his rump session. Most of them stayed.

Horner a Friendly Enemy.

Gov. Horner has had his ears singed often by Lyons and for a while was said to have taken the attacks as personal rather than political, but during the 1937 session the two men almost became friends. Each, it appeared, had developed a secret admiration for the other—at least forensically.

Lyons' style has been cramped a little in his Cook county campaign. Downstate he went after the Roosevelt administration like a campmeeting parson, striding the stage as he talked, jumping down into the ailes and waving damning exhibits and carrying his audience along with an infectious tornado of words. But the strain on his voice was almost too much and he has been warned to use a microphone in order to rest it. This is hard on him. Sometimes he breaks away and lets his eagle soar without benefit of modern acoustical science.

Started Work in Store.

Dick Lyons was born over in the Bridgeport district at what is now 32d and Throop street. He had to leave school when he was in the sixth grade and go to work. D. F. Kelly gave him his first job as a cash boy in Mandel Brothers. He stayed two weeks, then, lured by a messenger boy's uniform, got a job with the Postal Telegraph and Cable company and carried messages in the loop on the night trick, finishing work at 2 a. m.

In the summer he and other boys would run to the lake front after work and go swimming at 7th street, about a block from the Blackstone hotel. They swam naked and generally until daybreak. Early risers in the hotel were often scandalized and the paddy wagon from the old Harrison street police station made many trips to stop such heathenish behavior.

Lyons learned telegraphy when work was slack and graduated into a Board of Trade operator, then into selling, and eventually became proprietor of a grocery in Area, which is now Mundelein. After he was elected to the legislature in 1928 he went to night school, making up for what he had lost as a boy, and then studied law. Lyons lives in Libertyville, which adjoins Mundelein, with his wife and two children. He has no organized opposition for the senatorial nomination.

DOWDLES SETTLE U. S. TAX CLAIM BY COMPROMISE

The board of tax appeals in Washington disclosed yesterday that deficiencies in income tax and penalties claimed from three members of the Dowdle Brothers contracting firm had been settled by compromise.

From Thomas Dowdle, 107 Grace street, Park Ridge, the government had demanded $71,276; from Raymond Dowdle, 6946 Bennett avenue, $267,836, and from John J. Dowdle, 500 Lake avenue, Wilmette, $118,841. The amount paid by the Dowdles was not made public.

The three brothers were indicted for income tax evasion in 1930, the government charging they failed to report on nearly $4,000,000 received in contracts during the Chicago sanitary district's "whoopee era"—1926 to 1928. The cases were dismissed in the federal court in 1936. At that time it was reported the Dowdle brothers, who are nephews of Patrick A. Nash, Democratic leader, would pay a compromise figure of $50,000.

BURNS FATAL TO WOMAN.

Mrs. Anna Skotnicki, 66 years old, of 1648 Bosworth avenue, died yesterday in the County hospital of burns suffered in her home on Jan. 24.

Horner Campaign Singers Sue for $250 in Salaries

Springfield, Ill., April 2.—[Special.]—Members of the "Horner quartet," who campaigned for Gov. Horner in the 1936 primary, filed a suit in Circuit court here today against F. Lynden Smith, state director of public works and buildings, and the Iroquois Illinois league for $250 each. The members of the quartet—Rudolph Keil, Fred Raney, Roy L. Fox, and Gene Smith—alleged they were hired by Smith to sing during July, August, September, and October in the Horner campaign and were only partially repaid.

IGOE AND LUCAS TRADE SLAPS AND VICTORY BOASTS

Lyons Pleads for Support of Constitution.

The primary candidates were in fighting mettle again yesterday, each Democratic faction predicting a sweeping victory at the polls on April 12. Michael Igoe and Scott Lucas, rivals for the Democratic senatorial nomination, assailed each other's sincerity, while Richard J. Lyons, the leading candidate for the Republican nomination, stressed the importance of the constitution.

Igoe and the other Democratic organization choices spoke at a luncheon of 3,500 members of their state women's group in the Stevens hotel and then swung around to evening meetings in Chicago Heights, Blue Island and Calumet City.

Igoe Answers "Prattling" Charge.

"The response to our proclamation of pride in President Roosevelt and his record," Igoe said, "was undoubtedly direct and convincing. So much so that my opponent declares himself an original Roosevelt man and refers to my wholehearted and single-minded support as 'prattling.'

"May I ask this gentleman, who was nominated and elected to congress in 1936 as a real Roosevelt man, whether he was proclaiming his pride in the President last July 15 when he called a part of the President's program a selfish, an idle and a futile gesture?"

Circuit Judge John Prystalski, the organization candidate for county judge in opposition to the incumbent, Edmund K. Jarecki, again attacked his rival's record on the conduct of elections.

Blames Judge for Chaos.

"The election machinery has broken down and a state of emergency exists," Prystalski said. "The errors in the polling lists rest squarely on the shoulders of the present county judge. We face the possibility of the most chaotic primary in the city's history."

Lucas conferred at his headquarters in the Hotel Sherman with Cook county and downstate leaders and then claimed a plurality of more than 250,000 votes in the primary.

"I am confident that three out of every four Democrats in downstate Illinois will support myself and my ticket," Lucas declared. "In some counties straw ballots show us leading 15 to 1. Cook county leaders tell me there has been a tremendous swing to our ticket in the last week and it looks like the Kelly-Nash senatorial candidate will be beaten in his own county.

Says Igoe Has the Jitters.

"There is no surer proof of the swing than the bad case of the jitters that my opponent is showing. He is beginning to call names."

Lucas rested last night but will be back on the platform with other candidates today in four speeches on the south side.

Judge Jarecki accused the Kelly-Nash machine of a vicious plot to discredit permanent registration of voters because of the system's effectiveness in blocking illegal balloting. He characterized Judge Prystalski as the "penthouse parrot" of the bosses.

Lyons, the Republican candidate, in a speech at a banquet in the Hotel Sherman honoring the G. A. R., said the importance of the constitution has never ben more clearly portrayed than in the present world-wide confusion and armed bitterness.

Stop Threats to Constitution.

"What a tower of strength lies in those simple words that created this nation and gave it the rules by which it has survived for 150 years of glorious history," Lyons said. "Simple men have risen to high position under it and always with a sense of humility and thankfulness for the wisdom of the founders of this country that guaranteed the right of independence of thought and action to our people."

Cite Ban on Posters

Political advertising tacked on a tree in front of St. Paul's church, Adams street and Winchester avenue.

Commissioner Allman yesterday directed all district police captains in connection with the political campaign to watch for any violation of the ordinance which regulates the posting of bills and placards. He acted after receiving a complaint from the Metropolitan State Civic council that campaign posters have been put up illegally in many areas.

The ordinance prohibits posting of bills on sidewalks or streets, on poles or trees, on fences or on bridges, and it requires that the owner must consent before bills can be put up on buildings.

"The political workers in all the factions will be warned," the commissioner said.

SINNETT ASSAILS PAY ROLL PADDING TO WIN PRIMARY

Peoria, Ill., April 2.—[U. P.]—Charges that thousands of temporary employés have been added to state pay rolls to aid a Democratic slate of Horner-Courthey candidates for congressional and state offices were made in a campaign speech here last night by former State Representative T. P. Sinnett of Rock Island.

Sinnett, former majority floor leader in the house of representatives for Gov. Henry Horner, said that Horner "apparently feels that the people of downstate are just so many suckers to be fooled by his bunk and hypocrisy."

"At the outset of this campaign I was assured by the governor that this would be a free and open primary," said Sinnett, downstate campaign manager for the rival Igoe-Campbell slate. "However, the governor either has forgotten the statements he made or, driven by desperation, deliberately is ignoring the assurances which he gave me. Only last Saturday we saw all the payrollers being dragged in from all parts of the state, many of them at the expense of the state, to attend a rally in behalf of Gov. Horner's slate. Public service today practically is paralyzed."

Mayor Kelly Proclaims Dress Up for Easter Week

Today begins Dress Up for Easter week by official proclamation of Mayor Kelly. His proclamation was issued yesterday on a request from David Mayer Jr., president of the State Street council. The council is planning two events of its 1938 Easter preview to fall within this week, a fashion forum luncheon on Tuesday, and a fashion show of the smartest costumes for Easter on Thursday. A budget fashion show will be held next Monday. All these events will be in the Palmer house.

ILLINOIS RELIEF LOAD SETS NEW PEAK IN FEBRUARY

The direct relief load in Illinois reached a two year high mark in February with 634,885 persons, or one of every twelve persons in the state receiving aid, it was announced yesterday by the Illinois Emergency Relief commission. The number was the largest since the transfer of relief clients to WPA employment early in 1936.

The total represented an increase of 13,330 cases over January, the smallest monthly upturn in three months. Expanded WPA employment offset the large number of new cases opened. The proportion of the population receiving relief in February ranged from 1.3 per cent in Richland county to 22.8 per cent in Hardin county.

LABOR TO FIGHT ROOSEVELT AIDS AT FALL POLLS

Launches Battle Against C. I. O. League.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 2.—[Special.]—A policy announced today by President William Green of the American Federation of Labor will put the A. F. of L. squarely in opposition to most candidates of the Roosevelt administration in the congressional elections next fall.

William Green.

The policy, adopted by the A. F. of L. executive council, was announced by Green in a blast against the so-called "labor's nonpartisan league," a political adjunct of the C. I. O. It called for the marshaling of A. F. of L. forces against all candidates indorsed by the league who are found to lack proper qualifications for office.

The league supports all the legislative projects and political candidates of the Roosevelt administration, and the A. F. of L. policy therefore is a flank attack on the administration.

League Called C. I. O. Dummy.

Mr. Green's letter, sent to all officers of national and international A. F. of L. unions, state federations of labor, and city central labor unions, assailed the labor league as a ventriloquist's dummy for John L. Lewis, the C. I. O. dictator. The league, Mr. Green said, is devoted chiefly to promoting the personal political ambitions of C. I. O. leaders.

The letter recalled that the league was organized in 1936 to mobilize labor support for the reëlection of President Roosevelt and remained dormant until George L. Berry, its chairman, was appointed to the senate from Tennessee in 1937.

"He was succeeded as chairman of the league by John L. Lewis, dictator of the C. I. O.", Mr. Green wrote. "Sidney Hillman, second in command of the C. I. O., became vice chairman of the league.

League's Activities Change.

"Immediately the character of the league's activities changed. It was announced that the league would become a permanent organization. Statements of league spokesmen indicated they regarded it as the nucleus of an independent political party.

"Overtures were made to farmers' organizations, seeking their coöperation with the league in the formation of a national farmer-labor party. Political writers devoted columns to speculation on how the league could be used to promote the personal political ambitions of C. I. O. leaders.

"At the same time loyal adherents of the American Federation of Labor still allied with the league began to doubt its nonpartisan character.

A. F. of L. Fight Told.

"These doubts were confirmed last fall when the league put its own candidates in the field for local offices. In some cities officials of the C. I. O. were nominated for public office by the league. Bitter contests developed as the local organizations of the American Federation of Labor opposed such candidates. It is gratifying to report that in cities where the local organizations of the American Federation of Labor opposed the candidates of the league the latter were defeated."

THE FAMILY
By CALEB

WE believe "the family" to be the keystone of civilization. And the home is, we believe, the great perpetuator of the family. One of the reasons we like being in our business is because it privileges us to make a constructive contribution to the maintenance of the American home.

In no phase of human activity do people have greater opportunity for self-expression than in their homes. True, that opportunity is sometimes limited by considerations of money, location, and space. But taste, love of home, and resourcefulness will evidence themselves sooner or later, if they exist.

It has been our opportunity to see how homes evolve. Years ago we were looked to for the furnishing of a small apartment by a young married couple of modest means. They would admit today it evidenced little of forethought and taste. But the time came when the possessions in that home were gradually replaced by better things. Taste was blossoming and maturing.

We supplied to this family a little bed and a carriage for a baby. The little home was coming to typify the great American home, made more self-reliant, more self-contained, more self-appreciative through experience.

The first apartment was outgrown—and the next was outgrown. Recently we played our part in furnishing the dwelling which marks the sixth step forward in the evolution of this family's home. Money restrictions are no longer important. Location and space are no handicaps to this family. But they still have several of the simple, beautiful pieces of furniture and bric-a-brac selected for their small second home.

The history of this family's home building is written in the records of this store. But more than that, the history of this nation is written in the records of thousands of other families in this and in other stores. For what people sacrifice in order to improve their homes—what people will struggle to obtain in order to better their homes—is the measure of both culture and the solidarity of the family. And the family, we repeat, is the keystone of civilization.

We are proud that this is a family store, appealing to all the members, young and old, of both small and large families. It enables us to help make fine homes, regardless of their size or the affluence of the families which occupy them.

NASH PROTESTS; JARECKI CRIES 'FALSE ALARM'

Democrat Chief Demands New Vote Lists.

Democratic factional leaders fired more shots last night in their battle over the alleged inaccuracy of the recent registration. Both P. A. Nash, Cook county central committee chairman, and County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki issued statements on the subject.

The issue is the charge by the regular Democratic organization, headed by Nash, that the printed lists of registered voters are full of glaring inaccuracies in that many names of qualified voters have been omitted.

Charges Jumble and Mess.

In his statement, Nash declared the election board had jumbled and messed the registration, and announced that his organization would file a petition demanding a thorough accounting. In reply, Judge Jarecki, who is seeking renomination under the Horner-Courtney banner, accused the Nash organization of trying to confuse the voters, and promised every qualified voter the right to vote.

Nash said his contemplated petition for an accounting was prompted by a desire for an honest primary election April 12. The petition, he said, will demand first, that accurate poll lists be published; second, that a search be made of registration boxes in all polling places to show whether the names omitted from the printed lists are actually in the boxes, and third, that a search be made of the master cards in the election board offices to show whether the names omitted from the printed lists are on file.

Holds Poll Lists Are Vital.

"The permanent registration law's provision on poll lists, which have been so shockingly manhandled by the election commissioners, is as vital, if not more so, than anything else in the act," Nash said. "We are going to insist that the jumbled situation be rectified at once."

To this, Judge Jarecki replied that his opponents were resorting to political trickery to befuddle the voters. The Nash-Kelly organization, he said, had opposed the permanent registration law, and now that organization wants to control the registration records created by the law they had opposed.

"The printed polling lists are not the official records," said Judge Jarecki. "Mr. Nash and Mr. Kelly know this. The original cards in the election offices are the only legal records."

3,000 Get on Poll Lists.

Nearly 3,000 persons appearing at the election board offices yesterday and last night established their right to vote. Their names were stricken from the suspect lists. This brought to 4,500 the total of those whose names were so stricken since Wednesday and meant that 24,000 others, who had been sent suspect notices, had been disqualified.

During the day state's attorney's men and election board investigators questioned James Reilley and Chris Antes, precinct captains in the 42d ward for the regular organization, about charges that they had intercepted 25 suspect letters. They denied doing so. Eugene J. O'Connor, chief election investigator, said, however, he would lay the matter before the postal authorities.

Lotus—in Person

Lotus, lady hippo, standing for her portrait at Los Angeles.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 2.—[Special.]—One of the prize specimens of the Barnes-Sells-Floto circus here is Lotus, the lady hippo, who is scarcely as flowerlike as her name implies. But, like the flower, she thrives in water, taking two baths a day of 500 gallons apiece. She will eat anything that is dropped into her capacious mouth. Although she is known as the "Flower of the Nile," she is very much unlike Cleopatra, in that she has no time for men.

WOMEN'S REPORT ON VOTE FRAUDS BLAMES JARECKI

County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki, a candidate for renomination, was criticized yesterday in a 66 page report on election frauds occurring in the four year period ending last month. The report was made by Mrs. Harriet M. Robertson, president of the Women's Civic council.

In a letter to Judge Jarecki, Mrs. Robertson stated that he has appointed hundreds of judges and clerks of election who have police or criminal records or who have been prosecuted for election frauds. She charged that he permitted the withdrawal of warants for the arrest of such officials accused of flagrant violations, and often reappointed them.

"In view of the facts and circumstances we have on file, we conclude that failure to enforce the election laws is largely the reason for your failure to provide honest elections," Mrs. Robertson wrote.

The council, comprised of representatives of a number of women's organizations, has investigated election irregularities since 1922.

VAN NUYS FINDS STATE OPPOSES DICTATOR BILL

Contrary to Democratic Ideals, Says Senator.

Indianapolis, Ind., April 2.—[Special.]—After spending two weeks consulting Indiana voters, United States Senator Frederick Van Nuys left this afternoon for Washington prepared to report to the Hoosier congressional delegation that Indiana does not want the governmental reorganization measure to become a law.

"I was opposed to the bill from the time of its introduction," he said. "It is as antagonistic to the fundamental principles of our constitutional government as was the late court packing bill.

Revived by Pressure.

"As an old fashioned Jeffersonian Democrat, I shall oppose all attempts to break down the freedom and independence of our three coördinate branches of government. We had it beaten three weeks ago in the senate until administrative and departmental pressure saved it temporarily."

The senator charged that the administration, desperately hopeful of enacting the reorganization measure, actually threatened withdrawal of big public work projects in order to whip certain senators into line.

Van Nuys recalled that Senator Harry F. Byrd of Virginia offered numerous amendments looking to economy and reform in our bureaucratic form of government, and that all were defeated.

Slaps at Waste Control.

"One of the vicious provisions of the bill relates to the controler general's office," said Van Nuys. "One of the great restraining influences against illegal and wasteful expenditures of public funds has been that office. Warants issued by the treasury department could not be delivered or cashed until such office had passed on their legality.

"Under this bill such audits on warants are to be made after payment and not before.

"Why, for goodness sake, make an audit after the money already has been spent? The value of the office is in the fact that the controler general audited and disallowed payment of illegal warants beforehand."

Phi Kappa Psi Alumni Frolic at Annual Party

Alumni from six states were in attendance at the annual Bachelors' and Benedicts' ball, given by the Chicago Alumni association of Phi Kappa Psi fraternity last night in the Belmont hotel, 3156 Sheridan road.

ELECTED COLLEGE BOARD HEAD.

Jacksonville, Ill., April 2.—[Special.]—Attorney Harry J. Dunbaugh of Chicago, a member of the class of 1899, was elected chairman of the Illinois college board of trustees at a special meeting today. He succeeds Dr. Edward Baxter, who resigned last year.

READY TO START WORK ON W-G-N RADIATOR TOWER

Height of 750 Ft. Record for Chicagoland.

same part in radio transmission as the antenna wires strung between twin towers have played in the past. In other words, the whole tower from porcelain base to the topmost cross section at 750 feet radiates signals through the sky. Similarly ground waves are projected through an elaborate system of radiating ground wires.

Both the ground waves and the waves transmitted through the air meet in the receiving sets of the nation, completing the transmission. A single radio impulse automatically sets in motion both types of radio waves.

In the past the sky waves have been dominant. Engineers have made much effort to reduce the sky waves' potency and at the same time to make the ground waves more efficacious, because a better balance has helped to narrow those listening regions where fading has been most noticeable. The new type transmitter is expected to give at least a 40 per cent stronger signal. Thus in areas where reception has been only fair, satisfactory listening results may now be expected.

Radials Plowed Under Ground.

For the ground transmission system 120 radials are used, extending outward like the spokes of a wheel to a distance of 750 feet from the base of the tower. These radials are strips of copper wire plowed 8 inches or so beneath the surface. This installation and the foundations for the tower already have been completed.

The tower will be surmounted by flasher beacons at all 3 corners, producing alternate luminous periods of one second and darkness of one-half second. The lights of aviation red [an orange red] will be inclosed in prismatic globes. There will be other lights at 100 foot intervals from 650 feet downward.

Ickes Names Chicagoans on National Parks Board

Washington, D. C., April 2.—(AP)—Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes named two Chicago men today to assist the national park service formulate policies and practices for recreational areas throughout the country. Charles E. Hendry, an official of the American Camping association, will serve on a national advisory committee on camping. Carl J. Schroeder, a member of the Prairie club, will assist in mapping hiking programs.

Cloistered No Longer

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Francine Bordeaux yesterday as she began enjoying her new won freedom.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 2.—By court decree Hollywood's "cloistered blonde" was back into circulation today. Superior Judge Thomas Gould ruled Francine Bordeaux, comely French actress known on the New York stage as Nanette Bordeaux, now is free to select her own men friends, choose her own clothing and reading matter, and generally lead her own life without chaperonage.

Mlle. Bordeaux could not do these things under a film contract she signed last September with Sara Parsons and Robert Mack. So she sued. Judge Gould decided these sections, if ever valid, became void at the end of a six month "psycho-dramatic" period of training.

DOCTOR PREDICTS PERSHING WILL REGAIN HEALTH

Gen. John J. Pershing, who was critically ill in February, is recovering so rapidly he probably will be completely restored to health in a short time. This forecast was made yesterday by Dr. Roland Davison of Tucson, Ariz., personal physician to the general, who was a visitor in Chicago.

Dr. Davison said Gen. Pershing, who is still in the Desert sanatorium at Tucson, leaves his bed for at least two hours a day and is permitted to walk around his room. The physician reiterated a prediction that Gen. Pershing will be able to attend the wedding of his son, Warren, in New York April 22.

Head of Music Fraternity Is Entertained at Dinner

Miss Gertrude Evans of Ithaca, N. Y., national president of Sigma Alpha Iota, music fraternity for women, was a guest last night at a dinner of the Gamma chapter of the fraternity in the Lake Shore Athletic club. Mrs. May Saunders, vice president of the group, spoke and new members were initiated.

SPRING IN NORTH, BUT IT'S HARVEST TIME IN FLORIDA

Miami, Fla., April 2.—[Special.]—It may be spring on the official weather calendars, but it is harvest home time for the business men and lawyers of the Florida winter resorts.

For Florida has become the southern mecca for tired wives and husbands who want divorces. Since the state's famous 90 day residence bill was passed three years ago, liberalizing an already elastic divorce law, Florida has come to rival Reno as the divorce capital of America.

And March is the month when the rich harvest of divorces reaches fruition. Not only the end of the recognized social season, it conveniently marks the end of the three months necessary to establish residence for a quick and easy divorce.

Old Florida Custom.

Attesting the popularity of this new time saver are the ever increasing percentages being rolled up in the county courthouses here and in neighboring Palm Beach. And in the back country, the increase is just as prevalent for its an old Florida custom to file suit in a small country town where a socially prominent name means no more than a hot day.

At an average rate of 10 a day nearly 300 suits have been filed here in the Dade county courthouse. The all time record was established on March 5 with 57. The March total surpasses February by 15 per cent, and February was higher than the 221 filed in January.

For the first quarter of the year the increase is 30 per cent over 1937. It's been that way since 1935, when the bill was passed. In March 252 divorces were granted, a 100 per cent increase over January.

Double in Palm Beach.

And so it goes over in Palm Beach. Although not as many suits are being filed there, the increase is better than 100 per cent compared with last year.

When Florida cut the residence requirement to 90 days, the state already was known for its liberal grounds for divorce. There are seven such causes, including the usual ones of desertion, cruelty, and adultery, but the most popular and the easiest to prove is that which makes an habitual, violent, and ungovernable temper a reason why divorce should be granted.

Easy divorces were invented to attract the wealthy, as any business man or state official will admit.

Spencer Suit Pending.

One of the most spectacular is pending at Palm Beach, where Howland Spencer of New York and Newport sued his wife, Emiline. Spencer contends she sued for divorce in Newport and obtained an injunction preventing him from using his property in the Crum Elbow corporation.

Mrs. Spencer, in a cross bill, replied that she is more than 75 years old and in delicate health. Her husband, she added, is only 45 and in the prime of life, but has a violent temper.

Then there is the case of Pauline Munn Doyle, daughter of Charles A. Munn of Palm Beach, and Mrs. Jacques Allez of Paris. For the second time Mrs. Doyle wants to divorce M. Dorland [Larry] Doyle, who is a guest at the Donahue villa in Palm Beach.

Hardly was the ink dry on a decree for the Baldwin Day Spilmans of New York when Mr. Spilman remarried. Mrs. Spilman, who formerly was Mrs. Wallace Shaffer of New York, said he was a nice man when he was sober.

Wound Incurred on First Crime Foray Kills Youth

A youth who was shot a week ago on his first foray into crime, died yesterday in the County hospital. He is Rene Zoppa, 17 years old, 1415 South Pulaski road. Arthur Evertson, 19, of 1421 South Kedvale avenue, has admitted, police said, that he held the revolver when it was accidentally discharged, wounding Zoppa. Evertson is one of seven young men in custody at the Austin station who, police said, admitted twenty robberies.

FROST WARNING STIRS GARDENERS; PLANTS COVERED

Gardeners in the Chicago region were busy covering tender plants yesterday to protect them against possible damage, after heavy frost was forecast for the night. Sashes were closed over hotbeds and cold frames where flower and vegetable seeds are sprouting. Many gardeners put glass jars or newspapers over peonies, phlox, and other perenials in open yards and gardens. Tulips, hyacinths, and other bulbous plants were covered.

Frank Balthis, horticulturist at Garfield park conservatory, said spiraea, bush honeysuckle, and some current bushes in city parks and home gardens might be injured by a freeze. They have budded out much earlier than usual.

Temperatures as low as 28 degrees during the night were forecast by J. R. Lloyd. Chilly northwest breezes held the temperature down in the thirties most of yesterday in spite of the sunshine. Winds are expected to shift to the southwest today, bringing a warmer spell to Chicago.

IF THERE is one word in the dictionary which the Ford Motor Company might rightfully reserve to its own use, that word is ECONOMY.

Thirty years ago, when the automobile was commonly called "a rich man's toy," Henry Ford set out alone to put the world on wheels.

THE FIRST FORD POLICY

It was then he said: "I will build a motor car for the multitude. It will be constructed of the best materials, by the best men to be hired, after the simplest designs that modern engineering can devise. But it will be so low in price that any man making ordinarily good wages can own one." That fundamental Ford policy has never changed.

In the early years, when it was necessary to build small 4-cylinder cars in order to assure economy, Henry Ford built and sold small 4-cylinder cars—in large quantities.

But when the fast-growing facilities of the Ford Motor Company reached a point where it was possible to build larger, finer V-type 8-cylinder cars and keep small-car economy—Henry Ford did that—again alone. It is one reason why more 1937 Fords were bought than any other make.

TWO NEW FORD CARS

For 1938, two Ford cars are offered you. One is the De Luxe Ford with the 85-horsepower V-8 engine—still an economical car to own and operate. It has richer appointments, and the advantages born of 30 years of building good automobiles. Closed sedans have longer bodies, with more room.

The other is the Standard Ford, with a choice of 85-horsepower or 60-horsepower V-8 engine. It has the basic Ford advantages of the De Luxe, and it is built on the same 112-inch wheelbase chassis, to the same high standard of mechanical excellence. But it is lower priced, and with the thrifty "60" engine, it provides the lowest operating cost in all Ford history.

You are invited to see and drive the De Luxe and Standard Ford cars now on display at your local Ford dealership—to prove for yourself that ECONOMY is a FORD word.

UNUSUAL STEPS TAKEN TO ABATE SMOKE NUISANCE

Arrange for Discharge High in Air.

In a north side residential neighborhood and in an industrial district of the southwest side unusual steps are being taken to abate the smoke nuisance by arranging to discharge the smoke high in the air.

On the north side an underground tunnel is being built to carry smoke from a three story building at 425 Oakdale avenue to the inside boiler chimney of its fifteen story neighbor at 431 so that smoke from the smaller building will not pour in the upper windows of 431. This is said to be the only tunnel of its kind in the city.

The 431 Oakdale building now is carrying the smoke load of three smaller neighbors by other means. Pipes connect the chimneys of a seven story building at 426 Surf street and a four story building at 428 Surf street with an outside chimney of No. 431.

A similar pipe crossing a driveway at head level connects the incinerator tube of 431 with a three story building at No. 435 Oakdale avenue.

Raise Height of Stacks.

The other project will be started in a few days on the Commonwealth Edison company power plant at 3501 South Pulaski road. As the result of wind-tunnel tests by scientists, four chimneys will be raised 55 feet to a height of 300 feet from the ground [220 feet above the roof] and their diameters narrowed to discharge the noxious pall of smoke and sulphur gas where it can be easily dissipated.

In 1927 the four stacks were raised 75 feet higher but smoke and gas remained a nuisance. The assistance of University of Michigan professors was sought. From their experiments with a wind tunnel, in which actual conditions at the plant were duplicated, plans for the new improvements were made. The cost is estimated at $130,000.

Speed Dissipation of Smoke.

By running the exhaust fans at a much higher speed the smoke and gas will be discharged at a velocity of 60 feet per second instead of the present rate of 30 to 35 feet. This, Chambers said, will eliminate a down draft on the lee side of the stacks which now carries the fumes to the ground very quickly.

Both improvements are being undertaken under the supervision of Frank A. Chambers, head of the city department of smoke inspection and abatement. Work on the north side tunnel has started. It will be constructed of tile, 101 feet long and 12 inches in diameter.

Fight Smoke Pall

SURVEY SHOWS TRIBUNE LEADS COLOR PRINTING

New York Papers Trail Far Behind.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 2.—[Special.]—Color printing, that bright new medium of the graphic arts, is practically a stranger to the pages of daily newspapers published in New York City.

The multi-colored display of advertisments and cartoons, the field in which THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE has pioneered and made great strides, is almost nonexistent here.

This is the process known as "run of paper color," printed on newsprint when the paper goes to press. It is distinguished from the established rotogravure, magazine, and comic sections, which are made up beforehand.

Survey Shows Contrast.

The contrast is shown by a survey of color printing in the daily and Sunday newspapers of 100 cities just completed by Media Records, Inc. The canvass covered 1936 and 1937 and disclosed a 17 per cent increase in "run of paper color" volume last year over 1936.

According to this survey, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE carried 378,200 lines of "run of paper color," and THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE carried 456,850 lines. The total lineage for the two years was 835,050.

In contrast to this volume was the 125,577 lines for all papers in New York City during the two years.

Mere Splash of Color Noted.

It should be noted in this connection that Media Records included any ad in the "run of paper color" classification that contained a splash or spot of any color other than black and white.

A considerable portion of the lineage for the papers here was accounted for by the ads of a big department store because they bore a red star.

The first running of several colors in an ad here was on Dec. 15, 1935.

None appears in any daily edition of a New York paper. At the same time, none of the local newspapers offers anything comparable to the Graphic section of THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE.

Two Color Ad Printed in 1929.

Recalling some newspaper history, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE printed the first two color ad on Jan. 7, 1929, and the first two color front page cartoon on May 5, 1932. The first three color cartoon appeared in the editions of April 4, 1933, and four colors appeared on Oct. 30, 1936. THE TRIBUNE carried its first three color ad on Feb. 19, 1932.

In the opinion of observers, the primary reason why New York papers still are in the bush leagues on color, so to speak, is the general resistance in the east to things new and novel.

SEEK TO SETTLE CAROL G. DISPUTE WITHOUT TRIAL

An attempt to reach an out of court settlement in the child custody fight between Albert Sellner Gardner and his former wife, Carol De Windt Gardner, will be made this week, attorneys for both sides informed Judge John J. Lupe yesterday. Mrs. Gardner, as "Carol G.," was co-respondent with David J. Wood, Winnetka fire captain, in a separate maintenance suit brought last fall by Mrs. Wood.

Gardner won a divorce on a charge of desertion last November and was awarded custody of his two children, Carol, 15 years old, and William, 13, but allowed them to remain with their mother at 345 East Russell street, Barrington. On March 25 Gardner attacked the fitness of his former wife to have the children, testifying that in 1928 she admitted misconduct with a man identified only as "Mr. X."

Yesterday the case was continued to April 9 when attorneys indicated an agreement might be reached. Gardner is represented by Robert E. Cantwell Jr. and Mrs. Gardner's lawyer is Lloyd Faxon.

FORD WILL RECEIVE TRIBUTES OF 500,000 ON GOLDEN WEDDING

Detroit, Mich., April 2.—[Special.]—On April 11 Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ford will celebrate their golden wedding and that day Mr. Ford will receive a signed tribute from half a million of his admirers from all sections of the country.

The tribute will consist of a petition two miles long, which will be wound on a giant reel for dedication ceremonies April 12 in the Greenfield village theater.

Prepared and circulated by the Pioneer Club of Dearborn, the petition condemns attacks made on Mr. Ford by leaders of labor unions and others and is addressed to the President of the United States.

SUES CREDIT AGENCY.

Roy J. Anderson, owner of the Medical Supply company, 160 North Wells street, filed suit for $25,000 in the Circuit court against Dun & Bradstreet, financial report service. The bill alleged that the defendants printed an unfavorable report on Andersen's concern on April 3, 1937, which resulted in a business loss.

CONTINENTAL DEFENSE.

It is generally accepted that the United States would come to the assistance of Canada if our neighbor were invaded. On that assumption it is obviously advisable that plans for assistance and coöperation should be prepared in advance. It is also advisable that the fact of our coöperative preparedness be made known, for it would go far toward rendering aggression unlikely.

Both nations rejoice in relations which are assurance of no attack from each other. They are proud of their unfortified boundary. But to foreign attack on either country the unfortified boundary constitutes an open flank. The strength of our army and its equipment and of our navy and air forces is such that no enemy would venture landing on our shores. An enemy attacking the United States from the east would land in Canada and Canada would be the first battleground. If a formidable power or combination of powers should undertake operations on this side of the Atlantic, the Gulf of St. Lawrence is a wide open door. Canada has no navy. The door would have to be closed by the navy of the United States. But there are no bases in the St. Lawrence waters and a fleet cannot operate without bases. Bases for capital ships cannot be improvised, and the American ships would have to operate at a distance from their bases that would seriously if not fatally reduce their efficiency. Against an enemy attacking Canada from the west Alaska and the Aleutians form a natural barrier. In the face of a Canadian-American agreement no enemy of Canada would dare pass them by.

The trend of events in Europe gives warning to Americans, both of Canada and the United States, that they cannot rely upon the factors which have justified their defense programs of the past. Canada has relied upon the power of the British fleet and upon the assured friendship and strength of its American neighbor, But though the latter remain, the course of events in Europe has put the former in a new light as a factor in Canadian defense and therefore in American defense policy. The United States cannot afford to gamble on the ability of the British navy to protect Canada in all circumstances. Great Britain has interests and responsibilities that must take precedence over Canadian defense. At her very door military powers are growing apace and combinations are making which threaten the imperial system and even the safety of her own shores. With the relative decline of British power Canada must find in the United States her final defense.

The American and Canadian governments should not procrastinate on this important duty. They ought to confer without delay and work out a system of coöperative defenses. A treaty should be entered into providing the necessary legal basis for operations on their respective territories in specified circumstances, and proper provision should be made for bases and fortified points. If this is achieved the protection of the continent from invasion or formidable attack would be virtually impregnable.

THE CAMERA AND THE COURTS.

Pictures of well dressed and apparently intelligent young women who have had their husbands imprisoned for nonpayment of alimony or are moving the court to imprison them often appear in the newspapers. A committee of the American Bar association has recommended that newspapers agree to publish no pictures of court proceedings or be prohibited from doing so by law.

We suggest that such publication is good public policy as often giving information to the public which the public has a right to have and which printed report cannot give so effectively. The abuses of alimony have given rise to increasing protest, but they are protected by assumptions as to the justice of alimony which are not in accord with flagrant facts. The wholesale and admirable disposition of America to protect womanhood is often exploited by designing women and their unscrupulous legal advisers, with the result of rank injustice to men. This is the alimony racket which scandalously prevails in this country.

There is no respectable objection to proper provision for the woman who has resorted to divorce on good grounds and is unable to provide for herself. There is no objection to proper provision for the support of children. But these proper and desirable provisions should not be perverted, as they are constantly being perverted, to insure a comfortable or even luxurious living to young women quite capable of earning their own livelihood at the expense of men with whom they have severed all connections save that of cash. The picture in the minds of many well disposed people is that of an elderly woman who by the fault of her husband has been compelled to leave him and finds herself without means of support or ability to obtain it. This is alimony in the common view. The other picture, often ignored, is that of a young woman enjoying life without effort at the expense of a man to whom she gives nothing in return.

This is a form of endowment which it is neither justice nor public policy to permit. It presents a largely unrecognized aspect of our divorce law the abuses of which have waited too long for correction. These abuses will be corrected only when the public conscience has brought home to it a sense of the wrongs done. There may be an interest among a certain sort of lawyer in postponing that day and reaping the profits of existing abuses, but the bar should not assist. Publicity may be and sometimes is abused, but it is, nevertheless, the strongest and most reliable support for the integrity of the courts, for the correction of abuses, and for the enlightenment of the community.

DOING SOMETHING ABOUT THE WEATHER.

Something can be done about the weather and it would be only incidental to other tremendous improvements made at the same time for the betterment of human conditions. Fear of war may produce this residue of good, particularly if people get increasingly scared of bombardments and of the front line position in which civilians find themselves.

In a celebrated mining village in England the inhabitants live underground and infrequently come to the surface. Their homes, schools, recreation grounds, and places of amusement are on the lower levels, and it is said that they have learned to pity the less fortunate residents of the island who lead an uneven and unregulated existence on the surface. Underground they make their own reliable substitute for sunlight, they make their own weather, and they regard themselves as emancipated people.

It is improbable that war can drive people underground, but fear of it might do so. Modern war is reverting to the ethics of ancient and medieval war. The civilian, if he wants to look at it this way, is just as good as the soldier. He's a part of the war. Precautions for civil life now include a gas mask for the perambulator, a bombproof where the rock garden and pool used to be, and a sealed room in the house as a refuge during raids. These are nuisances and probably worthless. Instead of adding to the sum of human enjoyment they subtract from it and even as precautions they are constant aggravations of alarmist views.

If cities, towns, and villages, and indeed all habitations were underground, the citizens would have their homes where weather would cease to be an unpredictable element in human affairs, where climate would be controled by gadgets, light by buttons, and all activities would be emancipated from heretofore uncontrollable petty annoyances. The air would be cleansed. Trafic problems would be solved, no ball games would be called on account of rain, promoters of athletic and theatrical events, merchants and advertisers would not watch the weather forecasts and the sky, and, if it is worth anything to the peace of mind, an enemy would have a weasel's job to get into the warrens.

The surface of the country, as may be imagined, would be delightful. It would be entirely of agricultural lands, forests, and, if desired, traversed with roads for use in times of decent weather and peace. If an urban dweller wanted a change and a day in the country all he would need would be to take the steps or an elevator, and on coming to the surface he would be in the wheat, corn, park or lake country. He would have everything that he has now plus his new world in which he was complete boss.

The area of the country would be about doubled for useful purposes and the baby wouldn't have to learn how to put on a gas mask if he and his nurse or mamma were out taking the air, or if he were awakened in his cradle by the sound of the air alarm. The only drawback to this imaginative study of future developments is that the harassed peoples may not be really scared enough to be forced into the better life into which would come no excessive heat, no excessive cold, no rain or snow where they were not wanted, and probably no noxious gases or shell fragments.

Editorial of the Day

HOW ABOUT HOME MISSIONS?

[Baltimore Evening Sun.]

Two eminent Americans made statements yesterday through the public journals.

President Raymond B. Fosdick of the Rockefeller institute reported that the work of his organization is being hampered by new international barriers against the advancement of knowledge. He said:

> We find ourselves stopped at some frontiers—not because the frontiers have any greater geographical significance than they had a few years ago, but because behind them the search for truth by eager and skeptical minds has been made impossible. Disinterested research cannot survive in an atmosphere of compulsion and repression.

On the same day, in the April number of the Survey Graphic, appeared an article by Thomas Parran, surgeon general of the United States public health service, in which he declared:

> If as concentrated an attack were made against syphilis as has been made against the boll weevil, we could stamp it out as a public health menace in half a generation.

The great obstacle to the conquest of both syphilis and tuberculosis—that is, their conquest as public health problems—according to Dr. Parran, is partly lack of trained personnel, but in larger measure lack of the necessary tools for the personnel already available, particularly Negro physicians. A Negro country doctor might be as skilful as Galen, but if he had no hospital, no medicines, and no instruments he couldn't do much toward stamping out these plagues.

With so much need at home, why should the Rockefeller institute be upset by frontier barriers? If its work among the Chinese, Austrians, Ecuadoreans, Lapps and Sudanese is cut off, why doesn't it concentrate its effort and its money on Americans?

LEGION SERVICE.

[Peoria Journal-Transcript.]

Leonard Applequist, Illinois department commander of the American Legion, visited Peoria this week on a good will tour, the purpose of which was "to break down the propaganda that the American Legion is a selfish organization." The commander declares that the veterans' group "is built on a foundation of unselfish service."

To these contentions there can be no denial. The Legion had its inception in wartime service. In the ensuing years it fought just as ardently for the preservation of American democracy, for the veterans are arch-enemies of communism and Nazlism.

Legionnaires have been active in social service and are always among the first to offer their services in time of flood, tornado or other disaster.

Whatever charges of selfishness have been leveled against the Legion have arisen from its advocacy of prepayment of the bonus and of increased veterans' pensions. There has been a feeling among veterans that while the federal government is handing out billions of dollars they might as well get their share. But the Legion might better concern itself with the grave problem of government solvency and call for general economy.

On the whole the veterans have been no more selfish than other groups in the population; their service has been greater.

INSIDE MEXICO

[BY A STAF CORRESPONDENT.]
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Second Article.

THE FARM.

MEXICO CITY.—American visitors to Mexico often shudder and like to believe themselves shocked to recall that when Cortes and his soldiers conquered the natives they also took their land. That was in the early sixteenth century.

When the English came to America a hundred years had elapsed. The English had plenty of time to reflect upon the shocking situation in Mexico. If they did so reflect it didn't make much of a dent in their moral structure. The American Indian who once owned everything from Maine to California now is a tolerated tenant in the backwashes of that empire.

The Mexican Indian is still on the land. Something more than four hundred years has brought about a change. When Cortes arrived there were eight million natives. The population now is more than 16 millions. There are only twice as many persons in Mexico today as four hundred years ago. In the United States we have sprung from nothing to 130 millions.

It is hard to divide the Mexican from the Indian. The Mexican is a mixture of Spanish and Indian. The low estimate of Indian population is four millions. The low estimate of Mexicans is 8 million 5 hundred thousand. This would make a total of more than 12 millions. The remainder would be white Spanish and foreigners. There probably are not three millions of Spanish. Also, no one knows precisely where to leave off counting Indians and where to begin counting Mexicans.

Any Mexican will explain that Indians also are Mexicans. But remember again that there are more than two millions of Indians who do not speak Spanish. Spanish is the language of the country. This may be a good place to introduce a colloquy with a Mexican.

Q.—Why is there such a feeling against the Spaniards?

A.—For the same reason that you Americans do not like the English; they do not speak our language.

This is interesting but not conclusive. Yet it is true that Mexican-Spanish is not true Spanish. The true Spanish language is full of lisps and semi-liquids. The Mexicans have dropped the lisps. They have modified the liquids. It is the Mexican language and Mexicans do not like people who speak affectedly; which reminds you of the chipped-off Oxford English which a British nobleman articulates through his incisors and which we laugh at in the movies.

The point the above Mexican was trying to make is this: the English with their toothy way of speaking drove the Indians off their land; and the Spaniards with their lisp did the same thing to the Aztecs.

Now you know the Mexican inspiration for revolution. It was not so much a revolution to gain something as it was a revolution against something. The revolutions have been against the Spanish. The Spanish were violent, but they knew how to organize a large farm and make it pay. Now the Indians have the farms, but whether they pay is a question of how much they want to eat.

An American was journeying in north central Mexico. He was anxious to see what progress was being made following the division of Spanish lands among the Indian farmers. He visited one of the Indians who had been given 160 acres by the government.

"How much land are you farming?" asked the visitor.

"Fifteen acres," said the Indian.

"Only fifteen acres and you have 160 acres?"

"Yes," said the Indian wearily. "It is all I need. Why should I plow all the land when we cannot eat so much?"

Five years later the same visitor called upon the same Indian farmer. "How much land are you farming now?" he asked.

"Thirty acres," replied the Indian. "You see we have three children."

This is not a remote instance. It is the common feeling among the Mexican small farmers. They are interested in producing enough food, but no more. They do not understand the idea of laying up something for a rainy day nor for a commerce wider than the nearest market.

The market is dear to the soul of the Indian; and to most Mexicans. Only a little money is used. Barter and exchange control nearly all of the transactions. However, here is a typical instance:

A farmer goes to market under a burden that would give an American the sciatica in a week. He may carry this towering load of produce twenty miles. One of his possessions is a chicken. Now, one of the chief charms of the market is the chance for almost unending conversation. The sun is brilliant, the climate grateful, the market is filled with fellow human beings with no more extensive an ambition than his own and the whole business is done in the open roadway. Let it be repeated that the market is in the open roadway, which makes it Fourth of July for all the microbes and flies and disease germs which can float comfortably on each erring breeze.

Commerce is carried on in vegetables and fruits and meats and trinkets and every imaginable kind of handicraft. The vegetables and fruits are artistically displayed in little pyramids. The meats, in every condition from raw to completely cooked, are shown on the hoof, in the skin, and ready to serve; all in the open. The smell of a Mexican kitchen is something to reside in your offended nostrils for many days. It is almost anæsthetic. It clings and pursues and seems to be digging in for the winter. The Mexicans like it.

Well, our Indian farmer whom we left up the road now has reached the market. He carries the chicken to one of the shops which is not concerned with the open market, but which supplies the town and tourist trade. After a satisfactory amount of haggling the farmer comes away with a few coins. Some of the coins he may exchange for goods in that same shop. Others he will use for buying small quantities of pepper and salt and lumps of sugar.

Now he is ready for the market. This institution is not related to the industry of the town, but is solely for the Indian peasantry. It serves two purposes. One of these is to display wares. The other is to barter.

Barter is the soul of a Mexican Indian. He had rather haggle all afternoon over trading a tomato for a turnip than see the battle of Waterloo. Well, he has seen lots of battles. But now our farmer has reached the market. Perhaps he wants tomatoes. So he sits down in the roadway beside another farmer who has brought tomatoes to the market.

"How many tomatoes for three lumps of sugar?"

"Two."

"No, this is fine sugar; I want three tomatoes."

The debate is now well under way. It may go on for many minutes or many hours. The tomato man may come up to two and a half tomatoes; if so, he cleaves the fruit in half, takes the sugar, and it's a deal. Our farmer now goes to another with oranges. So when the day is done he has what he wants.

And he can't understand why any one wouldn't want to be a farmer in Mexico. The Mexican farmer cannot be described in one column. If you are interested see this space next Sunday.

NO PLACE LIKE HOME—FOR ACCIDENTS.

We are likely to think that accidents—especially those attended with fatalities or even severe injuries—take place largely on the highways and in industry. Contrary to this belief, home casualties last year accounted for 39,000 deaths and 170,000 others badly maimed or crippled. In other words, the home is no safer relatively than those areas which we consider as carrying a graver peril.

About half of the mishaps are due to falls—many among elderly persons. Carpets and rugs have a way of becoming misplaced or wrinkled, sight may not be keen enough to see objects over which one may stumble, and the muscles may fail to respond quickly enough so that the body can be righted in time to prevent disaster. Highly polished floors, rooms that are dark, poorly illuminated corridors or stairways—all contribute their quota. One may even tumble out of bed and sustain a fracture. Here dizziness, which probably comes from hardened arteries in the balancing apparatus of the inner ear, is often the cause. It would be a great boon for many if beds were not over a foot and a half above the floor.

There is danger incident to standing on chairs, boxes, or even the handy household ladder that may occasionally tip or slide. Many a crash has occurred because the housewife will insist upon carrying an armload of boxes up or down stairways. The pile may be so high that the steps cannot be seen. Then we have to watch stair rails and floor coverings. If a small rug must be used on a highly polished floor at the top or bottom of a flight, sacrifice the fabric, if need be, with a few tacks to render it secure.

Burns and scalds are encountered more often with children—those under 5 years of age. Matches are so alluring—even those that are of the safety variety—and each low smoking stand may furnish a plentiful supply. The kitchen, too, is a point of great interest. Handles of dishes containing boiling liquids should never be allowed to project over the edge of the stove where they may be grasped by the youngster. It goes without saying that a fire should never be started—particularly in the kitchen range—with kerosene or gasoline. An explosion all too frequently results. In this same connection, gasoline as a cleaning fluid is far too risky for home use. Smoking in bed is responsible for many a conflagration.

The medicine cabinet should be out of reach of all but the knowing ones and every container, bottle, or box should be labeled in large letters. A drug that may be used safely by father or mother may be poisonous to a child. If a member of the household is taken ill during the night, and home remedies are desired, make certain that the light is adequate so that the label may be read clearly. Sometimes the wrong bottle is seized due to haste, or excitement. It is the height of folly to keep insect poisons, cleaning fluids, disinfectants, etc., in the bathroom. They should be placed on a high shelf in the cellarway or in a closet.

We should, of course, be careful about the heating apparatus. Hot water in the home comes usually from a separate heater which should be carefully vented—that is, so that the exhaust fumes may find their way into an outside chimney. Pots and pans that boil over on the range may extinguish the flame but not stop the flow of gas; and, now and then, curious little fingers will open the nickle-plated faucets just as they will turn on hot water in the lavatory.

Bathroom hazards are numerous. Porcelain or tile tubs are slippery and a rubber mat on the floor of the tub is an inexpensive safeguard. It should be sufficiently rough so that even soapy feet will not skid. Be sure that there are plenty of handles that can be grasped when leaving the bath.

Finally, babies require some supervision even when asleep. Our little tots have a way of twisting about, inviting suffocation either from the bedclothes or from the constricting folds of an improper sleeping garment.

NAIL BITING.

Mrs. J. writes: My baby has started to bite her fingernails. Is there anything I can do for her? She is normal in every way.

REPLY.

Keep the nails well trimmed and the child's mind occupied. This is a nervous habit. Using gloves or soaking the finger tips in a solution of quinine may be helpful.

SLEEP.

T. J. writes: How many hours' sleep should a man doing physical labor have? How many hours for one whose work involves much mental strain?

REPLY.

Eight hours of restful sleep is usually sufficient for all groups.

FATIGUE LIKELY CAUSE.

T. C. writes: What causes dark circles under the eyes?

REPLY.

Fatigue first of all. Dusky looking rings are likely to appear following loss of sleep, physical excesses, hunger, or any factor that leads to exhaustion. Children are prone to exhibit the symptom, particularly if they are undernourished or suffer from digestive disturbances. In women, menstrual difficulties are cited as a frequent cause.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON.—Wales wants to be equal with Australia and Ireland and Canada in the British commonwealth of nations. Wales wants to sit in the assembly of the league of nations in Geneva alongside of New Zealand, Czechoslovakia, Rumania and South Africa.

These are two of the political claims of Welsh nationalism, according to a writer in Reynolds News.

They are not separatist ideals. They are, on the face of them, constructive contributions to the unity and solidarity of the empire and to the unity and solidarity of the peace loving peoples of the world, the writer insists.

England would like Wales to come in on all of this as part of England tucked away under her arm. Wales does not agree.

England acts, and would like to continue to act, according to the paper, in terms of a geographical expression called England and Wales.

"There is no such entity as England and Scotland, or England and Ireland. Why, therefore, England and Wales?" the writer asks.

The article continues: "The language, the poetry, the prose, the drama, the folk music, the singing, the religious tradition, experience and organization, the hymns, the political instinct and tradition, the agricultural and land tradition, the Eisteddfod, the place and function of the Bible in Wales—all these in their sum and effect make the England and Wales conception absurd.

"The only argument in favor of the England and Wales theory is that Wales is geographically nearer and more accessible to England. It lies on England's flank, dead in the center. And nearly all the roads lead to Wales.

"And yet, of the three Celtic countries, Wales has preserved the most of her ancient glories. Ireland and Britain are as jealous as they can be of the million speakers of Cymru's language and the indigenous un-Saxon culture associated with it.

"Eire . . . Alban . . . Cymru . . . The Celtic fringe. . . .

"England is afraid of it. It looks so bad abroad: disunity in the British Isles.

"If the split develops, it will be England's fault. She cannot preach peace and good-will and self-determination abroad if she does not act on them at home.

"Prime ministers like Ramsay MacDonald, Stanley Baldwin, and Neville Chamberlain have been very rude to Wales and her delegations during the last few years.

"A justice of Assize was rude to Wales at Caernarvon last year when certain jurors were being objected to in terms of the Welsh language, when he burst out with the now notorious impatience of "How long is this farce going to last?"

"It is a phrase that has burned itself into the heart of Wales."

The lord chief justice, too, was quite rough with Wales when he ordered the retrial of the three Nationalists to take place in the Old Bailey instead of in Cardiff, though the government, through the attorney general, suggested Cardiff to him. He moved the trial to the Old Bailey from Wales because "it was expedient in the interests of justice to do so."

"Can Wales forget that?

"And parliament was rude to Wales right at the end of the last session in refusing to give facilities for a debate on the secretary of state for Wales bill.

"Wales does not particularly want a secretary [she wants something more], but that does not excuse the rough treatment.

"The future of Welsh nationalism is getting brighter and brighter."

WORDING OF WILL CONTROLS.

Chicago, March 21.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. My uncle left his estate to his brother's children when he died in November, 1936, but couldn't locate our family while we have always lived in Chicago. Later they did locate us; in December, 1937. But in the meantime my sister passed away in December, 1937, but was alive at the time the estate was left.

2. The estate rightfully belongs to her, doesn't it? She had no heirs, and [3] I am the only one left in the family except my brother's three children. Of course they will get his share. Will her share go to us? Will it be divided among all the other heirs?

4. Of course that wasn't her fault because they could not locate her. C. P.

1. If you mean that he left a will, the rights of the beneficiaries would depend largely on the wording.

2. Depends on the wording of the uncle's will.

3. It seems probable that you will take her share.

4. We agree with you that the delay in locating her should make no difference, but if the will was so worded that she was to receive only a life interest that would make a difference.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

JOINT TENANCY PROPERTY.

Chesterton, Ind., March 24.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am living in Indiana and would like information as to a piece of property in Chicago that was purchased in joint tenancy. My husband has passed away. 1. What is the necessary legal procedure by a survivor in joint tenancy? 2. Am I required to pay any inheritance tax? When must it be paid? 3. When does penalty begin, and how much? 4. What is the amount of exemption, if any, I can claim? H. A.

1. No probate proceedings are necessary.

2. The one-half which passes by survivorship is subject to inheritance tax, but there is an exemption for $20,000 worth as between husband and wife.

3. and 4. If the estate exceeds $20,000 worth we advise you to have a personal interview with an attorney.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

CITIZENSHIP PROBLEM.

Chicago, March 24.—[Friend of the People.]—I came to this country twenty-four years ago at the age of 5. My father died about three years after we came to the United States. He had not applied for his citizenship papers. In 1924 my mother married a naturalized citizen. I was then 16 years old. In 1931 my mother obtained a divorce from him, at which time I was 23 years old.

1. Did I become a citizen through my mother's marriage to an American citizen?

2. What is the ruling in my case when my mother divorced him? C. D.

1. If the mother was married to a citizen after Sept. 21, 1922, she did not become a citizen through such marriage, as under the act of Sept. 22, 1922, the citizenship of married women on and after that date is independent of that of their husbands. Consequently, the inquirer did not become a citizen.

2. See answer to No. 1. It is assumed that the mother was not naturalized in her own right during the inquirer's minority.

TAMMANY.

Milwaukee, Wis., March 30.—While it may be difficult to induce masses of citizens to comprehend that F. D. Roosevelt's lifetime proximity to New York Tammany methods has impressed its stamp on his own methods, nevertheless, his association with Mr. Farley is an almost positive proof that cannot be denied.

New York City Tammany appears to have gone out of its vicious existence, but its spirit has moved into a vastly larger field, the entire U. S. A.

New York City Tammany obtained its operating funds by ways that have always been odious to the general American public.

The United States Tammany gets its enormous funds by draining the credit of the American public from coast to coast through the sale of billions of dollars of bonds.

New York City Tammany, through its organization of henchmen, was always ready to give a handout to the voters in exchange for votes.

United States Tammany is handing out works projects to whole communities in exchange for votes of their senators and representatives in congress. The idea is no votes, no projects; no projects, no support from the local citizens, then defeat at the polls when the senator or representative runs again.

The politics taught in the New York City political school is now being applied by the graduates using a 130 million population for practice.

Democracy could not exist in New York City against the Tammany machine. Democracy cannot survive in the 48 United States under control by Tammany methods. R. C. PHIPPS.

BRIDLE PATH ACCIDENTS.

Hinsdale, Ill., March 30.—Having read about the death of an equestrian in the paper Monday morning I am writing as an instructrees in equitation. You say "she was thrown from her mount." An expert rider is seldom thrown from a saddle hack; it takes a bucking horse to throw a good rider. No doubt she fell off, the horse having made an unexpected move.

It seems strange that people pay big prices for instruction in golf and tennis, but when it comes to riding and dealing with something with a will of his own, instead of a racket or club, they feel all they have to do is get on a horse and he will go. If more people would take riding lessons, thus realizing their limitations, and not try riding horses too difficult for them to handle, many accidents would be avoided. [MRS.] HELEN HALL.

LETTER AND POSTSCRIPT.

Chicago, March 30.—Is it not time some one reared up on his hind legs and protested against the kind of weather reporting we are getting in Chicago?

Take today, for instance. It is mild and balmy. The sky is clear and one feels like throwing up his job and going fishing. Yet the weather report last night was "Snow and much colder."

I'm only guessing, but I am willing to wager that a careful comparison of the weather reports with actual weather conditions during the last year would show that our weather man in Chicago is less than 50 per cent right. If true, wouldn't he do better to throw away his high powered scientific instruments and get a pair of dice, or flip a coin? The laws of chance are more reliable.

If the government, as a result of this letter, decides to save some money [can you imagine the government saving money], does away with the Chicago weather bureau, and decides to depend upon the laws of chance for its weather reporting I will be glad to recommend a good coin flipper who can be obtained at a very reasonable figure.

E. H. EATON.

P. S.: As I mail this it's clouding up and getting colder. Maybe I'm wrong.

DAY BY DAY ON THE FARM.

Oak Park, Ill., March 15.—Although my days for farming are past, I have long wanted to tell you that by reading your accounts of happening on the Tribune experimental farm I now live for a few enchanting moments each day at your wonderful place. I have memories—many thrilling, some somber—of farm life in the '80s, years at hard labor in times more difficult than the present.

I imagine that because your writers on fauna, flora, and experimentation are each so very capable your department must have many urban dwelling readers whose lives industry long since consumed, just as it did mine, and that perhaps but few of them are known to you as enjoying with keen appreciation the thoughts which your farm articles bring to mind. R. S. BARBER.

AMMUNITION DEPOT.

Canton, O., March 29.—I have been interested in Chicago's White Sox for five years and am a constant reader of THE TRIBUNE. I have plenty of arguments with fans who follow the Cleveland Indians. So far I have been able to hold my own, mainly because Jimmy Dykes is such a smart manager. But the Kuhel-Bonura deal has put me in a spot. Thus I would appreciate very much if a Sox fan from Chicago would tell me what they think of the deal. In this way I might be able to tell these Indian fans around here a few things.

PAUL MCCONNELL.

A FAMOUS CARTOON.

New York, March 28.—During the latest world war I made numerous trips between here and Chicago and on one occasion, unless my memory is playing me a trick, there appeared in your paper a cartoon by McCutcheon which made so lasting an impression on me that I have never forgotten it.

"Green are the fields in time of peace,
Red in the time of war,
Black when the roar of the cannons cease,
And white forevermore."

POLES SEEK LAW TO END JEWISH MEAT MONOPOLY

Would Prohibit Kosher Killing Entirely.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Poland, April 2.—The Polish government, realizing that its first law restricting the kosher killing of animals for food failed to shake the Jewish monopoly of the packing industry, now threatens to pass a second and more stringent bill.

Should it become law, and it already has been passed by the lower house of parliament, Jewish spokesmen say their race will become vegetarians, because they will not eat meat from animals or fowls not killed according to the kosher ritual.

The new bill, which would prohibit kosher or ritual killing in Poland entirely, will come before the senate in its session in December.

Adjourns Because of Pressure.

Due to government pressure, the senate adjourned without considering the measure this month, although it passed another anti-Semetic law authorizing the government to annul the citizenship of persons who left Poland in 1933 and have lived abroad since then.

Poland's first law against the ritual slaughter of animals was passed in the spring of 1936. Though originally drawn to prohibit such slaughter entirely, as the new bill does, this measure was amended at the last minute, in the face of extensive Jewish opposition. In its final form, the bill provided that religious communities [including Jews, Mohammedans and others] should have their own slaughterhouses. Meat from animals killed by ritual must be marked and sold separately.

Still Control Meat Industry.

Jews have continued, however, virtually to monopolize the meat industry in Poland, despite the government's efforts to develop Polish packers. The Jewish monopoly over the killing of all meat sold for food in Poland, not only that which is killed by Jewish ritual, is more than four centuries old.

When the 1936 bill to restrict kosher killing was up for consideration, a great Jewish opposition was organized. The council of rabbis threatened to paralyze the entire meat industry by a one month strike. There was rioting in various parts of the country while the bill was under consideration.

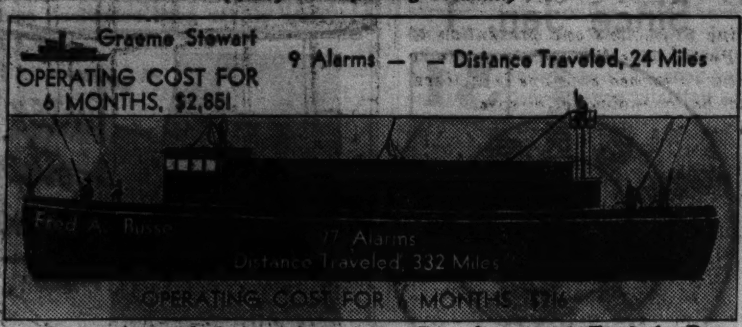
ARMENIA REVOLT HERO TO DIE AS SOVIET TRAITOR

MOSCOW, April 2.—(AP)—Five Armenians have been sentenced to death at Leninakan, in the soviet socialist republic of Armenia, on charges of killing of bolshevists in 1920. Among them is Gukas Gukasyan, hero of the revolution there. A newspaper reporting the trial said the condemned men were terrorists who had managed to hide their identities for almost two decades.

Three other persons have been sentenced to death in Novosibirsk province, Siberia, on charges of disrupting collective farming.

Diesel vs. Steam Fireboat

(Story in adjoining column.)



Comparison of the service of the Diesel-powered Fred A. Busse and of the steam-powered Graeme Stewart during six months' period. The Busse has been in use since last April.

NEW FIREBOAT PROVES BARGAIN IN FUEL COSTS

(An illustrated article on new motorized equipment of the Chicago fire department will be found in today's Graphic section.)

Savings in maintenance and operation costs of the new Diesel powered fireboat, the Fred A. Busse, in its first year of service have more than justified its purchase, Fire Commissioner Michael J. Corrigan said yesterday. April 24 will mark the anniversary of the boat's arrival here from Bay City, Mich., where it was built.

During its first year of service, Commissioner Corrigan said, the cost of operating the new boat was $665, while the cost of running another city fireboat, the Graeme Stewart, a steam powered vessel, was $5,312. In computing these figures the operating costs for April were estimated at $70 for the Busse and $400 for the Stewart.

Why Costs Are Less.

"When the Fred A. Busse is not in service there is no fuel consumption except for heating purposes for the comfort of the crew," the commissioner said. "But steam pressure on the Graeme Stewart must be maintained all the time so it will be ready for emergencies. Fuel is being consumed all the time whether it is moving or not."

The cost of operating the Fred A. Busse for the first six months of the year was $216, records show. During the same period the expenditure on the Graeme Stewart was $2,851. For a similar length of time an expenditure of $4,037 was necessary to keep in service the Joseph Medill, the boat replaced by the Fred A. Busse and held in reserve since the new boat arrived.

New Boat Does More Work.

The Graeme Stewart responded to nine alarms in this period, worked 4½ hours and traveled only twenty-four miles. But the Fred A. Busse responded to ninety-seven alarms, worked sixty-seven hours, and traveled 332 miles. In an average six months' period in past years the Joseph Medill responded to sixty alarms, worked 9½ hours and traveled 131 miles.

Between Nov. 1 and March 31 the Fred A. Busse was called out to forty-seven fires, worked twenty-three hours and traveled 109 miles at a cost of $379. The Graeme Stewart responded to five alarms, worked six hours and traveled twenty miles. Its maintenance and operation expense was $2,061.

The increase in the cost of operating the Fred A. Busse in the last six months was due to the cold weather which necessitated more heat for the living quarters. It is the largest fireboat ever built and can pump 10,000 gallons a minute. Its top speed is fifteen miles an hour.

WOMAN GETS 20 YEARS TO LIFE AS KIDNAPER IN N. Y.

Riverside, N. Y., April 2.—[U. P.]—Mrs. Ottilie Gordon, 58 years old, today was sentenced to from twenty years to life imprisonment for a kidnaping, the purpose of which was to prevent Mrs. Anna Johnson, 55 years old, from testifying about the theft of an electric refrigerator.

Mrs. Gordon was convicted of kidnaping Mrs. Johnson in April, 1937, to keep her from appearing against Mrs. Gordon and Dr. Irvine J. Russell, Mrs. Gordon's associate in the operation of Gordon hospital at Port Jefferson. Mrs. Johnson had caused their arrest on burglary charges in connection with the theft of the ice box from Mrs. Johnson's home.

Mrs. Gordon collapsed at the verdict, on which the jury of twelve men deliberated eighteen hours. Mrs. Gordon contended she took Mrs. Johnson to the House of the Good Shepherd in Brooklyn, where she was held five days, to assure her of proper treatment.

FINDS GOLD IN CHICKEN GIZZARD; LOWER 'FOR SALE' SIGN ON PULLETS

Bradley, Ill., April 2.—[U. P.]—When Mrs. F. W. Meyers slit open the gizzard of a chicken out rolled two yellow nuggets slightly larger than good sized peas. Mrs. Meyers showed them to her husband.

"That's gold, sure as shootin'," he said. He took them to a Kankakee jeweler, who confirmed his offhand assay.

Meyers and his wife then started panning back yard dirt in a wash basin and they found nearly a dozen more nuggets.

A neighbor who came over this morning to buy a chicken for Sunday dinner was told by Meyers:

"Nothing doing. There's gold in them pullets."

SULLIVAN HIGH R. O. T. C. TEAM WINS CITY TITLE

4,000 See Annual Drill Meet in Armory.

Sullivan High school's crack R. O. T. C. platoon marched off with the city championship yesterday before 4,000 spectators in the annual drill meet in the 131st Infantry armory, defeating teams from the other twenty-six public high school units in Chicago.

Clocking off its movements with precision, the Sullivan platoon, coached by Sergt. Anthony Gristhus, military instructor, scored 1,350.64 points of a possible 1,500. Tilden Technical High school, title holder for the last three years, finished second with 1,317.16; Harrison Technical High school, third, with 1,280.64; Steinmetz High school, fourth, with 1,238.56, and Lake View High school, fifth, with 1,237.88.

Plaque for Best Platoon.

With the first five teams and the Amundsen High school drum and bugle corps in mass formation, Col. Charles Thuis, R. O. T. C. officer for the 6th corps area, awarded the silver plaque to the victorious platoon as a climax to the colorful exhibition. Each memper received a medal also, and cadets of the other four teams were awarded ribbon bars.

Maj. John H. Ringe, adjutant in the R. O. T. C. department, had charge of the contest, and the twenty-seven R. O. T. C. instructors, serving as judges, scored every team except their own on the drill. Maj. Joseph I. Lambert and Capt. Richard Darrell, R. O. T. C. supervisors, marked the platons on cadence and appearance. In the final tabulation, drill counted 1,140 points; appearance, 300 points, and cadence, 60 points.

The next five platoons and the scores they garnered were Englewood, 1,235.92; Du Sable, 1,233.44; Senn, 1,230.32; Roosevelt, 1,224.84, and Fenger, 1,223.68.

Members of Winning Team.

Cadet Second Lieutenant Erwin Mandel, commanded the Sullivan team which was composed of Cadet Sergeants Charles Manley and William Powers, Cadet Corporals Gerald Weinstein, Charles Swet and Robert Lies, and Cadets Robert Keyes, Bruce Lenord, Daniel Whitney, Edward Logan, William Fairchild, William Eddy, Erwin Ullrich, Selig Drezner, Robert Magalian, Richard Magalian, Robert Ennis, Robert Flint, Lawrence Michiels, Einer Graf, Ed Parlie, John O'Connor, Bruce Ellithorpe, Peter Hamilton, Edward Graf, Donald Russell, and James Powers. Cadet Second Lieutenant Fred Graf, Cadet Corporal Robert Espew, and Cadet Robert Fulton were the alternates.

The Purdue university Order of Zouaves with their brilliant red, orange and black uniforms and eccentric drill; the Amundsen High school drum and bugle corps; Cadet Sergt. Ward Jenssen, baton twirler from Steinmetz High school, and the Tilden Technical High school "monkey" drill squad completed the military show with special exhibitions.

Find Scarlet Fever Case in Stateville Penitentiary

A case of scarlet fever was found yesterday among the convicts in Stateville penitentiary, Joliet. The victim is Arthur Brittelle, 25 years old, returned six months ago as a parole violator on an original robbery sentence of one to twenty years. When his sickness was diagnosed, ten other patients in the hospital with him, who had been exposed, were quarantined.

MISS ELIZABETH W. STARBUCK.

New York, April 2.—[Special.]—Miss Elizabeth Starbuck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Macy Starbuck has set the date of her marriage to Edward W. Burr Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Burr of Riverside, Greenwich, Conn., for May 21.

Miss Starbuck, a well known musical comedy actress, is a graduate of the Berkeley institute of Brooklyn and the Inter Theater Art school of Manhattan. She has appeared in "The Garrick Gaieties," and has had leading rôles in "Peggy Ann," "Hello, Daddy," "Chee Chee" and "Heads Up."

Mr. Burr is a graduate of the Polytechnical school of Brooklyn. He is with a New York brokerage firm.

Parolee, Accused by Pals, Confesses Two Robberies

Because three alleged robbers told police about him, Frank Garing, a paroled convict, was in custody yesterday as the fourth member of their gang. He was seized by police in his room at 107 West Oak street, was identified later, and, police said, confessed two holdups. He was paroled from Joliet penitentiary in 1935 after serving seven years for robbery. The three men who brought about his arrest have been reported named by the grand jury in true bills charging robbery.

AL CAPONE MAKES NEW ATTEMPT TO GET OUT OF CELL

Alphonse Capone yesterday asked the government to free him from Alcatraz Island on the ground that he has served his sentence there if the usual time allowance for good behavior is granted.

A petition for a writ of habeas corpus in behalf of the onetime king of Chicago gangs was filed in the federal court by Attorney Abraham Teitelbaum. It requested that Capone be brought here from California for a full hearing on April 15. Whether this will be done depends on a preliminary hearing which is expected to be held next Friday before Judge James H. Wilkerson. The government will oppose the plea.

Gets Two Sentences.

Capone, found guilty of income tax evasion during the days when his organization marketed millions of dollars worth of alcohol in Chicago, was sentenced Oct. 24, 1931, to ten years in federal prison and a year in the county jail. He was also fined $50,000 and assessed the costs of the trial, estimated at $30,000.

Teitelbaum's petition asserts that under the federal penal code, the gangster is entitled to ten days' credit for each month he serves or a total of 1,320 days. A paragraph from the code was quoted, as follows:

"Upon sentence of ten years or more, ten days are to be allowed for each month. When a prisoner has two or more sentences, the aggregate of his several sentences shall be the basis upon which his deduction shall be estimated."

It was indicated the government would fight Capone's release from prison now on three points: [1] that the basis of figuring is wrong; [2] that his sentence did not begin in October, 1931, but on May 3, 1932, when he started for prison, and [3] that he is not entitled to the allowance for good behavior. [There have been conflicting stories about whether he has or hasn't been a model prisoner.]

Teitelbaum figured yesterday that if the 1,320 days which he claims should be deducted are allowed, Capone was eligible for release on March 20. He is requesting that the eleven years' maximum allowance be applied against the ten year prison term. Capone would then have the full year in the county jail left to serve.

Decide on Behavior Status.

It has been held that the period from October, 1931, to May, 1932, which Capone passed in jail while fruitless appeals were being made to the higher courts, was not to be counted in the eleven year sentence. This probably will be argued in the proceedings. As to Capone's behavior status, that is to be decided by Attorney General Homer S. Cummings.

"Time off for good behavior," said Assistant District Attorney A. Bradley Eben, "depends on the prisoner's compliance with prison regulations. It is within the discretion of the attorney general to decide whether he has faithfully observed the rules."

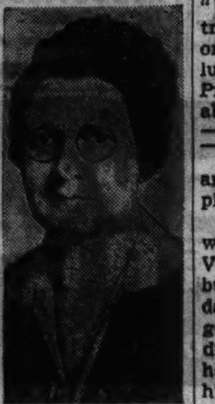
FORTY MEN FIND HONORABLE WAY TO AVOID RELIEF

Volunteers of America Put Idle Hands to Work.

BY DORIS LOCKERMAN.

Chicago's old clothing, furniture, shoes, and rubbish from its back doors have taken 40 men with families off relief rolls and given them jobs to do, with a pay check every week.



Col. Huldah Smith, Volunteers of America Executive.

Two months ago the Volunteers of America, 2841 Washington boulevard, who have learned after 42 years of service to Chicago's poor that men hate charity as it is known today, conceived a plan of reclaiming discarded articles with the labor of unemployed men. The repaired material could be sold at low p rices, they reasoned, to a market that could not afford to pay top prices. Waste thus would be turned into wages.

An old factory building at 2350 Lake street was converted into an industrial plant practically over night and three trucks were sent out to solicit cast-offs from the housewives of the city. When they came back loaded with papers, furniture, toys, old evening gowns, purses, and rugs the work began.

Idle Hands Become Busy.

Men who had been idle for five years sat pounding new seats on old chairs, or mending old shoes with lether from purses. Clothing was cleaned, pressed, patched, and buttons were sewed on.

Within a week the Volunteers opened two retail stores, one in their building on Washington boulevard, and the other on the first floor of their plant.

"Our first customer was one of our workmen," said Col. Huldah Smith, Volunteers' executive. "He came to buy an evening gown for his young daughter who had always wanted to go to a high school party. He got the dress, slippers to match, a short coat, hose, and a purse for $1.40. It made him feel like a man—a real American, again."

Only Married Men Employed.

The workmen are paid from $1.50 to $2.50 a day, according to their skill. No single men are employed. However, if a single man needs shoes or a suit he may stack papers to earn them. He does not get the money.

"We find men really want to work," Col. Smith continued. "They don't like leaning against shovels and watching the clock. They want to support their families. They have additional pride in their work in our plant because they are producing low cost goods that other poor people can buy. They are contributing something to their community."

Col. Smith recently addressed a plea to Chicago's men for used suits for distribution before Easter to less fortunate fathers and sons. The suits collected will not be resold, but will be distributed free to men most in need of clothing.

JOBLESS FOR 2 YEARS, PAIR PLAN HIKE TO SEE ROOSEVELT ABOUT IT

After looking for work for two years without success, two husky young men are prepared to start out tomorrow to hitch-hike to Washington and see President Roosevelt.

They are Joseph Peters, 19 years old, 3947 Arthington street, and Harry C. Fink, 24, of 3839 Grand avenue. Both formerly worked for the Works Progress administration. In 1936 they quit for better jobs in private industry, but lost them through retrenchment later. Since then they have been unable to get jobs, either with the government or elsewhere.

"We've written 300 letters to industrial concerns explaining we will take any kind of work," said Fink. "We've tramped the streets. We've tried again and again to get back on WPA since Jan. 1, but without luck. Now we feel it's up to the President to fulfill his promises about employment for all."

Civitan Club Votes Cash Aid to Crime Commission

The Central Civitan Club of Chicago has voted to turn over $25 annually to the support of the Chicago Crime commission, it announced yesterday. In a resolution the club points to the commission's long and successful record in fighting crime, and says it believes service clubs and other civic organizations should support the commission.

LILY PONS PUTS SPARKLE INTO A VARIED PROGRAM

Recital Pleases Audience in Civic Opera House.

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Looking more Alice in Wonderlandish than ever, Lily Pons came to the Civic Opera house last night for one of her rare Chicago recitals. In a filmy, flaring, story book dress of lightest blue and with a chaplet of flowers in her hair, this little French soprano who in seven short years has become a major character of American folklore smiled and bowed and sang to her audience in the familiar Pons manner.

This means that she put the Pons sparkle and an attractive eagerness to please into everything she did, whether the immediate task in hand was walking upon the stage, acknowledging applause, or turning a difficult phrase. Her intensity and aliveness and the quality of her art drew a generous response from the house.

Presents Varied Program.

The program included operatic arias, lyrical songs of French, German, and American origin, and the inevitable coloratura stunt songs. Lily Pons is one soprano who can do a bird piece and get away with it. When she and Mr. Cavone [flutist of the opera orchestra] outmocked the mocking bird in a series of dizzy runs in thirds, not a single member of the anti-birdsong contingent was seen to stalk from the hall.

Lily Pons' singing, despite its frequent lack of smoothness and balance, remains exciting because of the huge vitality of the singer and because of her determination to get to the bottom of every song she attempts. Whether in little lieder of Brahms or in the glittering Polonaise from "Mignon," Miss Pons gives everything she has in an effort to pierce through to the real character of the piece and to display this character as persuasively [and effectively!] as possible.

Composer for Accompanist.

Lily Pons was not the only national celebrity on the stage of the Civic last night. Her accompanist, Frank La Forge, is the man who used to perform similar services for such people as Sembrich, Gadski, Matzenauer, and Schumann-Heink. More important still, he is a composer of wide reputation.

After her performance of the La Forge pastorale, a gay little piece with a freshness and piquancy and an epigrammatic quality which lifts it quite out of the class of run of the mill American songs, Miss Pons asked the composer to share the applause with her. The mocking bird opus which followed was done in a La Forge transcription.

29,000 ATTEND OPENING DAY OF FLOWER SHOW

View Displays Covering 10,000 Square Feet.

Flower lovers from seventeen states visited the twelfth annual Chicago Flower show which opened at Navy pier yesterday. The first day's attendance was estimated at 29,000 by Mrs. O. W. Dynes of Hinsdale, general manager of the exposition. The show is managed by women, all members of the Garden Club of Illinois.

Visitors thronged through the 10,000 square feet of exhibits from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m., despite gloomy weather. Show officials expect more than a quarter of a million home gardeners to attend the show before it closes next Sunday.

Many Visitors Stay All Day.

Many gardeners remained in the exposition hall all day. Many of them were busy making notes and sketching prize winning exhibits.

The show management said wilted blossoms will be replaced daily. Commercial exhibitors will enter a fresh supply of fresh material three times during the competitions to be held this week.

Beginning tomorrow educational features will be emphasized each day for the benefit of amateur gardeners. Mrs. Bert Schiller McDonald of Chicago will give a lecture beginning at 3 o'clock each afternoon tomorrow, Tuesday and Wednesday. She will speak on what flowers to wear, and will be aided by models representing the garden clubs of Illinois.

Lectures on Design and Color.

William H. Moore, director of designs at the Chouinards School of Art, Los Angeles, will speak at 3 o'clock each afternoon on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. His subject will be design and color.

A novel method of growing plants in chemical solutions without the aid of soil is being featured in an exhibit developed by Robert B. Hovey of Evanston.

Priest Braves Flames to Comfort 2 Dying in Fire

New York, April 2. — [U. P.] — A priest ran into a burning rooming house and administered extreme unction to a dying man early today when fire swept through two adjoining buildings, killing two men and injuring three. Firemen, held by their heels by companions on the burning roof, dragged two men to safety through windows. The dead were Joseph Comforti and Edward Edhan, each 55 years old. Seventeen roomers escaped, most of them on fire ladders.

Prairie Club Hikes Into 31st Year of Chicagoland Study

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

More fondly and more intimately than any other organization the Prairie club knows its homeland, which is Chicagoland.

Frank L. Morse, President, Prairie club [Pleschner photo.]

That is not a flamboyant statement written to make an arresting first sentence.

These remarkable figures, fresh from the Prairie club's records, sustain the statement:

During the thirty years ending last Friday, April 1, the mileage of the Prairie club's hikes in Chicagoland has exceeded by thirty-four miles half the distance around the earth at the equator.

In fair weather and foul, in winters' blizzards and on summer days when the thermometer has climbed high into the nineties, and in the ideal weather for hikes which is now beginning, the Prairie club has hiked 12,534 miles over Chicagoland.

Hikes Never Postponed.

For this stalwart club's purposes Chicagoland means the area of fields and woodlands and dunelands and coast line lying within a radius of seventy-five miles of the city hall. That area, its flora and fauna, and its scenic beauties the nearly one thousand men and women of the club know as thoroughly as the small boys of a suburban dweller know their back yard. They know it in sunshine and storm, for a Prairie club hike is never "postponed on account of the weather." Like the postman, the members take all kinds of weather in their stride. And a hike is never less than six miles. Some of them cover as high as twenty miles. The most largely attended hike in the club's records drew 500 members. The regular week-end hikes, of which there are two, always draw from thirty to eighty members each.

In the thirty years of its intensive survey of its beloved Chicagoland the club has marched a grand total of 1,744 hikes, distributed thus: 1,217 Saturday walks, 300 Sunday walks, and 225 walks on the various holidays, such as Memorial day and Thanksgiving day. Those last are all-day hikes. The Sunday walks, which average ten miles each, were not organized until 1927, when the club was 19 years old, "because," said President Frank L. Morse, "of the temperate but firm opposition of what we good naturedly called 'the New England Puritans' among our members. Finally they acquiesced in the plea of other members that getting close to the heart of Mother Nature on Sundays was no unorthodox kind of worship."

In Third Generation.

The club's membership is now in its third generation, for grandchildren of the founders are now of an age to join the hikes.

If to the mileage of the club's hikes in Chicagoland there were added the mileage of midsummer tours that have taken groups of members far afield, then the grand total of the Prairie's mileage would considerably exceed one-half the earth's circumference at the equator.

On those midsummer tours members have explored Lake Superior areas in the United States and Canada and mountain areas as far north as Glacier park and as far west as the Pacific coast. For those remote tours the club organizes its own camp equipment and staf of cooks and from forty to sixty-five members make the tours every year. The trophies they bring back to Chicago are mostly photographs of the scenic glories of the Great Lakes and Rocky mountain regions. Many of these are superb specimens of photography and are on exhibition in the club's headquarters, room 757, First National Bank building.

No Mere Picnic Club.

The Prairie club is no mere picnic club. To hundreds of young people newly come to Chicago it has been the first important friend they made in this city.

Those young people would read in the newspapers a brief, clearly worded announcement of an impending Prairie club hike—an announcement giving the departure time of the suburban train or the bus to the sylvan area where the actual hike would begin. And always the announcement would—and still does—end with the words, "The public is invited."

From the spaciousness of that invitation you might think that the Prairie club would in spite of itself acquire a membership rather nondescript—far from "exclusive," if you wish to use that unpleasant word.

Truth is that although the Prairie club is one of the easiest of clubs to get into it is one of the most difficult to stay in.

Undesirables Fade Out.

The reason is simple:

The kind of people the Prairie club does not like do not like the kind of things the Prairie club likes—the strenuous hikes in all kinds of weather, the loving study of nature, the systematized but not drearily routinized accumulation knowledge about our countryside, and the cheerful but mannerly hours of visiting and camera talks and camp amusements at the club's three permanent camps. Those camps are Hazelhurst, on the shore of Lake Michigan, eighteen miles northeast of Michigan City, where it maintains in a fifty-eight acre wooded tract club owned cottages fully equipped for housekeeping; Tremont camp, in the Indiana Dunes state park, and Palos camp, in the forest preserve at 91st avenue and 126th street.

Activities at these Prairie club camps are emphatically not of the kind that appeal to the boisterous, the flighty, and other types of undesirables. They are not interested in conservation problems, or in the real work of wood gathering and similar tasks of upkeep. After one hike with the Prairie club those undesirables fade out of the picture and, if they join any club, join a rowdy night club where their kind of language is spoken.

A Friendship Builder.

Thus has the club been a friendship builder among people whose friendship is worth treasuring.

It has also been a matchmaker. In the thirty years of its existence there has been many a Prairie club marriage, but never a Prairie club divorce. In 1936 there were eleven Prairie club marriages.

That is the kind of people the Prairie club draws to it and the kind of people it holds to it. Two hundred and fifty of its members have been members for fifteen years or more.

To its members it gives health, friendships, the love of outdoors, a winter series of travel lectures in Fullerton hall at the Art institute, free access to a natural history library, illustrated brochures on natural history, concerts, dances, and many other cultural and social opportunities. To the community it gives energetic service in the cause of conservation. It has fought water steals and other depredations that would have blurred the beauty of its Chicagoland.

Within its scope it is public friend No. 1.

MILLION DEPEND ON STRIKERS FOR LIGHTS AND GAS

Jackson, Mich., April 2.—(AP)—More than a million residents of lower Michigan were dependent tonight on striking workers of the Consumers' Power company for electricity or gas.

In the populous Saginaw valley, C. I. O. strikers continued working to maintain service in the plants they had seized in a contract dispute.

Gov. Frank Murphy hastened back from a Florida vacation to confer Monday morning with representatives of the company and the Utility Workers' Organizing committee in Detroit.

One barrier to settlement of the differences was removed today when Circuit Judge John Simpson dissolved a temporary injunction which restrained the management from signing an agreement with the U. W. O. C. The injunction had been obtained by the Independent Power Workers' association.

STRIKE IS RENEWED TWO HOURS AFTER ISSUES ARE SETTLED

Belvidere, Ill., April 2. — (AP) — Renewal of the three week strike at the National Sewing Machine company was announced today by Carl Baylander, strike chairman, two hours after he said the dispute had been settled.

The strike committee ordered picket lines reestablished and arranged another conference Monday with Raymond F. List, company president.

Baylander said the American Federation of Labor machinists, molders, and polishers voted today to accept a compromise company settlement offer but List insisted the terms be for one year instead of for six months.

When this deadlock could not be dissolved, Baylander said, the strikers declared the settlement off.

700 Police Ready for Threatened Sugar Strike

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad, April 2.—(AP)—Seven hundred volunteer police armed with rifles and machine guns were ready tonight to spread over this British island if a threatened strike of 30,000 sugar industry employés becomes effective tomorrow.

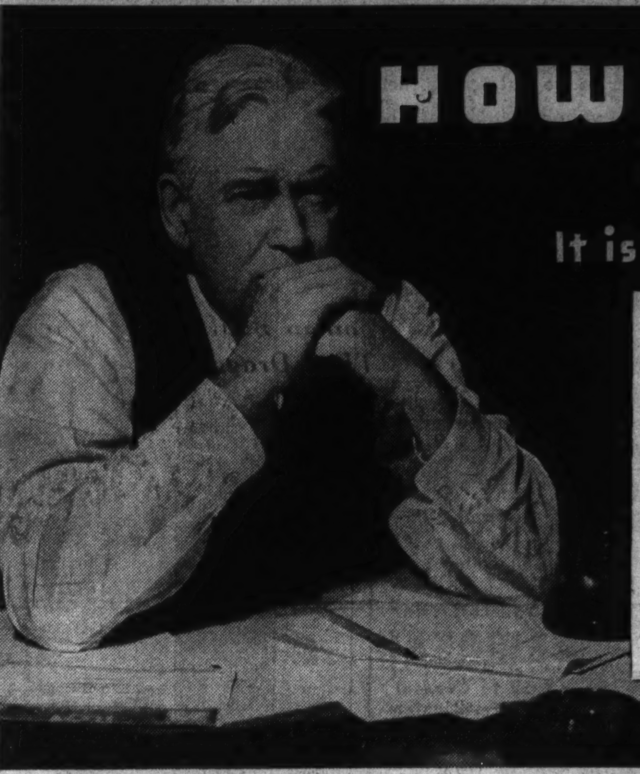
HOW IS YOUR HEART?
It is important to know



Many Cases of HEART TROUBLE Can Be Permanently Relieved

ALTHOUGH heart disease is the leading cause of death, the heart itself is a very dependable organ. It throbs away at more than 35,000,000 times a year, and will continue to do so year after year, if you do not abuse it—or allow infection in other parts of the body to cripple it. For, while too prolonged overstrain at any age may cause direct impairment of the heart, most heart troubles are the result of ailments in other parts of the body.

IN CHILDHOOD—Diphtheria, scarlet fever, measles, rheumatic fever, tonsillitis, may injure children's hearts.

IN MIDDLE-AGED PEOPLE—Heart trouble may result from syphilis, toxic poisoning, or focal infection in teeth, tonsils, sinuses, or some disease of childhood.

IN OLD PEOPLE—It may be any one of the above causes, or from hardening of the arteries.

Medicine has adequate knowledge and scientific facilities to prevent a large number of ultimate cardiac fatalities. Even in advanced cases serious trouble can be avoided and lives prolonged many years. But the high cost of the necessary examinations have prevented widespread use of this protective service. As a result thousands are deprived of adequate medical supervision and care and not only heart disease, but tuberculosis, cancer, syphilis, nephritis, and other diseases continue to afflict unnecessarily the lower income groups to an alarming and increasing degree. Since the organization of a United Medical Service, complete and fully protective medical care has been made available to all income groups, within their ability to pay. The service is now in its sixth year and more than 100,000 patients have been examined and treated since it was opened to the public. There is a medical staff of competent physicians and surgeons, specially trained in the different fields of medicine to render friendly, personal service. All patients receive the benefit of their combined professional skill and experience.

Complete protection against heart disease includes an examination by a trained and experienced physician, an X-ray examination of the chest, showing the size and shape of the heart and larger blood vessels, an electrocardiogram, which is a delicate tracing of the heart's action on a sensitized film, blood pressure estimation, blood examination, urinalysis, and serological Kahn test. This special service is available for $7.00

U. S. TO OBSERVE SWEDEN'S GIFTS TO MELTING POT

Human Biologists Study Changes in People.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Contributions made to American life during the last 300 years by 1,500,000 Swedish immigrants whose descendants have now become a part of this national amalgam are being assessed on a national scale this spring in preparation for the Swedish-American Tercentenary celebration the last four days in June along the Delaware river landing place of the pioneers.

While the emphasis of the celebration is on good citizenship, their influence on such national policies as anti-slavery and religious liberty is stressed by historians, and the marks of this race on art, music, science, and industry are being traced.

Study Fate in Melting Pot.

Conversely, what has happened to the 5,000,000 descendants of these immigrants in the American melting pot of races, is a subject of particular interest to human biologists. This leads into the byways of anthropology, where work is just beginning in recording and studying family changes and intermixtures, with many fascinating problems of human inheritance, such as coloration.

The Swedes are popularly supposed to be a blue eyed, blonde people, the purely Nordic strain. It was noted recently at Augustana college at Rock Island, Ill., one of the largest Swedish Lutheran schools in the country, that the American born Swedes, although of pure racial stock, are growing darker.

Fifty-four men and women in the Augustana choir, it is reported, out of 77, are of full Swedish blood, either having been born in Sweden or descendants of Swedes without racial intermarriage. A large percentage of these are now distinctly brunette.

Founded by Immigrants.

This college was founded 76 years ago by Swedish agricultural immigrants.

A change in height and weight might be accounted for by food and environment, but a definite change in coloration is explained by scientists on the basis of genetic inheritances. Each family history would have to be studied, beginning in Sweden, for in that country only 50 per cent are pure Scandinavian and of these perhaps 10 per cent pure Nordic. There are many dark haired Swedes, resulting in the contacts with the Alpine race, a south German type of dark hair and eyes; the southern European Mediterranean race, and the Lapps, a short, stocky mixed race of the north.

The Work of Genes.

Studies in genetics have shown that it takes fifty genes working together to produce the red color in a fruit fly's eyes. The genes are submicroscopic bodies, complex, organic molecules. Each gene is chemically different from every other. They are responsive to radiation. Certain genes carry pigmentation chemicals which determine a man's fate in this particular. Eye color, hair color, blood grouping, albinism are inherited in humans as in animals, according to the Mendelian laws of change and grouping.

Scientists know more of plants and animals than they do of men. From these experiments they draw the generalization that in the interbreeding between blondes and brunettes the result is predominantly brunette.

Founders of Pennsylvania.

The Swedes, not William Penn, founded Pennsylvania. They came in the ship Kalmar Nyckel 18 years after the Pilgrim fathers had landed. A monument of black granite from Sweden is being built on the spot of landing by Carl Milles, Swedish sculptor.

On President Roosevelt's invitation, as authorized by congress, Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf of Sweden and Crown Princess Louise, a granddaughter of Queen Victoria, will sail up to the monument of reconstructed New Sweden on June 27 with a delegation of 700 from Sweden. After a celebration in the east they will visit the most important Swedish-American centers in the middle west. There are 190,000 Swedish-Americans in Chicago.

SEIZE SIX MORE YOUNG MEN IN GANG CLEANUP

Six young men were arrested yesterday by the Damen avenue police for questioning after they were implicated by four others, members of a gang of robbers who were arrested Friday. Police expected the ten arrests to clear up 200 robberies.

DREAM OF CITY'S PROGRESS LINKED TO RIVER BRIDGES

State Street Once More Eyes Gateway North.

(In today's Graphic section is a page of pictures of old Chicago.)

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Winds of the new world commerce turned the smoke pictures from the Indian wigwam fires at Fort Dearborn to the drifting pageant of Chicago.

That old town of boulder paved streets, with plank roads leading to the wilderness, its rivers now a highway of commerce and lined with factories, seems as unsubstantial as a dream. But when was it ever else than a dream, catching hold of something solid for a moment, then letting it go for a new thought?

Take the matter of the river barrier to inner development and the bridges, from rope ferry days to the modern bascule, that writes the geology of the city's growth to this day.

Trails Lead to State Street.

In the old days the trails from the east and south led into State street, which was a plank road beyond 12th street, and ended abruptly at the river. There was nothing on the north but sand wastes, pine forests, wolves, Indians. The first business, the first railroad, was on the north bank, but the exigencies of constant river crossing in the face of the superior rights of navigation made Lake street the first big development.

Then Potter Palmer moved the shanties out of State street, widened it, and Marshall Field started business there, and the history of business and residence was changed. It was the river, however, that had done it. It turned from a clear blue stream into a stench, and people moved away from it to build their homes.

Facing an Old Problem.

How to overcome the river has been one of Chicago's problems from the first. Not only was it to be turned backward in its course, and made clean again, but crossed with bridges at every street so that the city could surge across it as it willed.

The first drawbridge in Chicago was built at Dearborn street in 1834 with timber cut from the country which is now Michigan avenue. The drawbridge often jammed and river trafic was imperiled by the abutments. It was ordered removed in July, 1839. When there was a rumor that the order would be revoked citizens gathered one morning and wrecked it.

New Span at State Street.

In 1860 the city council authorized a bridge at State street, but this was not finished until 1864. The city had the right of way only on the south side. The northern extension, called Wolcott street, did not extend to the river, as there was a small strip between the street and the river owned by the Galena and Chicago Union railroad. Steps were taken to extend this by assessment and condemnation and the land was acquired by purchase from the railway. The bridge was accepted in 1865 at a cost of $32,000.

This bridge with others was destroyed in the fire of 1871. A second bridge, of iron this time, was built in 1872, a third of steel in 1887, and a fourth, the present bridge, in 1903.

Build Homes on North Side.

By 1860, 29,922 persons had moved north despite the river. The wealthier citizens built homes in the district bounded by Chicago avenue, the Chicago river, Clark street, and Cass street, now North Wabash avenue. Others went northwest in droves. Only to the east was the waste of sand, waiting for the pressure and the release of the boulevard link bridge still in the dream stage.

The same thing happened at Rush street. From the ferry of 1847, which brought many across the river to build homes in the country along Pine street, to the strong bridge of 1884. Just before the World's Fair of 1893 it was estimated that this bridge carried 16 per cent more trafic than London bridge. The central business district expanded until checked by the zoning ordinance.

The dream is still there. The State Street council wants a wider bridge and a wider street to the north. In 1930 a bond issue of $3,500,000 was voted and the money has been set aside in a special fund. One obstacle is the property and air rights of the Chicago and North Western railroad, which are held on the north bank at $497,000. The plan includes North Bank drive, harmonizing with Wacker drive and the link bridge. By the measurement of time this will come, but it will not be the end.

COURT RESTRAINS CLOSING ESTATE OF R.H.DONNELLEY

An injunction restraining executors from filing a final accounting of the estate of Reuben H. Donnelley, Chicago printing executive in the Probate court of Lake county or taking any other steps to close the estate in that court, was issued yesterday by Circuit Judge Ralph J. Dady at Waukegan. He acted on motion of attorneys for trustees of the estate, the First National Bank of Chicago and the Northern Trust company.

The injunction is in connection with a suit filed Friday in behalf of the trustees asking that certain matters pertaining to the estate be clarified. Attorneys William B. Hale and Albert L. Hall, representing the trustees, said they seek to have final orders closing the estate issued by the Circuit court instead of the Probate court.

Attorney J. H. Cartwright, representing the defendants, said that an inventory to be filed next month will show the gross estate amounted to more than $11,000,000, that state and federal taxes totaled $2,000,000, and that two separate trusts of $500,000 have been set up in accordance with the will's terms, and that about $5,000,000 is now on hand.

ONE NEAR DEATH, TWO HURT; AUTOS CRASH AND BURN

Young Woman Heroically Drags Out Victims.

One man was probably fatally burned and two others were seriously hurt early today when two automobiles caught fire after an accident in Sheridan road, south of the Great Lakes Naval Training station. An unidentified young woman heroically saved two of the men. They are Peno Favelli, 36 years old, 227 Highwood avenue, Highwood, and Le Roy Hawkins, 23, of 669 Kennard street, Waukegan. James Belmonti, 32, 233 Washington avenue, Highwood, the third man, was the one burned.

Favelli and Belmonti were driving south, with the former at the wheel, when their car crashed into the rear of Hawkins' car. Both cars burst into flames, with the three men caught in the wreckage. The woman drove up a moment later, and went to the rescue, although her man companion stayed behind. She dragged out Favelli and Hawkins, burning her hands in the effort. Others extricated Belmonti, but not before he was burned. The woman drove away without giving her name. All three victims are in the naval hospital. Hawkins is colored.

CUBS WHIP SOX, 10-6; LEAD IN SERIES, 6 TO 3

MRS. MARS' TIGER WINS $5,000 ARKANSAS DERBY

COASTS TO WIRE AFTER TAKING 5 LENGTHS' LEAD

Silver Sarah Is 2d; Gov. Chandler 3d.

BY FRENCH LANE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hot Springs, Ark., April 2.—A bit of sugar was tossed to Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' colt, Tiger, in the shape of the $5,000 prize he won for bouncing home in front this afternoon in the renewal of the Arkansas Derby.

It was supposed to whet his appetite for the sweetmeat he will be given a chance to win in the Kentucky Derby on May 7. He took the prize in one gulp, racing to the front soon after the beginning of the mile and an eighth battle and keeping himself there until he passed the line of finish.

Parading to the starting gate and during a four and one-half minute delay at the post he did not seem very interested in going after the prize. He trailed five other horses down to the paddock bend, which is the first turn on this picturesque race track

Ah! That Sugar Plum.

At that stage of the struggle he must have got a whiff of the tempting sweet, for suddenly he straightened out those long legs of his and dashed to the front. When he displayed that dash of speed the Arkansas Derby was just so much history.

Tiger bounded out into a lead of two lengths. In a few more strides he was three lengths in front of all the other horses. Heading into the back stretch he increased his lead to four lengths. Then, as they neared the lower bend he went forward again to increase his lead to five lengths.

Wobbly, exhausted horses trailed behind the burning pace he made. No one knew that better than Tiger's rider, A. Robertson. The jocky took him in hand. He let Tiger coast down the stretch on home to win by a length and a half from the 90 to 1 shot Silver Sarah. Gov. Chandler, named for Kentucky's chief executive, Happy Chandler, on which there had been a terrific plunge, was third.

Just Four Make It a Race.

Chicago's former Ald. William O'Toole's Elooto finished fourth. The others were so badly beaten it didn't make any difference where they finished.

Tiger ran a remarkable race. He was topweight carrying 126 pounds. He was making his first start since the Santa Anita Derby. He ran the mile and an eighth in 1:50 4-5 to miss the track record by two-fifths of a second. He did not appear to be tired when it was over.

A better speculative medium will hardly go to the post again this year. The plungers in the crowd of 10,000 Derby day spectators became jittery.

The final mutuel payoff on Tiger was $4.20 to win, $4.80 to place, and $3.70 to show. Silver Sarah paid $59.50 to place and $11 to show. Gov. Chandler paid $2.80 to show.

Moves On to Derby Scene.

Tiger must be given serious consideration in the Kentucky Derby calculations. As a result of his rich stake triumphs last year he has been carrying high weight for a long time. It must be remembered that Stagehand, the Kentucky Derby favorite, has never had much more than a feather on his back.

With this sparkling qualifier under his belt, Tiger moves on north on Monday to the Derby scene.

Just before the running of today's Derby Mrs. Mars and a companion went into Tiger's paddock stall. She shook hands with Trainer McGarvey and Jocky Robertson and gave Tiger an encouraging pat on the nose.

MINNESOTA GETS THE RANGE TO KEEP BIG TEN RIFLE TITLE

A dangerous combination—Mr. and Mrs. William Woodring of Alton, Ill. Mr. Woodring is the American .22 caliber rifle champion. He led the individual open competition with 400. Mrs. Woodring tied for second.

HAWKS BATTLE AMERICANS FOR PLACE IN FINAL

The Chicago Blackhawks and the New York Americans resume their struggle for a chance to enter the Stanley cup finals against the Toronto Maple Leafs tonight in New York. The Blackhawks left yesterday afternoon for the scene of the battle. The winner will leave immediately after the game for Toronto, where the first of two clashes is booked to start Tuesday. The second game will be played Thursday.

Tonight's victor and the Leafs will contest the third Stanley cup game and a fourth, if necessary, either in New York or Chicago. These two games are scheduled for Sunday, April 10, and Tuesday, April 12. The final game of the best three out of five series, if it goes that far, will be played in Toronto Thursday, April 14.

Stewart Praises Karakas.

Before leaving yesterday Manager Bill Stewart said that in his opinion not enough praise has been given Goalie Mike Karakas, who shut out both the Canadiens and the Americans in Chicago when the Blackhawks were confronted with the necessity of winning both games to avoid being eliminated from the playoffs.

Should the Hawks conquer the Americans they will enter the finals for the third time since they became members of the National Hocky league. Back in 1930-'31, finishing second in the season's standing, they first vanquished the Toronto Maple Leafs, then the New York Rangers, and went into the finals against the Montreal Canadiens, who defeated them in a series that went the full five games.

Beat Detroit in Four Games.

In 1933-'34 they again ended the season in second place and went into the finals against Detroit after whipping the Canadiens and Maroons. This time the Blackhawks' quest for the Stanley cup was successful, the Red Wings losing in four contests.

Six members of the present Hawks' squad, Thompson, Romnes, March, Trudell, Jenkins and Gottselig, participated in the match that brought the cup to Chicago for the first time.

For the Americans, should they win tonight, competing in the finals will be a new experience, although they have been members of the major hocky circuit for fourteen seasons.

PURDUE ENDS SOUTHERN TRIP WITH VICTORY

Ruston, La., April 2.—[U. P.]—Purdue's baseball team today won an extra inning game from Louisiana Tech, 5 to 3, and evened the two game series. Purdue scored twice in the tenth inning on one hit and three errors. A seventh inning homer by Mangas, Purdue pitcher, tied the score at 3 all. The game ended Purdue's southern trip.

Louis' Victory Over Thomas Fails to Settle Burning Issue

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Harry Thomas, who now has finished his chore as fact finder in the current pugilistic problem, "Who hits harder, Joe Louis or Max Schmeling?" was paid a bit more than $1,000 a round for the five rounds he stayed with the world's champion Friday night in the Stadium.

This might seem, at first glance, to be nice work if you can get it, or want it, but the 10,743 spectators who watched Louis knock Thomas down five times and then out unquestionably will agree that the challenger took enough beating to warant payment of his purse of $5,206.14.

Net receipts, after federal and state taxes and ring expenses of $380 were deducted, were $38,149.12. This was increased by $3,500 paid for an exclusive broadcast of the match. Louis received 40 per cent of $41,649.12, which was $16,659.48.

This Question Unsettled.

A review of Louis' workmanlike and very devastating disposal of Thomas, who never was regarded by the public as a fit opponent for the champion, leaves the question of the outcome of the Schmeling-Louis bout still in doubt. This, of course, was anticipated, for although Thomas was knocked down seven times in eight rounds by Schmeling, and now has been knocked out by Louis, it doesn't follow that any one knows what will happen June 22.

Probably the most interesting item in Friday night's bout was the confusion which resulted when Thomas, badly dazed, sat down on his corner stool with approximately ten seconds of the third round remaining.

Short Right Starts It.

Until the third round Louis had scarcely used his right hand and had been content to jab and hook with his talented left. Thomas had no defense for that rapier left which flicked repeatedly to his forehead and face. But while Thomas was being outpointed and was most exasperated,

MINNESOTA RIFLE TEAM WINS TITLE; ILLINOIS SECOND

The University of Minnesota rifle team again won the Big Ten rifle team championship in the National Rifle association's regional tournament yesterday at the University of Chicago. Defending their title for the third year, a team made up of three sophomores, one junior, and one senior, came through in the fifth relay to beat Illinois.

With four members of each team completing their card, the score was tied at 1,085, when Jackson took to the firing line for Minnesota and Lawson started for Illinois. Jackson quickly outpaced his rival with a beautiful prone position score and ended his string with a total of 275 for the three positions to Lawson's 261, giving Minnesota an edge in total team score of fourteen points.

Iowa Takes Third.

Another interesting battle developed between Iowa and Indiana for third place, Iowa pulling up from behind with its last man to lead, 1,330 to 1,323. The University of Cincinnati, firing in the match for its national rating, placed fifth. Ohio State was sixth, Wisconsin seventh, and Chicago eighth.

Tom Ridge of Illinois, firing in the first relay ran up the best score of any of the competitors, carding a 289 out of a possible 300 to throw a scare into the defending champions at the very outset.

Champion Makes Perfect Score.

In the individual open competition for pros and amateurs, another champion, Bill Woodring of Alton, Ill., led the way in a field of 300 of the nation's sharpshooters. A series of perfect targets put him in the lead for the 100 yard telescopic sights division.

One of the interesting features of the race was the record of Kay Woodring, wife of the national champion. Her score of 399, just one point below that of her husband, kept her in a two-way tie for second place with Al Freeland of the Midland Rifle club of Rock Island, Ill. Mrs. Woodring was the only woman member of the international team which won the world championship for prone position firing at Helsingfors, Finland, last summer.

Five Changes Made in A.B.C. Meet Standing

Five new names went up on the big ten standing board during yesterday's competition in the American Bowling Congress tournament in the Coliseum.

Frank Yerse of Cleveland, who has been bowling for fifteen years, landed second in the singles with 725. After opening with two spares he struck out for 278 in the first game and then came back with 201 and 246. A split in the sixth frame of the second game prevented Yerse from overtaking Knute Anderson of Moline, Ill., who has been topping the singles with 746.

On the same squad Fred Krueger of Cleveland counted 688, which tied for eighth place in the singles division. He had games of 199, 233, and 256.

Dundee Pair Second.

Myron Pritchard and Bill Ahnert of Dundee, Ill., scored games of 461, 393, and 444, and took second place in the doubles. Pritchard contributed 680 on games of 259, 213 and 208. His partner added 202, 180 and 236 for 618.

COOPER LEADS WITH A 68 IN MASTERS' GOLF

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Augusta, Ga., April 2.—Harry Edward Cooper, the bright boy of golf who nearly always comes up with an A plus in his examinations, today wrote himself a 68, four under par for the Augusta National course, to take the first round lead in the fifth annual masters' tournament.

The 34 year old Chicago professional, rated the perfect golfer, was two shots in front of his townsman, Dick Metz, and Ed Dudley, the home club artist.

Frank Walsh, another Chicagoan, who played with Cooper today, came in shaking his head in wonderment as to why Harry hadn't come through with three or four shots under his 68. Walsh testified fulsomely to the keenness of Cooper's game on a day when the weather swung to and fro so abruptly that many in the field were tempted to pitch their clubs away.

Metz Has Two Bad Holes.

Messrs. Metz and Dudley also had cause to join Mr. Walsh in head shaking, but in different fashion. Metz, the hard luck golfer of the last eighteen months, was out in a torrid 32, four under par. Came a six at the par 4 tenth and another at the 480 yard thirteenth. Those two holes settled Dick's chances for a tie with Cooper.

Dudley's disillusionment was delayed until the eighteenth tee. The lengthy Georgian stood there needing a par 4 for a 67. His drive wound up on a chunk of rock and in making his recovery from under one tree, struck another. He managed to escape to the green in five shots for a seven.

The steady rain of yesterday, which caused the scheduled first round to be canceled, appeared imminent again at noon today, but a man named Robert T. Jones Jr. called his law office in Atlanta and asked how the weather was over there. He was told it was bright and shiny and predicted that the sun would be over here in two hours, the weather virtually running on a time table from Atlanta to Augusta.

Correct on Weather.

Mr. Jones was correct on the weather but not on the golf he played in the tournament which has been built about him for his only competitive appearance of the year. Bobby, once master of them all, teed off with Byron Nelson of Reading, Pa., winner of the masters' title last year, late in the day. He finished with a pair of 38s for a 76, which left him four over par and in a tie for thirtieth position at the end of the first round. Nelson finished with a 73.

Nevertheless, there was something about the Jones deportment today which indicated that he might be his old self for tomorrow's thirty-six holes and Monday's final eighteen. Thomas D. Armour, who should know about these matters, said from the gallery that Bobby finally was standing up to the ball. Thomas himself, who always looks forward to the masters' as an ideal aperitif to a winter season, regretfully withdrew because of an ailing ligament in his right elbow. Jones may have scored 76, but such experts as Armour and Nelson commended Bobby for his play today.

Snead, Sarazen Take 78s.

The major disappointments of the day were Samuel Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., and Gene Sarazen of Brookfield Center, Conn. Snead, after a pickup in the north and south, won the recent Greensboro open with a 271, but today he needed a 78. So also did Farmer Sarazen, who hauled off with that historic deuce in the 1935 masters' tournament.

Head man of the amateurs in the show was debonair young Frank Strafaci of Brooklyn, N. Y., who threatens to win the national one of

CAVARRETTA'S HOMER CLEARS BASES IN EIGHTH

Cox and C. Brown Victims of Rally.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Tucson, Ariz., April 2.—Phil Cavarretta delivered in one of those spots today. The Cubs had gone into the eighth inning trailing the White Sox, 6 to 5. Stan Hack had tied the score early in the eighth. Then up came Phil with two out and the bases loaded.

Manager Jimmy Dykes rushed in Clint Brown to relieve George Cox and he pitched one to Cavarretta, which the young man socked over the fence for four runs and the eventual final score, 10 to 6.

Up till the eighth the Cubs had been obliged to depend upon many passes and a few extra base hits to stay in the ball game. In seven innings, they had received nine passes and had made three hits all for extra bases.

Berger Busts One, Too.

At the end of the second inning the Sox were winning 4 to 2. At the end of the sixth the Comiskeys were ahead 6 to 4, by virtue of a homer which Boze Berger made after Marv Owen had singled.

Then came the five run, five hit blasting in the eighth, which put the Cubs ahead, six games to three, in the traveling Chicago circus to date.

J. D. Rigney and Carleton pitched the first five innings and left the game in a four all tie. Rigney allowed only two hits, a double by Herman in the first inning and a triple by O'Dea in the fourth. J. D. was harassed by wildness, walking seven. Two of the walks and both the hits blossomed into runs.

Cubs Take Lead.

Carleton also was bothered by wildness, passing four, but all his real trouble came in the second inning, when he pitched doubles to Owen and Hayes and singles to Kreevich and Walker. All the hits and all the runs made off Carleton were accomplished in that big Sox second inning.

The Cubs were possessed of a two run lead when the first inning was over. Hack walked at the start of the game and stopped at third on Herman's double to left. He got home after Kreevich had caught Cavarretta's long fly and Herman reached third, whence he scored on Demaree's fly to Kreevich. Marty struck out.

Extra base slugging in the Sox second inning helped the south siders to a 4 to 2 lead. Owen opened up on Carleton with a line double to right center and Rensa walked. Berger sacrificed and Rigney grounded out to Jurges, Owen scoring. Hayes doubled off the left field wall, scoring Rensa with the tying run. Kreevich singled to center, scoring Hayes. Kreevich stole second and scored on Walker's single to right. Radcliff then flied to Reynolds.

Sox Salute Logan.

The Cubs tied the score in the fourth mostly because of O'Dea's triple, the second hit off Rigney. Reynolds walked, paused while Jurges flied to Walker, and scored on O'Dea's three base shot to left center. Carleton drew Rigney's sixth pass, after which Hack lifted a long fly to Radcliff, O'Dea scoring. Herman flied to Kreevich.

FRIESINGER WINS FINAL EVENT TO KEEP SKATE TITLE

Ronchetti Is Second in Indoor Meet.

Leo Friesinger of the Chicago Catholic Youth organization, one of the world's best speed skaters, successfully defended his national indoor title last night in a bitter battle with Vic Ronchetti, his teammate and close friend, in the Chicago Arena.

It was not until the final event, the five mile race, that Friesinger clinched the championship. The finish of this event was so close that the judges were forced to go into a huddle. Only ten points separated Leo and Vic, and if the judges had decided Ronchetti the winner both would have been tied with 150, but the decision gave Friesinger 160 to Vic's 140.

Madeline Horn Wins.

The Chicago C. Y. O. took the team title with 590 points.

A new national junior girl's half mile record was established by Geraldine Neupher of Cleveland. She covered the distance in 1 minute 32 seconds to beat her teammate, Lavergne, who tied her for the girls' championship, and Bunny Lawler of Chicago. They each scored 50 points in sharing the title.

Miller Retains Title.

Lowell Miller of the C. Y. O. retained the intermediate boys' championship, while Sylvia Larsen of Buffalo, N. Y.; Ruth Delmanzo of Cleveland, and Veronica Leonard of the C. Y. O. finished in a deadlock for the intermediate girls' championship, each counting 40 points.

Oxford Beats Cambridge in 90thCrewRace

PUTNEY, England, April 2.—[U. P.]—Oxford's crew, battling through windswept waters on the River Thames, today defeated Cambridge in the ninetieth renewal of the oldest intercollegiate sport rivalry in the world.

Fighting off a stern Cambridge challenge in the third mile, Oxford stepped up the beat a mile from home and won by two lengths to score its second consecutive victory over the light blue shell.

Oxford Wins in Last Mile.

Oxford's official time was 19 minutes 30 seconds, compared to the record of 18 minutes 3 seconds, set by Cambridge in 1934 for the four mile 374 yard "S-shaped" course.

With the exception of a few yards after the start, Cambridge, with an American in the coxswain's seat and another American powering the boat from the No. 6 slot, never was in front.

The heavier Oxford men, with their long, steady stroke, churned out into a two and one-half length lead at the mile post, had it cut to a half length near the three mile mark and won going away in the last mile.

Dark Blue's 42d Victory.

The Cambridge coxswain was Thomas Herrison Hunter, formerly of Harvard and from Cambridge, Mass. He "coxed" Cambridge last year also when the Cantabs' string of thirteen consecutive victories was shattered. At No. 6 for Cambridge was Gordon Keppel, captain of Princeton's crew in 1935-36.

It was Oxford's forty-second victory in the series, which began back in 1829. Cambridge was won forty seven, and the 1877 race resulted in a dead heat.

124th Artillery Poloists Take Title, 12 to 11

The 124th Field Artillery polo team of Lieut. Don J. Rice, Capt. Romeo E. Mura, and Lieut. William D. Fergus last night captured the Metropolitan Polo league senior championship by defeating the Chicago Ramblers, 12 to 11, in the 124th Field Artillery armory.

The 124th trio finished its league season with five games won and none lost. It was the first time any team has won the senior title without a defeat. Two years ago the 124th Artillery took the championship in a post-season playoff.

Although never in the lead, the Ramblers combination of Jim Hannah Herb. Lorber and Steve Hammond put on two strong rallies. In the closing moments of the second chukker Hannah and Lorber scored in rapid succession to tie the count, and in the final period a goal by Hammond brought the Ramblers only one point from a tie. Captain Mura then whacked the ball to the side boards to check an attack which would have forced the contest into overtime. Lineups:

124TH FIELD ARTILLERY [12].		CHICAGO RAMBLERS [11].
Lt. Don Rice	No. 1	James Hannah
Capt. R. Mura	No. 2	Herbert Lorber
Lt. Wm. Fergus	Back	Steve Hammond

The Chicago Shamrocks polo team eliminated the Chicago Black Horse troop from the western title tournament, Sherman cup class, in the first game, 8 to 5.

It was the second victory of the meet for the Shamrocks' combination of Lieut. James McAnulty, Maj. Leslie Ireland and Capt. William Everett, who advanced to the finals in the Chicago circuit, with Fort Sheridan as their opponents in the armory ring Tuesday night.

Taking a lead, which they never relinquished the Shamrocks were in front, 6 to 1, in the third chukker. Lineups:

JUNIOR TITLE TO RIDGEWOOD.

New York, April 2.—(AP)—The Ridgewood, N. J., polo club, winner of the junior indoor title a year ago, won the eastern junior championship tonight by defeating the Squadron A junior trio, 11 to 10, in Squadron A armory.

The victory qualified Ridgewood to defend its title in the tournament starting next week at Chicago.

MICHIGAN HAS A SCRIMMAGE; HARMON IS STAR

Ann Arbor, Mich., April 2.—[Special.]—Coach Fritz Crisler ended the first week of Michigan's spring football practice today with the opening scrimmage of the year.

Several squads were used. None was designated as a first team. The outfit which made the most headway consisted of John Nicholson and Ed Czak, ends; Capt. Fred Janke and Roland Savilla, tackles; Fred Olds and Ralph Fritz, guards; Archie Kodros, center, and Tom Harmon, Jack Meyer, Hercules Renda and Les Persky in the back field.

Nicholson, Janke, Savilla, Olds, Kodros, and Renda are letter men. The others are freshmen who will be eligible next season. Harmon, former Gary, Ind., star, was the big ground gainer of the day.

RUTGERS WINS, 11-2.

New Brunswick, N. J., April 2.—[Special.]—The Rutgers lacrosse team opened its season today by defeating Williams 11 to 2.

Madeline Horn of Beaver Dam, Wis., who successfully defended her championship in the women's events of the national indoor skating meet. She scored 120 points.

Perry Out to Take Pro Title from Vines

Fred Perry, English star who thrice held the world amateur tennis crown and who never has been defeated in Chicago, will renew his efforts to remove the world professional crown from the brow of Ellsworth Vines of California when they meet in the International Amphitheater Thursday and in the Chicago Arena on Friday.

Fred Perry.

Perry is trailing Vines by a slight margin in the present tour, but expects that by the time of the Chicago matches he will draw even with the California star.

Berkeley Bell and Walter Senior make up the supporting company. Bell is a former intercollegiate champion and Senior ranks second to Don Budge among California stars. Last season Senior climaxed a great year by winning the Canadian championships.

A bonus is given to the winner of each match played on the tour, furnishing an incentive to win.

Mitts Are Nearly Too Big for Navy's Junior Boxers

Annapolis, Md., April 2.—(AP)—Pushdowns mingled with knockdowns and plenty of laughs today when the naval academy's big little junior boxers—2 to 14 years of age—battled through the forty bouts of their 19th annual tournament.

As 500 proud mothers and fathers—all connected with the officer or instructor personnel of the academy—applauded, the youngsters contested in weight classes ranging from 30 to 124 pounds. For some, the gloves they wore were nearly as big as their heads.

H. M. [Spike] Webb, navy boxing coach who began training the 80 fighters in January, let them fight for one round, ringing the bell whenever he saw fit.

Frank Croucher, Tiger recruit shortstop, suffered a broken right leg sliding into second base in the seventh inning. lead. Cox walked and stopped at second on Hayes' single to center. Kreevich forced Cox, Logan to Hack, but the inning ended when Jurges made a leaping catch of Walker's line drive.

At the outset of the seventh Hack knocked the third Cub hit of the afternoon, also the third extra baser, a double to left. Cox then walked Herman and Cavarretta, filling the bases. Demaree flied to Walker, Hack scoring, but Herman was doubled at third, Walker to Owen. Marty forced Cavaretta, Hayes unassisted.

The Big Blowup.

With one out in the eighth, Jurges doubled, the fourth Cub hit and the fourth extra base smash. Bill reached third on a wild pitch and scored the tying run on O'Dea's fly to Kreevich. Logan singled off Kuhel's glove and stopped at third on Hack's second double to left. Herman drew the tenth Sox pass, filling the bases, whereupon Clint Brown replaced Cox. Cavarretta knocked a homer over the right field wall, scoring Logan, Hack, and Herman. Demaree singled to left, but Marty rounded out a futile day with his second strikeout.

MEET AGAIN TODAY

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Tucson, Ariz., April 2.—The Cubs and White Sox will play a return engagement here tomorrow. Larry French and Clay Bryant will be in service for the National leaguers, and will draw Thornton Lee and John Whitehead as opponents.

When Manager Dykes of the Sox read today that a lad named Jim Webb was included in the wholesale delivery of Cardinal chain gang members effected by Commissioner Landis' edict, he admitted he was interested. Webb is a shortstop and Dykes wants somebody to fill the spot until Luke Appling recovers from his ankle fracture. Dykes is stymied, however, by the fact that he doesn't know the whereabouts of the player. He will request the home office to attempt a connection. Webb batted .290 for the Columbus American association Red Birds last season.

The Cubs and Sox face an elaborate social program Monday and Tuesday while at Bisbee, Ariz., where, according to the Brewery Gulch Gazette, the sun shines 330 days a year and there is moonshine every day. The highlight will be a chuck wagon feed at a nearby dude ranch, followed by a few hours at the Hereford Day and Night club.

Bill Lee, one of Charley Grimm's mild cripples, was feeling better today. He submitted his creaky neck to a local bone twister this morning and got relief.

Because of the shortstop problem which confronts him, Manager Dykes is still taking pre-game workouts at the position, but thus far hasn't been able to convince himself that he is the man for the job. If he has to go to work pending Appling's return, he'll endeavor to do a little juggling that will land him on second or third.

Manager Grimm of the Cubs was still burning a bit this morning because Rip Collins didn't score from second on Stainback's single in the seventh inning yesterday in Yuma. Grimm asked Collins to explain how it happened and the former Cardinal insisted his leg was bothering him. It might have been a swell alibi if Collins before the game hadn't boasted to his manager of his perfect physical condition.

At the second annual spring dinner given this evening by the baseball writers in honor of Bob Lewis and Joe Barry, Cubs and Sox secretaries respectively, Lewis was presented with a one gallon gasoline can. This will serve its purpose if Robby inadvertently should hire another fuelless bus, such as went dead while carrying the Cubs from Ontario back to Los Angeles last Monday.

Noble Kizer, former Purdue football coach, was among the 2,500 spectators at the game today. Kizer, recovering from a severe illness, expects to return to Lafayette in the fall to take up his duties as athletic director.

The news, he said, was given to him by Brooklyn Secretary John McDonald in the absence of Vice President Larry MacPhail.

Texas Wins 6 1st Places in Relay Carnival.

Austin, Tex., April 2.—(AP)—Fred Wolcott, Rice institute's six foot two inch sophomore, bettered the accepted world's 120 yard high hurdle record with a downwind race in 13.9 seconds at the eleventh annual Texas relays today.

The performance of the southwest's Olympic hope, who, until last year never had run the event, surpassed the 14 second record made by Bob Osgood of the University of Michigan last year.

Wins Dash in :09.8.

Twenty minutes later Wolcott won the 100 yard dash in 9.8 seconds to finish as high-point winner of the relays, in which seven meet records tumbled and one was equaled.

Relay Record Bettered.

Harold Cagle, Oklahoma Baptist, turned in a 47.8 seconds anchor race for a 3:19.1 college mile relay victory that bettered the old mark of 3:21 set by Oklahoma Baptist and Abilene Christian college in 1935.

Jud Atchison of Texas and Bob Hubbard of Minnesota tied in the board jump, leaping 24 feet 7¾ inches to shatter the old mark of 24 feet 6⅝ inches which had withstood the challenge of jumpers over a decade.

of New Brunswick, N. J., created the second change in the doubles when they rolled into sixth place with 1,290.

Jeremiah Plappert, Detroit, who scored 714 in the five man competition as a member of the Jefferson Recreations, who totaled 2,962, climbed into second place in the all-events with 1,948. He added 624 and 610, respectively, in the doubles and singles competition.

Walter Goldammer, 20 year old nephew of Billy Goldammer, president of the Bowling Proprietors of Greater Chicago, shot games of 244, 235, and 207 to total 686 and tie John Duthorn of Arlington Heights, Ill., and John Mihlsimmer of Milwaukee for eleventh place in the singles competition.

Powerful Chicago Teams Listed.

Though Chicago has been unable to place only one team among the five man event leaders, the Nabor A. C. occupying tenth place in the standings with a 2,990 total, most of the local major leaguers still are to be heard from. Out of town teams are monopolizing the week-end card.

Chicago will send its most powerful lineups into action tomorrow, Tuesday, and Wednesday. Among them are the Pabst Blue Ribbons, Pragers, Birk Brothers, Curtiss Candy, and Budweisers.

All Budweisers Have to Do Is Collect Windy City Prizes

BY HOWARD MARTIN.

All the Budweiser team is thinking about now is collecting first place money and other portions of the $3,000 in prizes in the Windy City Major league, whose members bowl on the Windy City alleys in Cicero. The league play does not end until tomorrow evening, but the 1937-'38 championship already is tucked away, since the Budweisers hold a five game edge over the Mineralites, with three games to go.

The Mineralites, champions of last season, climbed to second place after a disastrous start, and hold a one game edge over the third place O'Keefe Coals, who in turn have a similar margin over the Serrano Cigarros and the J. M. Kralovecs. It looks like a merry fight for the runner-up positions.

The last night's bowling also will determine the individual championship. Bud Wright of the Mineralites is averaging 207, with 90 pins over, while Bill Lenzen of the O'Keefes has 207, with 16 pins to spare. Each has rolled in 87 games.

The men who brought the Budweisers the team title with a season average of 1,004 are George Theel, Joe Wilman, Kurt Pagel, Emil Landman, and Al Rankin. On April 16 these men and other members of the league will hold a gathering at which prizes will be distributed.

Tomorrow night's pairings:

Budweisers vs. Town Club of Cicero; Soper Brothers vs. Blazek Tailors; J. M. Kralovecs vs Boyar Schultz; Whitecaps vs. Strachan Coals; Serrano Cigarros vs. McKessons; G. & W. Mill Farm vs. Mineralites; De Young Fuel vs. Burlington Zephyrs; O'Keefe Coals vs. Vogel Brothers.

Randolph League.

Leaders held their positions in the Randolph league when the Mineralites swept three games with the Union Printers, the second place Birk Brothers routed the Wagner & Hansons, and the third place Budweisers bowled over the Hofherr Meats. The Mineralites hold first place by one game. Most of the individuals had trouble with the pins, and as a result the 659 shot by Gawron of the Jolly Jacks was high. Other leading scores: Pagel, Budweisers, 654; Watson, Whitecaps, 649; Henreich, Joseph Butlers, 648; Wilman, Budweisers, 648; Geiser, Birks, 639.

North End Traveling League.

Paul Marian of the Budweisers stole the show in the North End Traveling league when he put together games of 257, 247, and 221 for a 725 total, twenty pins short of the league record for the season. Paul's team totaled 3,082, but lost one game to the Richter's Sausage five. The Schambergers scored 3,077 to nose out the Keeleys in two games, and Fox De Luxe lost two to the Pepsi-Colas despite their 3,072 series, the middle game going to the latter by one pin, 990 to 989. The Kruse Stations made it seven out of twelve over the Birks this season by trimming them twice, and the Michelobs took the odd game from the Samuelsons.

On South Side Alleys.

Tom Masterson was high for the last session of the Bruck Major league. His 694 topped Leo Rollick by 14 pins. Other leaders were George Maurer, 672; Ed Boyle, 672; Bill Harper, 668; Frank Limberg, 663; Frank Nemecek, 647; Otto Boehm, 643, and Earl Ebers, 623.

On North Side Alleys

The Joseph Gills, led by Joe Puccinelli with 673 and George Notz with 664, won three games from the Gold Coasts in the Gold Coast Major league. The Gills' total was 3,131. Eddie Hymes knocked off games of 224, 246, and 245 for 715 as the Gold Crown Beers swept to three victories over the Art Williams Jewelers. The Keeley Beers took the odd game from Marx Restaurant in the only other series bowled.

Classic League.

The Classic league will bowl in the Forest Park Recreation, 400 Des Plaines avenue, Forest Park, tonight at 8 o'clock. The following matches are scheduled:

Power House Candy vs. Charles H. Weber.
Oak Leaf Motors vs. Triangle Shirts.
Baby Ruths vs. Pabst Blue Ribbons.
Pragers vs. Monarchs.

About the Women.

Margaret Luchsinger's 567 led the Bruck Major league. Next were Catherine Coyle, 560; Flo Waterman, 558; Laura Reinking, 548; Theresa Touhy, 543; Ethel Kelly, 537; Agnes Pitelka, 536; Gerda Johnson, 529; Carrie Enders, 526; Nettie Kolb, 521; Mae Ebert, 519; Sadie Frisk, 518, and Mayme Kitching, 510.

Elsie Hall was high with 562 in the West Ridge league.

Here and There.

The Town Club of Cicero, shooting 3,153, beat out the Heils of Milwaukee for the five man championship in the twenty-sixth annual Windy City tournament on the Windy City alleys. The Heils had 3,122. The Budweisers were third with 3,104. Other final results: Two man—A. Logan-C. Fischer, 1,343; E. Kandyba-T. Chyzy, 1,330. Singles—Ned Day, Milwaukee, 714; F. Wright, 713. SUN EGRET WINS ROWE MEMORIAL ON MUDDY TRACK

Scores 5th 1938 Victory by 1½ Lengths.

Bowie, Md., April 2.—Sun Egret, wiry, nervous 3 year old chestnut colt with eyes trained on the Kentucky Derby, splashed through southern Maryland mud and mist today to a length and a half victory in the $5,000 Rowe Memorial handicap.

The odds-on favorite, A. C. Compton's colt, had speed to spare in the stretch and won going away over C. R. Fleischmann's Parmelee T., which was a half length ahead of Clocks, owned by L. E. Ogle. Sun Egret's time for the six furlongs was 1:13 4-5 over a slow track, only a fifth of a second slower than the winning time for Mucho Gusto in the 1937 running. The winner paid $3.70, $2.90 and $2.40.

12,000 Cheer Victory.

Twelve thousand sat through intermittent rains for the second day of the meeting here and approved loudly as Sun Egret lived up to the record he made at Santa Anita earlier this year.

Compton's colt, with Jocky A. Shelhamer up, broke fourth but moved into third at the quarter pole. He was second, a neck back of Clocks at the halfway mark, and was a half length ahead entering the stretch. His ability as a sprinter showed in the stretch drive, when he lengthened the margin at the finish to a length and a half.

The mud-spattered victory poured $4,250 into Compton's pockets and brought Sun Egret's earnings for the year to $25,525.

Sun Egret's Fifth Victory.

Today's victory was his fifth of the year in seven starts. He won four in a row at Santa Anita before running third to Stagehand and Daube in the $50,000 Santa Anita Derby, Feb. 22.

Felix Spatola's Wise Prince, a good mudder and highly regarded for his victory at Tropical Park recently was second choice in the mutuels but came in fourth.

Mrs. F. C. Dunn's Royal Tread won the sixth race to become the first long shot of the meeting. The 5 year old gelding paid $25.10, $10.30 and $7.40.

SWEET PATRICE WINS

Miami, Fla., April 2.—(AP)—Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' Sweet Patrice, queen of the 2 year old fillies in training at Tropical Park, raced to her fourth straight victory in the $2,000 Viscaya purse today.

The brown daughter of Halcyon, carrying 119 pounds, gave weight and a thorough trouncing to eight others of her sex and age in the four furlong dash. She completed the journey in 47 3-5 seconds and finished three lengths in front under Eddie Arcaro's guidance to pay $3.30 for $2.

Throttle Wide Is Second.

Townsend B. Martin's Throttle Wide, second choice, was runner-up with a four length margin over W. H. Gallagher's Kate Smith.

The triumph was the fifth in eleven starts for Sweet Patrice. She was second in five other races and third in another for one of the most consistent records of the winter season.

After helping to delay the start ten minutes, Sweet Patrice was away from the barrier flying. She quickly drew clear of the field, lengthened her advantage at the last corner and then stepped through the home stretch without being seriously challenged.

OSTEND TAKES LEAD ON FINAL JUMP AND WINS

Camden, S. C., April 2.—(AP)—Ostend, owned by Mrs. Frank M. Gould of New York and ridden by Henry Frost of Middleburg, Va., won the $500 Carolina cup steeplechase, three miles over timber, today in 6 minutes 5 3-5 seconds.

After Independence Boy, owned by W. B. Ruthrauff, Rumson, N. J., and ridden by Norman Cleland, Red Bank, N. J., had set the pace all the way, Ostend came from behind at the last jump to take the lead and flashed across the finish line two lengths ahead.

The race was run in a drizzling rain before 7,500.

WEST VIRGINIA, VIRGINIA WIN FOUR RING TITLES

Charlottesville, Va., April 2.—(AP)—Rugged fighters from the Universities of Virginia and West Virginia won four of eight titles in finals of the fourth national collegiate boxing tournament tonight.

Ray Schmidt, who won the light heavyweight championship in San Diego last year, took a close decision bout from Karl Killian of Idaho, and Maynard Harlow, 145 pounder, outpointed Louisiana State's Heston Daniel to give the host Virginians two titles.

West Virginia scored in the 165 pound division when Sam Littlepage won by a third round knockout over Glenn Howatt of Rutgers. Ashby Dickerson won the second title for the Mountaineers by beating Leo Katalinas, Catholic university's 200 pound heavyweight.

MIDWEST DOGS WIN IN 1ST DAY'S JUDGING AT SHOW

Chicagoland Entries Score Heavily.

(Bob Becker discusses springtime and puppies in his "Mostly About Dogs" department of today's Graphic section.)

Midwestern dogs competing in the International Kennel club show yesterday won more than their share of honors against pure bred canines from twenty-five states and three Canadian provinces. One thousand, one hundred, and sixty-nine dogs, including most of the country's best specimens, are competing in the show in the International Amphitheater.

The show will end today. Judging will start at 10 a. m. and the best dog will be named late tonight.

Chicago Dogs Win.

Chicagoland dogs winning important victories yesterday included Champion Gardenia Tony, bull terrier owned by Frank Warren, Park Ridge; Pal, St. Bernard, owned by Msgr. John J. Code, Oak Park, and Zinia Von Loheland Lindenhof, Great Dane, owned by R. G. Marshall, Chicago.

Hertzville Headstone, the champion Chicago-owned collie that has had such a sensational show career climaxed by a victory in the recent New York show, won additional honors last night, although he did not enter the show ring. Thomas M. Halpin and C. J. Cassleman, owners of Headstone, entered the handsome dog for exhibition purposes only.

Headstone's Son Wins.

But Headstone was on the sidelines to see his son, Hertzville Historian, carry the family name to victory as Historian was picked winners dog and best of winners by Judge Walter H. Reeves. Historian lost out in the best of breed judging, however, top honors going to Champion Bellhaven Black Lucason, owned by Mrs. Florence B. Ilch, Red Bank, N. Y.

IT'S NOT VANITY—BUT A DOG WILL HAVE HIS DAY!

Canine aristocrats put on their very best fronts for hundreds of admirers yesterday as the International Kennel club opened its show in the International amphitheater. Competition ends tonight with selection of best dog in show. Shepton Commander, English sheep dog, submits calmly to grooming for the ring under the careful ministration of his owner, Mrs. Mildred Lindley of Dubuque, Ia. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Bruno von Raskolotte, St. Bernard, owned by R. H. Rowley, Monee, Ill., wears a bib, but the judges won't see it, for it comes off before he enters the ring.

A drink of water has a more satisfying taste when it's lapped from the hand of one's owner. This thirsty Pomeranian is Peter White Acre, owned by Tom Devens of Chicago.

these days, and Tom Tailer of Newport, R. I., the millionaire who dresses as though he were going out to Jackson park to play with Butch and Bill and Joe. Each of them shot 74s, two shots better than Charles Yates of Atlanta and Chuck Kocsis of Detroit.

The cards for Cooper, Metz, and Dudley follow:

Par out	454	343	454—36
Par in	443	545	344—36—72
Cooper out	454	243	445—35
Cooper in	343	444	344—33—68
Metz out	344	243	444—32
Metz in	643	645	343—38—70
Dudley out	543	243	453—33
Dudley in	434	544	247—37—70

Cooper gave no indication of his finish during his first nine. He dropped a three footer at the fourth, was on the 500 yard eighth in two shots, and then took three putts at the ninth, after two fine shots. A twelve footer fell at the tenth, and he was putting for an eagle at the 13th. He almost pitched in at the 485 yard 15th, scene of Sarazen's deuce, where the wind which had sprung up suddenly was operating at its fullest. Three pars completed the round.

Metz's First Nine.

Metz, who was incapacitated for the greater part of the last year as the result of an automobile accident, shot the first nine in a 32 which included four birdies and no mistakes.

At the tenth, he hooked his drive, chipped out safely and three putted. The thirteenth took him three swings to reach the green and three to get down. He topped off the day with a No. 4 iron to the terrace of the home green for a 20 foot putt which he holed for a birdie.

CULVER TRACK TEAM DEFEATS MICHIGAN CITY

Culver, Ind., April 2.—[Special.]—The Culver Military academy track team, winning every event with the exception of the shot put and high jump and scoring slams in half mile and broad jump, defeated Michigan City high school in an indoor track meet, 93 to 25, today. Maxson of Culver led the scoring with 11¼ points. Luth of Michigan won the high jump by clearing six feet, and Stephenson won the shot put for Michigan City with an effort of 47 feet 11 inches.

Navy Baseball Team Beats Dartmouth, 7-2

Annapolis, Md., April 2.—(AP)—Navy pounded out twelve hits off three pitchers today and scored five runs in a big fourth inning to defeat the Dartmouth baseball team, 7 to 2, on a soggy diamond. Jerry Bruckel, Navy right hander, yielded eight hits, but never was in trouble. Score:

Dartmouth	001	000	010	—2	8	1
Navy	100	501	00*	—7	12	2

Batteries—Litchfield, Pyrtek, Wonson and Urban; Bruckel and Adair.

DECATUR RALLIES TO BEAT LAWSON FIVE; KEEPS TITLE

Decatur retained its state Y. M. C. A. basketball title in the annual tournament at George Williams college last night by defeating Lawson of Chicago, 38 to 36.

Trailing 22 to 16 at the half and 33 to 32 in the final two minutes, Fisher sank two field goals and Kurek a free throw to give Decatur victory. Grenda concluded the scoring by sinking two long shots for Lawson.

Moline won third place by defeating Peoria, 30 to 26, and Joliet took the consolation trophy by winning from Division Street, 32 to 29.

Cambridge Rugby Team Routs New Yorkers, 38-6

New York, April 2.—[Special]—The Cambridge university rugby team scored another onesided victory today, defeating the All-New York fifteen in Randalls Island stadium, 38 to 6. The six points was the first scoring against the touring British team, which has compiled 147 points in four matches.

Lake Forest Tackle Saves Five Lives as Life Guard

Bud Solomon, who is a tackle prospect for next fall's varsity at Lake Forest college, once saved the lives of five children one afternoon while acting as life guard at Evanston beach. He will be a life saver to Coach Ralph Jones if he can play football as well as he can swim.

Snyder Returns to Midget Auto Racing Tonight

Jimmy Snyder of Chicago's south side, rated as one of the country's leading auto race drivers, will return to midget competition tonight at the 124th Field Artillery armory, 5200 Cottage Grove avenue, where a 100 lap race will be the main event. The races will start at 8:30 p. m.

Jimmy Snyder.

Snyder, who last spring set a speed qualifying record for the Indianapolis 500 mile race and led that event in the early stages, was injured on the armory track early in January. He comes back to racing tonight, bent on proving the contention of his supporters that he is the best of the indoor drivers. He will drive the same car he drove to several feature victories before he was injured.

The Gilmore style of handicap racing will mark the eliminations. Under this system cars are lined up in the eliminations inversely to the speed of their time trials. The first three drivers in each of the four trial heats qualify for the main event, in which they line up according to the time trial speed.

Other well known chauffeurs who will face the starter are Harry MacQuinn of Indianapolis, point standing leader; Marshall Lewis of Los Angeles, the runnerup; Art Hartsfeld of Toledo, winner of the last 100 lap race; Duke Nalon, Emil Andres, Wally Zale, Cowboy O'Rourke, and Ted Duncan.

In addition to added purses and double title points the drivers will race tonight for the first leg of the Thorne Donnelley trophy. Donnelley, president of the Chicago Auto Racing corporation, donated the cup, stipulating that only feature race winners in the next three meets will be eligible to win the prize. At the end of three meets the feature winner with the most championship points will claim the trophy.

INCREASE PURSE FOR INDIANAPOLIS 500 MILE RACE

New York, April 2.—[U. P.]—Eddie Rickenbacker, manager of the Indianapolis Memorial day speedway race, today announced an extra dividend for this year's race, bringing the total purse to $100,000, the largest sum ever distributed for a motor race in the United States. The added money will apply in the lower brackets so that every one of thirty-three starters will be assured of at least $500.

Prize money for the first ten places will remain from $20,000 for first place down to $1,400 for tenth.

Schildberg's 143 Leads in Midwest Golf

French Lick, Ind., April 2.—[Special.]—A 22 year old Chicagoan, Edwin O. Schildberg, took command of the seventh annual Midwest Amateur golf tournament today with a sparkling par 71 on the French Lick valley course. This, added to his par 72 on the difficult hill course yesterday, gave him the leadership with a 36 hole total of 143.

One of yesterday's leaders, Jack Hoerner of North Shore, Chicago, added a two over par 73 to his par breaking 71 for a total of 144 and second place. Alex Welsh of Rockford, Ill., holder of the Illinois high school championship, who tied Hoerner's 71 yesterday, floundered with a 40—42—82 for a 36 hole total of 153.

Two Tied for Third.

Five strokes behind Schildberg in a third place tie were George Dawson, three time winner of the Thomas D. Taggart trophy, and Wilfred Wehrle of Racine, Wis., the present western amateur title holder. Wehrle electrified the gallery after going out in 43 by scorching the back nine with a 31, setting a new competitive record. Gus Novotny, who finished with 150 today, held the previous record on the last nine of 34.

Schildberg, who was a member of the Northwestern university golf team last year, played remarkably steady golf. After shooting even par for the first four holes, he laid a No. 7 iron shot ten feet from pin on the short fifth and dropped the putt. He went one over par with a 5 on the 372 yard seventh hole, but countered with a birdie on the eighth. A par on the ninth gave him a 35, one under par for the first nine. The Chicago youngster played the second nine safely and finished one over par with a 36. So uncanny was Schildberg's short game that he deliberately played the last eight approaches short of the greens in order to stay out of the traps.

Moreland Loses Touch.

Gus Moreland of Peoria, winner of last year's tournament, suddenly lost his touch and shuffled in with an 83. This, with yesterday's 74 for a 157, is almost certain to put him out of the running as he is fourteen strokes behind.

Johnny Lehman with 76—70—155 found the going difficult. Art Sweet with 167 was two under Don Armstrong's 169.

The final eighteen holes will be played tomorrow on the hill course.

155 Cars Start Today in Brescia, Italy, Auto Race

BRESCIA, Italy, April 2.—[U. P.]—One hundred and fifty-five racing cars will start tomorrow morning in the twelfth annual 1,000 mile race. Luigi Farina and Giovanni Pintacuda, both driving Alfa-Romeos, and the veteran Rene Dreyfus, piloting a Delahaye, were considered favorites in the early betting.

ANGLERS TAKE THEIR PLACE IN SPRING SPORTS

Smelt Runs Expected to Start Tuesday.

BY BOB BECKER.

The smelt runs near Marinette, Wis.; Menominee, Mich., and Escanaba, Mich., are just starting. Marinette and Menominee announce that the smelt run party will start about Tuesday and continue through April 10.

In Illinois the bluegill and crapple fishermen are having a grand time with their fly rods. The panfish started to bite several weeks ago. New lures for 1938 are making their appearance in the sporting goods stores along with new fly rods, bait casting rods, lines and other equipment. It's only a few weeks until the opening day of the trout season. Thus the fisherman, already running a temperature, gradually is assuming his place in outdoor sport as he prepares his equipment for the season ahead.

There's Still Time to Learn.

Any fisherman who has a desire to master the simple routine of flycasting still has time to do this before the opening of the trout season on May 1 and before it is legal to take bass in northern lakes. Casting clubs in Chicago will teach any beginner how to handle a fly rod and a fly. It takes only a few hours of practice to learn the rhythm of the forward and the back cast. The ease with which any one can learn to cast was demonstrated in the recent outdoor show when Marvin Hedge, nationally known tournament caster, called two persons from the crowd around the Tribune casting pool and in less than ten minutes had both of them [one a young lady] handling the fly rod outfit.

Fishermen taking up fly casting now may acquire complete outfits at a reasonable figure compared with prices of a few years ago. There now is greater emphasis on well balanced outfits than ever before. It now is possible to obtain a serviceable bamboo rod, a single action reel, a well made line and even a few flies for the same amount we have paid for a topnotch baitcasting reel and a casting rod.

Advises Single Action Reel.

We advise beginners at flycasting to get a single action reel which is quite inexpensive. There is no need for an automatic reel in the beginner's outfit, although many fly fishermen are partial to that type of fishing accessory. Since rock bass, bluegills and crappies are not at all hesitant about striking flies, the fisherman with an 8 or 8½ foot fly rod and a few flies [six are enough to start] can have a lot of fun catching fish while perfecting his skill. Later in the season when the bass season opens up the beginner may move on to an advanced course in fly rod work by going after both the large and small mouthed black bass—two fresh water fish that also strike flies quite readily.

What should you include in a trout fishing outfit? What kind of rods? Bob Becker's handbook, "The Fisherman's Guide," answers hundreds of questions for fishermen. Get a copy at either of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower. Price 25 cents. Postpaid, 30 cents.

Louis Victory Fails to Settle Burning Issue

this was no weapon to fell the Minnesotan and terminate the affair.

Near the end of the round Louis popped Thomas with a short right to the jaw which spun the challenger completely around. Thomas' legs buckled and he staggered, with his back to Louis, to the ropes near his own corner.

Louis, who is no brilliant thinker at best, hesitated in midring while his seconds vainly tried to make themselves heard above the hubbub with advice to follow up. But Louis apparently never had been coached to hit a man who stood with his back to him.

Nate Lewis, one time matchmaker for the Stadium and now Thomas' manager, grasped the situation, or so it seemed, and he raced up the steps with the white corner stool, reached through the ropes and Thomas, still sleep walking, staggered to this familiar haven. Referee Dave Miller waved to both men to fight, but Thomas couldn't see and Louis knew less what to do with an opponent sitting on a stool than he did with one who turned his back.

Lewis Points to Clock.

To cover his strategy, although Nate may have honestly believed he had heard the bell, Lewis pointed at the clock, but the clock still showed several seconds to go. The pantomime, cheers, and shouting ended when the bell rang. Louis now went to his corner and there his seconds argued he had won by a technical knockout while Thomas was being doused with water and revived.

Referee Miller probably could have awarded the decision to the champion without protest from the commission, but such an ending unquestionably would have been unsatisfactory to the crowd which scarcely expected to get $10 worth of amusement from the fight before it started.

Four Knockdowns in Fourth.

Four knockdowns in the fourth round, and another in the fifth, preceding the knockout, was the bonus Miller gave the crowd. There were no objections by officials, the crowd, or by Thomas, although Harry might have been the one expected to protest in view of his subsequent punishment.

Principal topic yesterday at fight headquarters, which Promoter Mike Jacobs deserted late in the afternoon for his return to New York, concerned location of the Schmeling-Louis fight.

Jacobs gave no indication that he would answer the question although it was tacitly understood that an announcement would be made after Schmeling meets Steve Dudas in Hamburg April 16. Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's manager, flew to New York early yesterday morning and immediately sailed for Germany.

Chicago Has Hopes.

Chicago still hopes to get the match. Soldiers' field probably will be made available for a rental of 10 per cent, according to unverified report. The Braddock-Louis fight last June was held in Comiskey park for which a 5 per cent rental was paid after Mike Jacobs had declined to put the bout in Soldiers' field at a rental figure understood to have been three times as much.

It is believed that the Schmeling-Louis fight will be held in New York. Certainly the only point involved is whether New York, Detroit, or Chicago will pay most to see that bout. There are other considerations, however, such as the possible effect of a Jewish boycott in New York and what the New York commission would do to Jacobs' promotional ventures in New York if he brought the fight to Chicago or Detroit.

When Braddock fought Louis here it must be remembered that Braddock already had been suspended in New York for failure to meet Schmeling.

New York Obligations.

Jacobs also is considering his commitments in New York, where he holds contracts to use the property of the Madison Square Garden, Yankee stadium and the Polo Grounds for fights. These contracts must be fulfilled and rental losses there must be offset by additional profits in Chicago or Detroit.

Neither Joe Jacobs nor Louis' managers, John Roxborough and Julian Black, has expressed a choice for the championship site, although the edge money talks in the managerial concern. The attitude of managers is best summed up in the off record remark made Friday night that "the fight would lose money in Detroit, break even in Chicago, and make money in New York."

LELLO SEEKS TO EVEN MATTERS WITH CAMARATA

Bout Heads Marigold Card Tomorrow.

Pete Lello, 1936 Chicago Golden Gloves lightweight title holder, will attempt to avenge a previous defeat at the hands of Nick Camarata in a return bout with his opponent from New Orleans, La., in Marigold Gardens Monday.

Steve Casey.

The match is booked for ten rounds. In his first meeting with Camarata, on the Gunnar Barlund - Buddy Baer card in Madison Square Garden March 4, Lello lost in six rounds. The Gary fighter believes the extra four rounds will be sufficient for him to whip Camarata this time.

Camarata first gained attention by holding Petey Sarron, former featherweight champion, to a ten round draw in Richmond, Va., on Sept. 14, 1936.

Before his contest in the Garden Lello defeated Everett Simington in the Marigold arena Jan. 17. It was Pete's twenty-seventh triumph in thirty starts. The defeat by Camarata was Lello's third.

The first wrestling show in Chicago Stadium in nearly two years will be held Friday. Steve [Crusher] Casey, who threw Louis Thesz in Boston Feb. 11 to win a claim on the championship, faces Ed Don George in the main event. It will be their second meeting, Casey winning in 51 minutes in New York Dec. 13. On that occasion Steve weighed 225 pounds and George 220.

Pirie Leads in First Annual Dinghy Meet

Lockwood M. Pirie, champion Star class skipper of the Wilmette harbor fleet, won three of the four races that opened the first anual Frostbite dinghy spring regatta yesterday in Belmont harbor.

A fleet of eight D class Dyer dinghies participated in the series, which ends today, for the new Mitchell frostbite trophy. It was the largest number of one design dinghies to compete on Lake Michigan waters since the Tribune Small Boat Regatta in 1936.

Pirie and his crew, Joe Haller, from the Chicago Yacht club, scored thirty-one points. Pirie is a member of the Sheridan Shore Yacht club.

Byrne Is Second.

Fran Byrne, a member of the Jackson Park Yacht club, was second at the end of yesterday's events, scoring twenty-eight points. He competed with Walter Etzbach of the Chicago Yacht club. They sailed Stormy, Fleet Captain Leeds Mitchell's dinghy.

Dave Chapman and Hunt Schlagel sailed Chapman's entry into third place, scoring twenty points. Jack Ritchie and William Sprague, a veteran R class crew, sailed the dinghy of Commodore Arthur R. Metz. William Goltra was crew for his wife, Pauline Goltra, and Russel Moon served a crew for Mrs. Allen S. Pearl Jr. in her boat, which she christened for the first of yesterday's contests.

Six Races Today.

The last six races of the regatta will be sailed today, starting at 11 this morning. All races are being sanctioned by the North American Dinghy association and sponsored by the Chicago Yacht club. Yesterday's four heats, over a mile and a half windward-leeward course, were sailed in a puffy north northeast wind. Summaries:

FIRST RACE—Won by Lockwood M. Pirie; Fran Byrne, second; Jack Ritchie, third.

SECOND RACE—Won by Fran Byrne; Lockwood M. Pirie, second; Mrs. Pauline Goltra, third.

THIRD RACE—Won by Lockwood M. Pirie; Dave Chapman, second; Fran Byrne, third.

FOURTH RACE—Won by Lockwood M. Pirie; Fran Byrne, second; Mrs. Allen S. Pearl Jr., third.

MONSANTO TELLS WORKERS WHERE ITS MONEY GOES

Firm's Income Sets Record in 1937.

Adopting a practice recently put into effect by several other large corporations, the Monsanto Chemical company, St. Louis, has issued a special report on its 1937 operations to its employés. In this report, which might be compared to a primer on economics, the employés are told the meaning and extent of the company's financial transactions. It was signed by Edgar Monsanto Queeny, president of the $52,000,000 organization.

Other companies which recently directed special reports to their employés are the General Electric company and the Johns-Manville corporation.

Queeny told the employés in detail what the company does with the money it takes in. He stressed the obligations of the employés and the 8,963 stockholders, the owners, to each other. More important, he said, are the obligations of both stockholders and employés to the company's customers who buy its products.

Sales Largest on Record.

Net sales of the company in 1937, Queeny said, totaled $33,202,355, the largest amount in its history. Net income, $5,162,511, was the largest in the company's history. In 1937 the stockholders got $3,505,852 in dividends, the 5,268 employés were paid $9,208,608 in wages, and the tax collectors got $3,380,553, equal to more than $641 per employé. Based on a total 5,268 employés on the pay roll at the end of the year the average annual wage was $1,748.

For every employé, he said, over $10,000 is invested in land, buildings, machinery, raw materials, inventory, and other items, which is more capital than the average small business man has back of him. Last year the market value of the company's stock averaged $90.85 per share, and on a basis of $3 in dividends the stockholder received a return of 3.30 per cent on the average market value of his investment. Thus the stockholder who had $10,000 invested in the company, or the amount of capital invested per employé, received $330 in dividends, or 3.30 per cent on his investment. And the employé got on the $10,000 invested for him the amount of wages paid during the year plus a Christmas bonus.

"Employés Invest Time."

Because the stockholders are the people who invested their money which made the Monsanto company possible, Queeny said, the employés have a responsibility toward them. "But there is an equal or even greater responsibility to the people who work at Monsanto," he continued. "Stockholders invest their money, but employés invest their time, brains, and labor. And because of that investment employés have an even bigger stake in the business than the stockholders."

"But there is a third responsibility," he said, "even greater than the two I have mentioned. It is a responsibility that you have—that I have, that every stockholder has. We can't dodge it. For if we do there won't be any Monsanto, any dividends, any wages. And that responsibility is to the customer, the man who buys what we produce."

Chrysler Asks Court Rule on Financing Contracts

Washington, D. C., April 2.—(AP)—The Chrysler corporation asked the federal district court here today to rule that its car financing contracts with dealers were legal. Requesting a "declaratory judgment," the corporation said it had no thought that these contracts violated the Sherman anti-trust law. It said it desired a ruling on "the propriety of such contracts so that it may continue its business wihout being subjected to continued harassment from and claims of illegality."

LETTERS

[Letters of 200 words or less addressed to the financial editor will be printed in this column from time to time.]

The Wheat Crop.

TORONTO, Ont., April 2. — That neat item in THE TRIBUNE'S correspondence columns [March 24] signed Frank Pauly and titled "Preparing for a Deluge," of propaganda from England, Germany, and France, attracted my eye.

It was another kind of "deluge" I had in mind, namely a deluge of 1938 wheat. The current bread grain crop in the United States, based on today's prospects and normal weather, has been officially estimated at 830,000,000 bushels. Given the same kind of conditions in Canada, Mr. Editor, a 400,000,000 bushel yield would be, as the boy says "nothing to write home about." North American domestic requirements for 1938 call for some 770,000,000 bushels—leaving 460,000,000 bushels for export, without adding to present carryovers.

That latter figure comes to above 90 per cent of the total international trafic in wheat and wheat-flour during the 1937-38 crop year. Of course, between Herr Hitler and Mr. Weatherman almost anything can happen both to the markets and the wheat fields by harvest time. We will have to "wait and see," and trust that buyers will be available for the inevitable cereal contributions from Argentinian, Australian, Danubian, and Russian fields.

But, if ever the nations decide to beat their armaments into plowshares—what a deluge of goodly fruits would flow from "the good earth"!

A modest portion of the $13,000,000,000 of the nations' armament expenditures in 1938, would furnish quite a few buyers, although the warriors' business would be flat.

WALTER P. DAVISSON.

RAIL'S PROFITS SINK AND GROSS REVENUES RISE

The downward trend of railroads' net incomes in relation to gross revenues is illustrated by data in the annual report of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railway company, issued yesterday. The report shows that in 1899 the company had almost as large a net income as in 1937 on gross revenues less than one-fourth of 1937 gross. The following table shows the gross and net for a number of years:

Year ended Dec. 31.	Gross revenue.	Net income.
1899	$ 43,152,000	$ 6,978,000
1917	169,423,000	38,186,000
1934	134,151,000	7,001,000
1936	163,957,000	9,998,000
1937	175,550,000	7,659,000

From 1934 to 1937 gross increased 30 per cent while net was rising only 9 per cent. In 1917, when gross revenues approximated those of 1936 and 1937, the net income was five times that of 1937.

The 1937 earnings, as previously reported, equaled 60 cents a common share, compared with $1.56 a share in 1936.

KNUTSON, REID JOIN BOARD OF UTILITIES POWER

Richmond, Va., April 2.—[Special.]—Class A stockholders today elected George H. Knutson and Harry Reid, both of New York, to the board of directors of the Utilities Power and Light corporation. Because of a lack of a quorum the annual meeting of preferred stockholders was adjourned for the thirteenth time until April 15.

COTTON

Cotton futures advanced moderately yesterday. Net gains on the Chicago Board of Trade were .02c to .08c. Other American markets were .06c to .11c a lb higher.

Easiness in the Liverpool cotton market was ignored by American traders, and sentiment as a whole was less bearish than recently, due to a considerable extent to the strength in securities. The Commodity Credit corporation was reported to have loaned $228,000,000 on 5,225,000 bales of cotton so far this season.

Spot cotton closed .05c to .10c higher, with New Orleans, 8.85c a lb; New York, 8.70c, and Galveston and Houston at 8.50c. Prices follow:

BUSINESS SLUMP COSTLY TO LIVE STOCK GROWERS

Curtailed Buying Power Cuts Farmers' Return.

The 1937-'38 business recession and the resultant decline in consumer buying power in the big industrial centers in recent months have proved costly to American live stock producers. Anticipating a broad demand for meat animals, and a possible inflationary market, farmers have been paying higher prices for replacement stock in rebuilding herds than current returns on their investment warranted.

During the first two months of 1938 packing plants under federal inspection paid a total of $255,000,000 for cattle, calves, hogs, and sheep, a decline of $27,000,000, or 9.5 per cent, from the outlay last year, according to the department of agriculture.

Farmers' Returns Reduced.

February returns to farmers were cut to the smallest in three years for that month and were off 11 per cent from 1937. The February money was 20 per cent above the average of the years 1933-'37, but 31 per cent under the 1927-'31 average.

Farmers of other countries also are feeling the effects of the decline in American markets, which has reduced the margin of profit on their sales in this country. Consequently imports, pork in particular, are falling. During the week ended March 26 only 100,030 pounds of pork, exclusive of hams, were imported at New York. This compared with 325,945 the same week last year and 469,085 two years ago. Ham imports for the same week dropped from 1,285,373 pounds in 1937 to 890,991 in 1938.

Lower Prices for Consumers.

Consumers have benefitted from the break in live stock to the extent that current meat prices in butcher shops are at the lowest levels in several years. Packers sold top grades of beef ribs downwards from $24.00 per hundred pounds late last week, comparable to the cuts that cost the butchers $30.00 in the same week last year. Best loins at $33.00 compared with $44.00. Reductions in the various cuts of lamb meat from last year's prices ranged from $1.00 to $8.00. Pork was mostly $1.00 to $2.00 lower.

Although prices for all live stock fluctuated sharply last week, some kinds closing lower and some substantially higher than a week earlier, there was no improvement in the weak undercurrent that has prevailed for some time. The three principal classes, steers, hogs, and lambs, averaged together $8.55 per hundred pounds, off 10 cents from the preceding week and $2.65 lower than a year ago, a decline of 23 per cent from 1937.

NEW N. Y. C. TRAIN WILL BE PUT INTO SERVICE JUNE 15

The New York Central system's new streamlined Twentieth Century Limited, now being built in the Pullman shops at South Chicago, will be placed in service June 15, F. E. Williamson, president of the road, said yesterday. June 15 will be the 36th anniversary of the inauguration of the Twentieth Century's Chicago-New York service.

The new train will run on a 16 hour schedule which Williamson said will be the fastest regular running time ever provided between the two cities. There will be four complete trains daily, two operating each way, in the Twentieth Century group. These will require 62 cars and ten streamlined locomotives.

EARLY INFLATION IS IMPROBABLE, EXPERT ASSERTS

Tribune Economist Gives Analysis.

BY REUBEN CAHN.

How soon will real inflation come in the United States?

As the staf economist of the CHICAGO TRIBUNE, it is one of the duties of the writer to give definite answers to such problems, when requested to do so by executives of this newspaper. The question has been popped to him several times.

Late in 1934, inflation seemed imminent to many. In response to the query from one of the managing officers of the TRIBUNE, the writer wrote a memorandum dated, Dec. 15, 1934, which concluded as follows:

"The writer is of the belief that there will not be an inflation in this country of either the French or the German variety, as far ahead as we can see now. That distance is about two years, or to the end of the Roosevelt administration.

Differs With Others.

"In stating confidently that the American dollar will not go haywire, I am not unmindful of the fact that many leading authorities are convinced that it is inevitable. I am not forgetting that one of the eminence of Dr. Edwin Kemmerer has recently adviced the American people to flee from dollars into stocks with all haste before it is too late. Nor is the belief that inflation will not come founded upon any misgivings about the nature and the purposes of the policies pursued by the national government."

Events proved that forecast was sound. The same question has again been put to the writer. The response given in a memorandum to the same managing officer of THE TRIBUNE, under date of March 23, follows:

I believe that we are safe in saying that there cannot be a drastic inflation in the United States in the two and a half years before the next campaign gets under way. Here are some of the considerations which lead to the conclusion that we are inflation proof for a few years, at least:

Currency Twice Covered.

1. Nations have had inflation when the gold cover for their currency was deficient. The gold stock of the country, excluding the sterilized fund, exceeds 12½ billion dollars. The total amount of money in circulation is 6¼ billions. Thus, the outstanding currency is covered twice. A withdrawal of half of our gold stock [which is impossible] would, other things remaining the same, still leave us covered 100 per cent. The old federal reserve act set the minimum gold reserve against note issues at 40 per cent. Two and a half billions of gold would be enough to provide 40 per cent against the currency outstanding.

The Thomas amendment to the original AAA act would enable the government to issue three billion dollars of printing press money. A three billion dollar addition to the outstanding currency would still leave more than 100 per cent gold coverage for our currency.

No Place for Gold To Go.

2. We seem safe from inflation of [illegible] conventional kind because there [illegible] place for gold to flee. Money is [illegible]ed from one place to another be[illegible] the destination appears to be [illegible] than the point of departure. [illegible]e place is now available. The [illegible]ns and the French had the [illegible] States to run to. The English [illegible] had the United States, France, [illegible]erland and Holland. In 1932, [illegible] people had the family mattress, [illegible]zerland, Holland and France. [illegible] mattress has been outlawed and the other countries are unavailable because of the imminence of war and the tactics of Hitler.

3. Inflations are fed by expenditures in excess of revenues. In the nine months ending March 31 of the present fiscal year, the United States treasury will have used about 700 million dollars of borrowed money to pay its bills. Thus, the federal budget is now more nearly balanced than at any time since 1931. Moreover, almost the whole of the borrowed 700 million came from the old-age pension fund.

Halts Deposit Inflation.

Therefore, for almost the first time since 1931, the treasury has been making no increases to the amount of bond issues publicly held. This means that the treasury is not now adding to the reserves of banks as a result of its operations. In other words, for the first time in seven years the bank deposits are not being inflated.

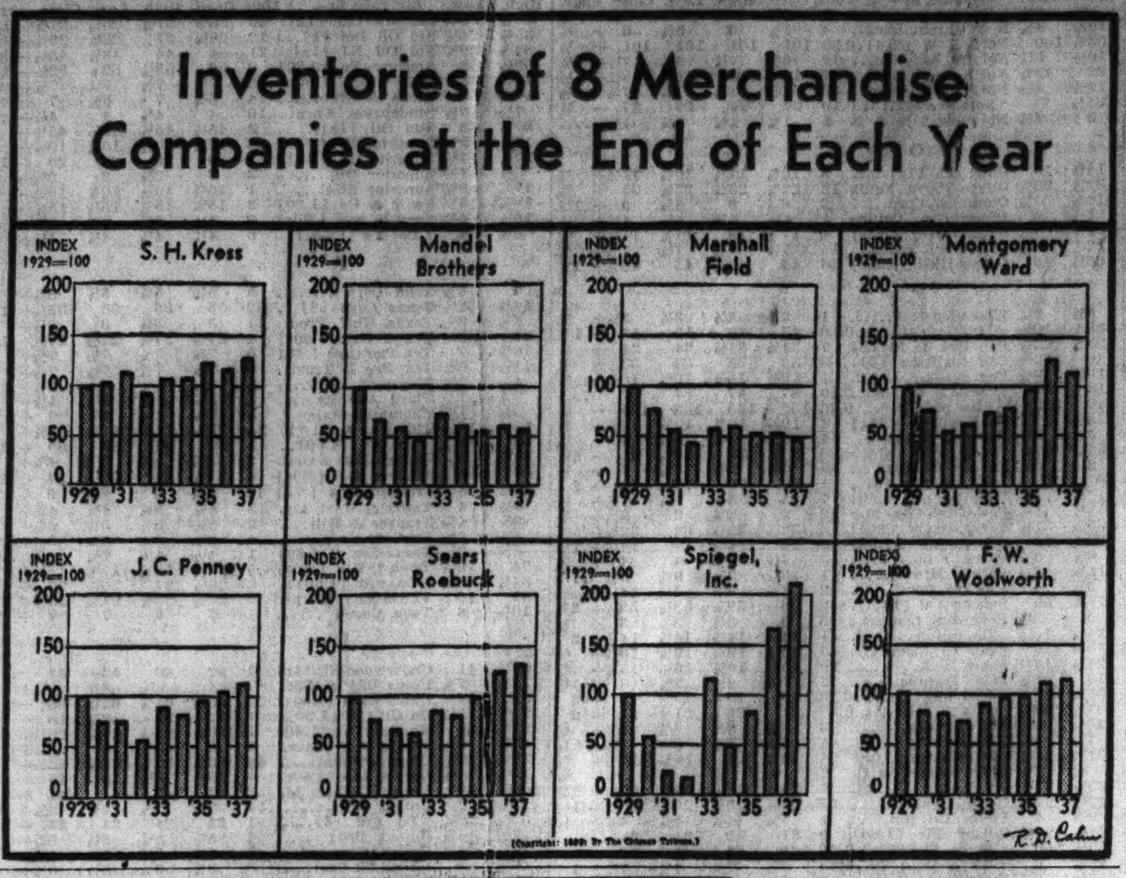
4. An explosive rise in prices will come only when demand has gone beyond the capacity of industries to produce. Increased orders then result in higher prices. With so much of our unused industrial plants available to supply any new demand, runaway prices are out of the question.

5. The government has shown that it has a technique, crude though it is, for stopping inflationary booms in prices. The technique consists of increasing reserve requirements by banks, sterilizing gold, and "talking prices down."

I believe that the methods which are being followed will prevent business from having a lasting recovery. I am convinced that for the remainder of the Roosevelt administration we need not fear a drastic inflation.

Airport Departures Show 37 Per Cent Gain in March

A total of 11,724 passengers departed from the Chicago airport during March, an increase of 37 per cent over March, 1937, airport officials announced yesterday. The total for the first three months of this year was 28,980, an increase of 36 per cent.



Senate Ready to Ease Taxes as Business Aid

BY CHESLY MANLY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 2.—[Special.]—Senate leaders are confident that the bill adopted by the finance committee to relieve business from destructive taxation will slide through the senate by the end of next week and will be accepted by the house of representatives.

Bernard M. Baruch. Plays major rôle in tax relief drive.

No serious effort, it was learned today, will be made in the senate to retain the principle of the punitive tax on undistributed corporate profits, as adopted by the house of representatives. Even Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, one of four members of the finance committee to vote for retention of the house undistributed profits tax principle, will support the bill to be reported early next week by Chairman Pat Harrison [D., Miss.].

Revolt Against President.

Alarmed by the persistence of the business depression and profoundly impressed by the unanimous condemnation by big and little business of the undistributed profits and capital gains taxes, leaders in congress have determined to take the ball away from President Roosevelt and enact a revenue measure that will remove the shackles from enterprise.

Confident that the bill drafted by his committee will become law, Senator Harrison will make a nation-wide radio address intended to reassure business tomorrow night. The tax bill will be ordered reported on Monday and taken up in the senate on Wednesday. Majority Leader Barkley predicts that it will pass in four days, which would mean next Saturday.

Barkley's support of the Harrison bill was the signal that no serious effort would be made by administration supporters to retain the principle of the undistributed profits tax as a face-saving gesture to President Roosevelt.

Small Business Protected.

The finance committee struck out the house provision, which has a graduated supertax up to 4 per cent on undistributed corporation profits in excess of $25,000, and substituted instead a flat corporation income tax of 18 per cent, with a special credit allowance for businesses earning less than $25,000.

Action in the senate will come on a motion to adopt the committee amendment. A few administration supporters, notably Senator Robert M. La Follette [Radical, Wis.], are expected to speak in opposition to the committee amendment, but it generally is conceded that their efforts will get nowhere.

The senate bill also drastically revises the capital gains and losses tax, substituting a flat 15 per cent on gains from assets held more than 18 months, instead of the complicated house formula for taxing a percentage of capital gains as ordinary income according to the length of time the assets were held.

Subject to Conference.

These two main provisions will be subject to compromise in the conference with the managers on the part of the house, but Chairman Harrison is confident the senate amendments will meet no determined opposition in conference. If the house conferees, dominated by Representative Robert L. Doughton [D., N. C.], chairman of the ways and means committee, and Representative Fred M. Vinson [D., Ky.], should insist upon retaining the house provisions, they would have to go back to the house for separate votes.

Senator Harrison is confident that the house is in no mood to fight with the senate over retention of punitive tax policies designed to save Mr. Roosevelt's face. The house overwhelmingly threw out the administration's punitive surtax on the undistributed profits of closely held and family owned corporations, called the "third basket."

Besides the business depression, with 13 million persons unemployed, the most important single factor in the congressional drive for tax relief is Bernard M. Baruch, lifelong Democrat and counsellor of presidents from Woodrow Wilson to Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Mr. Baruch started the ball rolling when he appeared before the senate relief and unemployment committee a month ago and "regretfully" gave it as his opinion that the new depression was traceable more directly to government policy than to anything business could or should do. Mr. Baruch's testimony made a great impression upon his old friend, Senator James F. Byrnes [D., S. C.], chairman of that committee and long a spokesman for President Roosevelt. Senator Byrnes has announced he will support the Harrison bill.

Paves Way in House.

Next Mr. Baruch set to work on another old friend, Senator Harrison, and the tax bill about to emerge from the finance committee will be the Baruch bill. The white haired, wily old capitalist now is at work on old Democratic friends in the house of representatives, preparing the way for a quiet acceptance of the senate tax bill.

Privately, administration leaders in congress say there is no question that Mr. Roosevelt will sign the tax bill if it comes to him in the form approved by the finance committee. It gives him the revenue he demanded—an estimated $2,000,000 more than the budget estimate of $5,330,037,000 for the fiscal year 1939.

Classifying the Railroads.

For the sake of convenience in its reports, the interstate commerce commission has classified the 1,470 American railroads into groups. The Class 1 roads, of which there are 139, according to the latest I. C. C. report, include all the regular carriers with gross annual revenues of $1,000,000 or more.

Class 2 roads total 189, each with gross annual revenues of from $100,000 to $1,000,000. Class 3 roads, of which there are 247, have gross annual revenues of under $100,000.

In addition, there are 338 lessor companies, which are operated under lease to some other railroad, and 199 proprietary roads, whose stock is all owned by operating lines.

Other groups include: 246 switching and terminal roads; 80 "circular" roads—that is logging roads and similar enterprises for which brief returns are made occasionally. Finally, there are 32 "unofficial" roads which make no returns and concerning which the I. C. C. gets its only information from newspaper clippings and unofficial sources.

Tomorrow: Railroad Mileage.

Stock Market Forges Ahead in Broad Rise

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 2.—Rallying in impressive fashion every division of the stock market advanced to higher levels today. Gains ranged from fractions to 4 points in fairly active trading. Turnover was 603,850 shares.

Of the 712 issues traded 614 closed higher, only twenty-seven declined, and seventy-one underwent no change. As measured by the Dow-Jones average the industrial section moved up more than 3 points.

Most observers attributed the rise to technical considerations. Many traders believed that the market had been oversold and encouragement was taken from the drying up of recent heavy selling. Some week-end short covering was also reported.

Other Market Influences.

In addition some circles professed to have been cheered by the failure of the house to rush through the administration's reorganization bill. Another influence was a report from Washington that the President is planning to spend $3,000,000,000 in an effort to stem the depression.

Outstanding was American Telephone and Telegraph's climb of 4¼ points despite a federal communication's report advocating rate cuts and stricter federal control of the system.

Steel stocks and others played prominent parts in the advance. United States Steel, Bethlehem, Crucible, National, and Youngstown showed distinctly improved positions at the final bell despite some selling that cropped up after the news had been received that operations in the Pittsburgh district would decline three points next week. United States Steel gained 1⅝.

All Groups Advance.

Chemicals, coppers, motors, electrical equipments moved rapidly and contributed some of the day's best gains. Chrysler and General Motors each moved up more than a point.

Westinghouse advanced 2. Some of the other substantial gains were: Allied Chemical, 1¾; American Can, 2⅝, Anaconda, 1⅛; Cerro de Pasco, 1¾; Corn Products, 1¼; Eastman Kodak, 3¾; General Electric, 1⅝; Goodrich, 1⅝; International Nickel, 1¾; Johns Manville, 2; Libby Glass, 1⅝; Phillip Morris, 2½.

Farming issues had a profitable session. Case, International Harvester, Caterpillar Tractor, and Oliver Farming were bid up fractions to 3 points. Sears-Roebuck gained 2¼.

Atchison led the rail shares into higher ground on a rise of a point. Other carrier shares improved fractions. Utility issues were steady to fractionally higher.

BANKS' STOCKS FALL SHARPLY; SOME RECOVER

Losses ranging up to as much as 40 points were registered by Chicago bank stocks last week, but several of the more active issues regained most or all of their early losses. Northern Trust declined steadily downward, to close at 480 bid, 495 asked, a loss of 40 points in the week.

Continental Illinois National rallied from a low of 47 to close at 53¼ bid, 54¼ asked, for a net gain of 3 points in the week. First National closed 2 points lower after swinging wildly between a low of 150 and a high of 171. Chicago Title and Trust closed 16 points lower at 103 bid, 105 asked.

Merchandise National dropped 10 points, City National was 6 lower, and Harris Trust and Savings and Lake Shore Trust and Savings each declined 5 points. Terminal National eased 2 points.

STEEL OUTPUT TO DROP IN TWO CHIEF DISTRICTS

Steel ingot production will drop sharply this week, both in the Chicago district and at Pittsburgh, preliminary mill schedules indicated yesterday. Output in the Chicago district will begin the week tomorrow at about 30.7 per cent of theoretical capacity, a decline of 2.9 points from last Monday, but 4½ points higher than a month ago. A year ago the Chicago district was operating at 81.4 per cent of capacity.

Operations at Pittsburgh are scheduled to start tomorrow at 29 per cent of capacity, compared with 32.5 per cent last Monday and an estimated rate of about 35.5 per cent toward the end of last week, according to a report by Dow, Jones & Co.

The declines in operating rates are the result of failure of buying during the last week to hold up to the level of the last few weeks, when new orders were showing a slow but steady rise in volume.

TRADE GLOOM IS LIGHTENED BY RECENT UPTURN

Stock Market's Rise Is Influence.

Another advance by most industrial barometers last week and the rallies of the last two days in stock and commodity prices chased away some of the gloom of recent months as business swung into the second quarter of 1938. Although no assurance of a sustained upturn was given, heads of a number of corporations disclosed at annual meetinsg that operations during March were showing moderate improvement after disappointing results in the first two months. Stock prices after reaching lowest level since 1935, closed about even with a week earlier.

Steel production moved up 2 points last week to 35.7 per cent of capacity, highest level since the middle of November. It was the fourth consecutive week of increase. Freight carloadings jumped, influenced partly by hurried industrial shipments made to beat the general freight rate increase.

Home Building Gains.

Residential building continued to gain, automobile assemblies showed a seasonal increase, and cotton manufacturing activity advanced more than seasonally. The only major index to drop last week was electric power production. New financing increased 50 per cent above the corresponding 1937 week.

Most business indices, however, are still running substantially below a year ago—with declines ranging from 15 to 50 per cent. Bank clearings in 22 major cities in the week ended March 30 showed a drop of 21.8 per cent from the corresponding week of last year.

The Associated Press weekly index of industrial activity last week rose to 69.3 per cent of the 1929-'30 average from 68.8 a week earlier. This increase marked the first time since the start of the business slump last August that the index had advanced for two consecutive weeks. The index, with its seasonally adjusted components, follows:

	Lat. wk.	Prev. wk.	Yr. ago.

Retail Trade Below 1937.

This year's dividend cuts and omissions, wages, and salary reductions, and layoffs have caused a fall in retail trade, compared with a year ago. The department of commerce in Washington, however, reported yesterday that the closing days of March had "lent a mildly favorable aspect to the nation's retail and wholesale trade picture."

"There was a rather general upward movement in retail turnover from the previous week," the report said. "Twenty of the reporting cities definitly showed gains, some of which were pronounced."

Announcements made by the General Electric company emphasized the contrast between 1937 and 1938 industrial operations. On Monday the company reported profits and sales for last year were at the highest levels since 1929. On Friday it announced salary reductions for all full time employés receiving $2,000 a year or more, because of the substantial decline in business.

Reports of railroads continued to indicate that the recent freight rate increases granted by the interstate commerce commission will not solve the carriers' problems, unless accompanied by a general industrial gain. The Association of American Railroads reported that the combined revenues of the nation's class 1 railroads in February had failed for the first time in 17 years to meet the combined operating expenses.

MARCH INCOME TAX RECEIPTS HIGHEST SINCE '20

Washington, D. C., April 2.—[Special.]—The United States treasury reported today that income tax collections in March were $723,002,013, the largest for that month since 1920. It disclosed also that the gross public debt on March 31 was $37,556,302,154, which was $2,828,058,112 larger than on March 31, 1937.

The March income tax receipts exceeded estimates by about $23,000,000. Collections were $700,272,831 in March, 1937.

Chicago Grain Board Attains 90th Birthday

BY LAURENCE BURD.

The Chicago Board of Trade is 90 years old today, but the birthday was little celebrated by members yesterday. A few flags fluttering on the buildings at the foot of La Salle street were the principal recognition of the board's arrival at the four score and ten year mark.

The 44 story home of the Board of Trade completed in 1930.

A birthday party, which had been scheduled for last night, was postponed recently for an indefinite period, and may be held late in May or early in June. But, although birthday hilarity was not so prominent yesterday, traders did take time out to reminisce a little on the board's growth and to remark the contrast between its position now and its status nearly a century ago.

On April 3, 1848, eighty-two citizens of Chicago organized the board "to maintain a commercial exchange, to promote uniformity in the customs and usages of merchants, to inculcate principles of justice and equity in trade."

A newspaper carried this item at the time:

"Merchants of the city have formed a board of trade and opened an office on Water street to transact business on the 'change. Thomas Dyer has been elected president, and a board of twenty-five directors are to pass upon all questions of difference between members. The hour of meeting is from 10 to 11 a. m."

The Chicago of 1848 was a town of 20,000, with muddy streets and quaint ordinances such as:

"In the future citizens are forbidden to let pigs wander in the street. Careless shooting of firearms is hereafter forbidden. So is horse racing in the principal streets."

Year 1848 Is Eventful.

The year 1848, nevertheless, was an eventful one in the city's commercial development and in the significance of the coming growth of the Board of Trade. On Jan. 15 the first telegraphic message was received in Chicago. It was from Milwaukee. On April 6—three days after the birth of the Board of Trade—telegraphic communication with the east was established.

The Illinois and Michigan canal, connecting the Illinois river with Lake Michigan, was finished in April, and the first wheat shipped by rail came into the city in September, 1848.

Soon thereafter, with the boom influence of railroad trafic, more lake shipping, increased telegraphic communication, Chicago became the natural market for farm products, and

STOCK MARKET RISE MAY DECIDE OUTCOME OF C. & O. RAIL FIGHT

New York, April 2.—(AP)—Robert R. Young, financier fighting powerful Wall street interests over the remains of the $2,000,000,000 Van Sweringen rail empire, gathered his forces today for a crucial battle Monday.

Whether he wins or loses Monday when Federal Judge Albert C. Coxe is to decide if Guaranty Trust company, third largest bank in the United States, should be enjoined from blocking Young's plans, may depend, it became evident today, on a curious indenture devised by the Van Sweringen brothers.

Under the terms of the indenture, the rise in the stock market, if it continues, may float Young and his associates free and clear of their major difficulties.

Under the indenture 71 per cent of the stock of the Chesapeake corporation, middle Van Sweringen holding company, is pledged as collateral for three issues of bonds of Alleghany corporation, top company in the system. Guaranty Trust holds the Chesapeake shares as trustee under the indenture which apparently gives Guaranty the right to vote the stock if its appraised value falls below 150 per cent of the value of the bonds. Young's attorneys assert that the value arose above that figure before the end of March.

FOREIGN MONEY STEADY; MORE GOLD ARRIVES

The major European currencies were mostly unchanged in terms of the United States dollar in quiet foreign exchange transactions yesterday. The British pound held at $4.96½, and the French franc at 3.07 cents. The Belgian belga weakened, however, closing 0.02 cent lower at 16.85 cents.

The Mexican peso was quoted at the nominal selling rate of 22.75 cents, or unchanged, but 2 points below its quotation of a week ago. Japanese yen at 28.95 cents were off 2 points on the day.

The arrival in New York late on Friday of $2,638,000 gold from abroad, $1,620,000 from England and $1,018,000 from India, was reported yesterday by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. These shipments brought the total of the week's gold imports at New York to $17,726,000. Imports were $10,172,000 from England, $4,170,000 from Belgium, and $2,384,000 from India. Gold held under earmark for foreign account was reduced $1,125,000, making a net gain of $18,851,000 for the week.

MUELLER BRASS COMPANY OMITS DIVIDEND ACTION

Directors of the Mueller Brass company, Port Huron, Mich., yesterday failed to take any action on the dividend usually paid in the second quarter of the company's fiscal year, which ends on Nov. 30.

Atlantic Oil Investment corporation declared a dividend of 10 cents, payable April 23. An extra dividend of 5 cents and the regular monthly dividend of the same amount were declared by directors of the Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines, Ltd.

CONTINENTAL OIL 1937 EARNINGS SET NEW PEAK

Total $13,948,460, or $2.98 a Share.

The Continental Oil company yesterday reported 1937 earnings were the largest in the company's history. Net profit was $13,948,460, or $2.98 a common share, compared with 1936 earnings of $9,612,596, or $2.05 a share. Earnings of an unusual or nonrecurring nature included in profits totaled $57,487 in 1937, against $1,386,735 in the preceding year.

Sales of refined products increased 5.34 per cent over 1936 and set a new record. Dan Moran, president, said in the annual report that daily average crude oil production increased to 62,434 barrels, from 49,108 in 1936. Total crude oil output was 22,788,378 barrels [42 gallons to a barrel].

Taxes Take 23 Millions.

"Federal and state oil and gasoline excise taxes paid or accrued during 1937 amounted to $19,783,908," Moran said. "In addition, the company paid direct taxes of $3,180,415, making a total of $22,964,323 taxes paid or accrued in respect to the properties, earnings, and products of this company. This represents $4.90 per share on the outstanding stock."

The report of Graham-Paige Motors corporation showed net loss of $2,253,485 for last year, against net loss of $470,145 in 1936. Sales for the year, including 250 tractors built for Sears, Roebuck & Co., amounted to $13,050,226, against $15,634,716 in the preceding year.

Joseph B. Graham, president, told stockholders that he hoped plans for future operations would be sufficiently developed for presentation to stockholders at the annual meeting April 18. As part of the plan, he said, substantial economies have been effected since Jan. 1.

Crowell Publishing Earns Less.

Crowell Publishing company reported consolidated 1937 net income of $2,851,500, equal after preferred dividends to $3.68 a share, compared with $2,923,118, or $3.81 a share, in 1936.

Aluminum, Ltd., and wholly owned subsidiaries had consolidated 1937 net profit of $8,482,046, or $11.83 a common share, compared with net profit in 1936 of $2,320,912, or $2.50 a share.

Net loss of the Seversky Aircraft corporation for 1937 amounted to $1,210,516, against 1936 loss of $70,843. Unfilled orders, which at the end of 1937 totaled $1,707,293, had increased on March 15, 1938, to $2,913,959.

GRAIN TRADERS
Our bulletin of April 4 contains an article discussing the more important bullish and bearish factors surrounding the current wheat market. An analysis of these factors convinces us wheat prices will have a substantial advance by July 1 and possibly by May 1.
Another article in this bulletin names three separate methods of approach to name a logical average price for Chicago July wheat between now and July 1.
In order to acquaint traders with our grain market service, which is now more than ten years old, we will mail our bulletin of April 4 showing a profit of 11¼ cents on short May wheat closed out on March 28, and also our bulletin of April 11 when issued, upon receipt of one dollar.

WHEAT SLUMPS; BIG CROP, LOWER PRICE FORESEEN

Forecast Made by Wallace Depresses Market.

CHICAGO GRAIN FUTURES

Closing prices on the May delivery of principal grains on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday:

	Yesterday.	Friday.	Yr.ago.
Wheat	$ .84⅝	$ .85⅝	$1.43¾
Corn	.61⅛	.61⅝	1.29⅛
Oats	.28¾	.29⅝	.50⅜
Rye	.62¼	.64¼	1.16½
Soy beans	.98⅜	.99½	1.75

General liquidation by holders of wheat futures developed yesterday on American grain exchanges, with prices declining more than 2 cents from the early high point. All deliveries on the Chicago Board of Trade sold at new lows for the season, the July contract touching 80⅛ cents at the extreme. This figure is the lowest quoted for any future since July, 1935.

Closing trades on wheat futures were slightly above the low point due to short covering. Net losses were 1¼ to 1½ cents a bushel, the latter on the May delivery.

Part of the selling was the result of a bearish construction placed by the trade on remarks on Friday by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace at a hearing before the senate finance committee.

Low Prices Forecast.

Wallace forecast very low prices in the event of a large wheat crop. Based on the condition of the winter wheat crop on April 1, James E. Bennett & Co. yesterday estimated the possible yield at 755,000,000 bushels, or 132,000,000 bushels in excess of the 1923-'32 average.

Although selling of wheat futures yesterday was largely in small lots, it disclosed lack of aggressive support, and many stop loss orders were uncovered as prices declined. There was some buying early on apprehension of damages to the southwestern winter wheat crop as the result of low temperatures, but the upturn was brief.

Liverpool wheat futures were unchanged to ½ cent a bushel higher. No export business in either American or Canadian grain was reported despite the sharp decline in futures prices.

Corn Loses Early Gain.

May corn advanced fractionally early to 61⅞ cents, a new high since early in January, but the market reacted sharply later in sympathy with wheat and closed ¼ to ½ cent a bushel lower.

Shipping sales of more than 300,000 bushels of cash corn from Chicago to eastern lake ports were confirmed and traders believed the grain ultimately would go to Europe. According to trade estimates between 2,000,000 and 4,000,000 bushels of cash corn already has been sold for shipment from Chicago.

Oats closed ¼ to ⅞ cent lower, with the July and September contracts at new lows for the season. All deliveries of rye were in new low ground for the season, closing 1½ to 2 cents a bushel lower. Soy beans declined 1 to 1¼ cents a bushel.

GRAIN IN OTHER MARKETS

CHICAGO GRAIN BOARD ATTAINS 90TH BIRTHDAY

Traders Recall Progress of Big Market.

speculative trading, particularly in grains, became a popular pastime. So fast did the speculative fever grow that Chicago grain trade by 1855 had reached the volume and complexity of many modern markets.

Traders Have Strenuous Life.

The strenuous life of the grain trader of the day has been described by Charles H. Taylor in his "History of the Board of Trade":

They were "the hardest worked race of beings on the face of the earth. They got up at sunrise, bolted their steak and rolls, and rushed down to the 'first board,' which met at a well known corner between 8 and 11 o'clock.

"At 11, the 'second board' met at the board of trade rooms [time changed from 10, as at first], but buyers and sellers waited for the New York dispatches, which were due about noon.

"Early in the afternoon the 'third board' congregated on the corner before mentioned [called Gamblers' corner by some unregenerate rascal], where nothing was heard but 'No. 1 red,' 'Standard,' 'my option all next week,' 'your option next ten days,' etc., until the courthouse bell striking 6 o'clock cleared the sidewalk and allowed pedestrians to pass unmolested. The 'fourth board' met on the sidewalk opposite Tremont house an hour later, and trading continued until 9 o'clock, when the overworked grain traders went home for a few hours' sleep."

Fortunes Made and Lost.

Fortunes were made and lost in the midst of it all. A. B. P. Hutchinson, for example, one of the craftiest speculators of all time, blew in from New England in 1859, bought a Board of Trade membership for $5, and in four weeks traded his way into enough money to pay off debts left in the east and keep for himself $150,000.

"Old Hutch" knew what all traders then and now would like to know—when to get in and when to get out.

Today the Board of Trade membership has grown from eighty-two to more than 1,500. From a local membership it has become one in which two-thirds of the firms represented are scattered over thirty states and in foreign countries. A seat on the trading floor, which Old Hutch bought for $5 in 1859 sold for $62,000 in 1929. Traders, instead of doing their shouting in the street and obstructing trafic, carry on their business within the forty-four story Board of Trade building.

Grain Trading Changes.

And there are differences besides these apparent ones — differences which have made a fundamental effect on the whole process of grain trading, and on those who are directly or indirectly concerned as producers, consumers, middlemen, and speculators in grain marketing.

Farmers today in this country produce annually some three-quarters of a billion bushels of wheat, two and a half billion bushels of corn, 40 million bushels of rye, and more than 25 million bushels of soy beans. A large amount of this production is a surplus over local needs and must find a market.

The greatest outlet for it is Chicago—largest grain distributing market in the world. The focal point is the Chicago Board of Trade—an organized market to serve both producer and consumer.

Since 1856 receipts of grain in Chicago have totaled 26½ billion bushels, enough grain to fill a freight train 125,000 miles long, which means a distance of five times around the earth.

Commended by Hoover.

During the time that all of this grain has been received, a system of orderly handling and marketing naturally has evolved. Former President Herbert Hoover described the Board of Trade as the world's most economical agency for the distribution of foodstuffs.

Before the organization of the board, speculation by traders was largely in the cash market. The uncertainties and irregularities of receipts and shipments made for violent price fluctuations.

The speculation was intensified by the railroads—the city found its importing radius extended from a few miles by wagon to several hundred miles by rail; its markets were expanding from those to meet purely local needs to the meeting of demands throughout the country and abroad.

On top of this came our civil war, which gave a big impetus to what is known as "futures trading." The union army had to have large orders for future delivery, and the government used the board's market to avoid speculation—by buying contracts for the future delivery of a fixed supply of a certain commodity at a definite price.

Future Contract Evolved.

Before this—even from 1848—trading on a cash basis had not been the only kind of transaction. The "to arrive" contract, calling for delivery at a specified time, was more and more, until it gradually evolved into the present type of futures contract.

Development by the board of carefully defined weights and grades brought a tendency toward standardization of contracts. Moreover, speculation more and more centered on contracts calling for delivery during a period of month, instead of on a specified day.

The service of a futures exchange is to provide a continuous and immediate market so that those who wish to escape the risk of price changes may pass the risk on to speculators who seek to profit by the changes.

By far the greatest volume of futures trading is in wheat, because so much of it is shipped out of the region in which it is grown.

TAYLOR, LOREE WILL GIVE UP POSTS THIS WEEK

Two Great Leaders Had Colorful Careers.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Two widely known industrial leaders will retire this week. One is Myron C. Taylor, who will give up the key position in United States Steel corporation—chairman of the board. He will remain a member of the board, however. The other is Leonor F. Loree, veteran president of the Delaware and Hudson company, who is 80 years old and is "calling it a day."

Myron C. Taylor.

Leonor F. Loree.

Taylor's position as chairman of the world's largest steel company will be filled by Edward R. Stettinius Jr. Loree's successor has not been selected. Several names have been mentioned, including that of J. L. Beven, senior vice president of the Illinois Central.

Early Days Differed.

Although both Taylor and Loree are college men, their early days differed greatly. Taylor was born in Lyons, N. Y., Jan. 18, 1874, of parents whose families on both sides had been well to do for several generations. Loree was born in Fulton City, Ill., on April 23, 1858, the son of a French-American mill hand.

Taylor, with fine family connections that gave him entry into the social life of Boston, New York, and Washington as a young man, chose the law as a career. He was graduated from Cornell at 20 and on his twenty-first birthday was admitted to the New York bar. At Cornell he studied corporation law under Charles E. Hughes, now chief justice of the United States Supreme court. Specializing in corporation law, Taylor became closely connected with several large companies which ultimately led to his buying a large and profitable interest in textile companies.

Enters Banking Field.

With a comfortable fortune in his possession, Taylor retired from the textile field in the early 1920s and became interested in banking. He participated in the reorganization of Goodyear Tire and Rubber.

In 1925 Taylor was elected to the board and the finance committee of U. S. Steel. But he had given up most of his business activity and traveled over the world until 1928. In that year he was persuaded by J. P. Morgan and the late George F. Baker to take an active part in the steel corporation's affairs. In 1932 he became chairman and chief executive officer.

Early in the period in which he was chief executive officer of U. S. Steel Taylor maintained an aloofness generally held to be characteristic of those under the influence of the house of Morgan. But this wore away and in recent years he has been affable in his dealings with the public.

Signs C. I. O. Agreement.

During the period of his control, U. S. Steel entered into a working agreement with steel workers affiliated with John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization. This action brought both condemnation and commendation. Some executives in the steel industry contended that U. S. Steel sold out to radical labor and others said that bitter and costly strife was avoided.

One of the most important undertakings of Taylor was the reorganization of the huge and unwieldy steel corporation. It was to put new life into the company that young men were brought in during Taylor's term.

One of these, Stettinius, who will observe his 38th birthday in May, on Wednesday will take the post of chairman which Taylor will vacate on Tuesday. Stettinus was born in Chicago the son of a Chicago banker who became a partner in J. P. Morgan & Co. At 24 he went to work for General Motors and 10 years later joined U. S. Steel as vice-chairman of the finance committee.

Loree's Career Colorful.

Loree, the other veteran of the business world, has had a colorful career. He worked his way through Rutgers college, graduating at the age of 19. His first job was in the surveying department of the Pennsylvania railroad. He had two years in the army, worked for the Mexican National railway and headed the Baltimore and Ohio, Rock Island and Kansas City Southern railroads before he was made president of the Delaware and Hudson.

About ten years ago Loree carried out a financial coup in which he earned about $35,000,000 for the Delaware and Hudson through purchase and sale of a large block of Wabash and Lehigh Valley railroad stock. In 1932, at the instance of Loree, the Delaware and Hudson bought 495,000 shares of New York Central stock, but this venture proved unprofitable.

FUTURE PRICES OF COMMODITIES RALLY FURTHER

Part of Losses Early in Week Recovered.

Advances in commodity futures prices yesterday, following the rally of Friday, carried some contracts nearly up to the levels of a week earlier. Rubber and hides, however, which led the decline early in the week, were still substantially below a week ago, although they registered sharp gains yesterday and Friday.

The Dow-Jones commodity futures index closed yesterday at 50.14, up 0.05 for the day, but off 0.96 for the week.

Crude rubber futures advanced 0.38 to 0.48 cent a pound yesterday, responding to aggressive buying by a leading London dealer and commission house demand. The May contract closed at 11.40 cents a pound, down about 1½ cents for the week.

Hides Regain Part of Loss.

A jump of 0.25 to 0.29 cent a pound in hide contracts left closing quotations off 0.25 to 0.60 cent for the week. The closing June price yesterday was 8.22 cents.

Led by heavy copper buying in the cash export market yesterday, nonferrous metals showed strength. Export copper sold yesterday at 9.53 to 9.62½ cents a pound, compared with 9.55 cents on Friday and 9.8 cents on the preceding Saturday.

Lead and zinc prices were unchanged in the spot market. Spot tin was unchanged yesterday at 39 cents. The fall earlier in the week to that price was a drop of 2¼ cents for the week, making a low level since 1933. Consumer demand during the latter part of the week was better, however.

Tin Futures Advance.

Tin futures nominal prices yesterday advanced .10 cent a pound. Quotations were off nearly 2 cents for the week. Copper contracts, gaining .10 to .15 cent yesterday, edged slightly above levels of the preceding Saturday. Lead futures advanced .13 to .17 cent, making quotations about even with the week before. Zinc remained steady, closing quiet and unchanged.

Coffee contracts closed the week about on a par with prices a week earlier. Santos yesterday opened .01 cent lower to .02 higher and closed .01 higher to .03 cent lower. Rio finished up .02 to off .01 cent a pound.

Sugar Futures Steady.

Little change was shown in sugar futures yesterday or during the week. During the week the spot price of refined sugar was cut from 4.65 to 4.50 cents a pound. Raw sugar held steady throughout the week at about 3 cents a pound.

Cottonseed oil yesterday closed up .07 to .11 cent a pound, leaving losses for the week of .10 to .17 cent a pound. Cocoa futures were .03 to .04 cent higher yesterday and finished practically unchanged for the week.

Preferred Stock Penalized.

Nearly a year ago common stockholders began to suspect that the undistributed profits tax would result in smaller dividends in lean years. During the last few months the preferred stockholder has found that even his preferred position may mean little if his company has paid out its earnings in preferred and common dividends when business was good.

The undistributed profits tax appears to be undermining the traditional investment qualities of preferred stock. Most major corporations formerly tried to maintain preferred dividends in periods of poor business as well as in prosperous years. Surpluses built up when earnings were large enabled them to do this. Now, however, corporations cannot accumulate surpluses without paying the penalty tax.

Recently Armour & Co. of Illinois deferred action on its $6 prior preferred and on its 7 per cent preferred and the Republic Steel corporation omitted its 6 per cent convertible preferred dividend. It is questionable whether either company would have passed these payments if it were not for the undistributed profits tax. Failure to make the payments illustrates how the undistributed profits tax forces major companies into extreme conservatism during a business recession.

Recent operations of both companies have been unfavorable, but both operated at a profit in their 1937 fiscal years. Both are strong financially. Armour paid the federal government $35,000 in undistributed profits last year and Republic paid $1,200,000. Both companies were forced to pay these taxes despite payments on preferred accumulations. Armour also paid $2,845,933 in common dividends. Republic could have paid off more in preferred accumulations in 1937, but decided to conserve resources when steel activity declined late in the year.

The preferred stockholder whose shares are noncumulative is in a particularly unfortunate position. Omitted dividends on cumulative preferred shares will be paid eventually if a corporation weathers a depression and begins to earn again, but omitted dividends on noncumulative preferred stock probably never will be paid. There is nothing that requires a corporation to make back payments on noncumulative preferred issues.

Under present tax laws corporations are given an incentive to let preferred dividends accumulate in periods of poor business, because it is possible to escape a large part of the undistributed profits tax in a good year by paying up preferred accumulations.

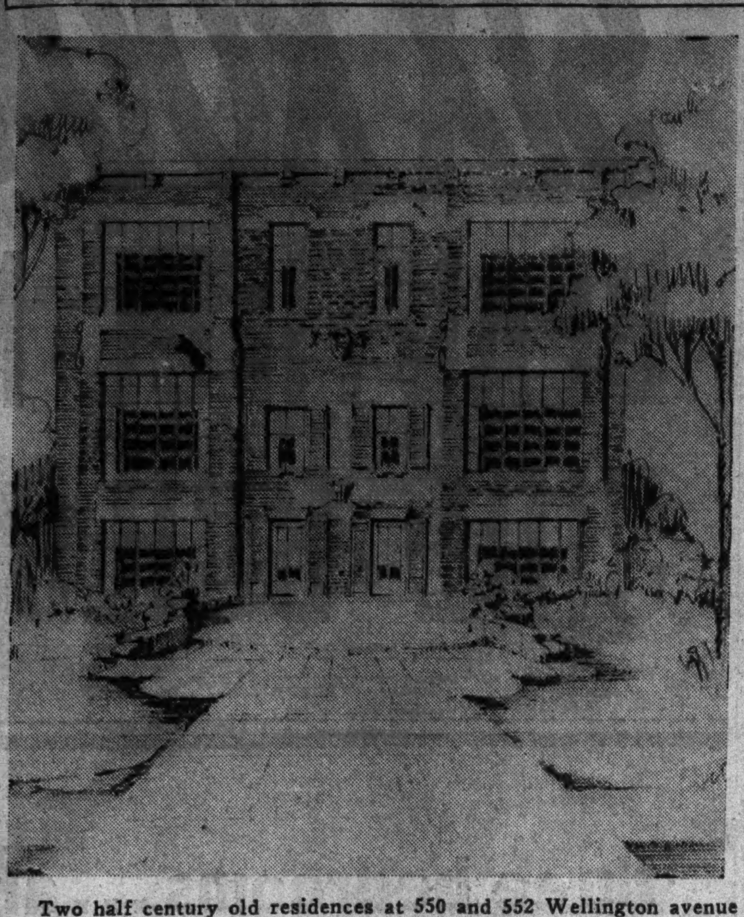
Suburbs Build Homes Faster than Chicago—200 New Units Planned

Remodeling Advances Rents 1,100 Pct.



Two half century old residences at 550 and 552 Wellington avenue are being converted into six modern studio apartments by De Forrest A. Matteson, Chicago builder, from plans by William C. Presto. The proposed new rent roll will be eleven times that of 1935. Three suites already have been leased.

Modernization Permits Large Rental Boost

What modernization can do to improve rents in an obsolete residential property is shown in a north side project now under way. Two twin houses, erected fifty years ago at 550 and 552 Wellington avenue, which in 1935 had a combined annual rental of $600, are being remodeled from plans by William C. Presto, architect, by De Forrest A. Matteson, Chicago builder.

When completed, according to present plans, the six modern studio suites will have an annual rental of $6,600, or eleven times that of three year ago. Three of the flats already have been leased, one for $75 and two at $100 monthly rental each.

Vacant Since 1935.

Since rents reached the low of $600 in 1935 the two houses have been vacant. A few months ago a $15,000 loan was negotiated through Irvin Jacobs & Co. for ten years at 5½ per cent and remodeling was started. Completion is set for April 20.

There will be one apartment of three rooms and five suites of four rooms each. By removing the front steps and porch of the old houses and having the entrances on the street level, the former English basement is being rebuilt into two apartments.

Will Have Two Floor Levels.

Because of the eleven and twelve foot ceiling heights in the old structures it was possible to have two floor levels in each suite. The bedroom and bathroom floors have been elevated two feet, still leaving them with nine foot ceiling heights.

By eliminating the center pier dividing the extremely tall, narrow windows, characteristic of the late nineteenth century architecture, one large casement window now forms practically the entire front of each studio living room.

Each living room will have a wood burning fireplace flanked by open book shelves. Old style English plank flooring, laid with wooden pegs, is used throughout the Wellington studios, as the building has been named.

Gold Seal Liquor Building Reported Fully Occupied

The A. H. Patch Manufacturing company leased the fourth and fifth floors in the Gold Seal Liquor building, 707-11 West Harrison street, for five years at a reported term rental of $22,800. According to A. E. Neuberg & Co., who represented all parties, the building is now fully occupied.

Asplund, professor of architecture at the Royal Institute of Technology, Stockholm, Sweden, will discuss the Swedish housing situation at a dinner meeting sponsored by the Chicago chapter, American Institute of Architects, the Illinois Society of Architects, and the Metropolitan Housing council, at the Palmer house, Tuesday evening, April 5.

SELL KENWOOD FLATS WHERE M'KINLEY WAS WORLD'S FAIR GUEST

One of the landmarks in the Kenwood district, the 45 year old Arizona apartments at the southwest corner of 42d place and Lake Park avenue, and with frontage on Greenwood avenue, was sold yesterday by the Chicago Title and Trust company, as trustee, to Hulda M. Lawrence. The price was not disclosed. John M. Thomson was sole broker.

Mrs. Lawrence then leased the building to the Dexter Realty company for fifteen years. The fifty-five large suites will be rebuilt into smaller units. C. F. Sauter & Co. were brokers in the leasing.

This gray stone structure, when erected in 1893 just prior to the World's Fair, was regarded as one of the finest buildings of its kind in the middle west. A special apartment, with its own private entrance, was built for John P. Pratt, a capitalist and the original owner of the building. President McKinley was entertained in this suite by Pratt. The site years before was part of the Cook county poor farm.

Sterling Bolt Company Buys West Side Factory

The Sterling Bolt company, 707 West Van Buren street, purchased the two story brick building, at 1228-44 West Monroe street, containing approximately 63,000 square feet of floor space, from the State Mutual Life Assurance company for an undisclosed consideration. The building was erected for and until recently occupied by the Globe Laundry company. McMenemy, Inc. represented the seller, and Herbert H. Schoenlank, of Schoenlank & Kirschner, Inc. represented the buyer.

At the Realty Boards

The Chicago Building Costs Book, prepared in 1935 by the Chicago Real Estate board under the direction of Arthur Kruggel, then chairman of the appraisal division, and assisted by Eugene and Max Fuhrer, architects and engineers, has been revised and brought up to date as of March 1, 1938, under the direction of Kruggel, now president of the board. The revised supplement can now be obtained at the Chicago Real Estate board, 32 West Randolph street.

Gael Sullivan, associate state director of the Federal Housing administration, will discuss the revised FHA at the regular meeting of the Evanston-North Shore Real Estate board tomorrow evening at the Georgian hotel.

Women members of the Oak Park Real Estate board will have entire charge of the meeting of that group tomorrow noon at the Oak Manor hotel. Miss Helen M. Cirese of Cirese & Cirese, Chicago, attorneys, will be the guest speaker. She will be introduced by Mrs. R. C. Leland of the program committee, who arranged the meeting. Mrs. W. H. Wright, vice president, will preside. Men members are invited to attend.

W. C. TACKETT WILL BUILD 48 MORE HOUSES

Fourteen Are Scheduled for Lincolnshire.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Suburban home projects last week continued to lead Chicago building in number of residential units and aggregate cost. Details on a total of nearly 200 new homes were made public yesterday, practically all of them in the moderate price bracket. There were no large residential projects announced for Chicago and permits for only a few homes were taken out.

W. C. Tackett, Inc., who has been a steady builder of homes in western, northwestern, and north shore suburbs, yesterday said he is having plans drawn by his architect, Victor Grimmer, for forty-eight new residences. Of this total twenty will be erected in Scarsdale, his Arlington Heights subdivision, twenty in La Grange Park, and eight in Kenilworth Gardens in Wilmette.

27 Under Construction.

Tackett said that twenty-seven homes are under construction in Scarsdale, most of which have been sold. In La Grange Park twelve were built last year, all of which were sold and occupied. Seven more are nearing completion.

S. M. Homan, president of Lincolnshire Estates, Inc., reported that he had sold fourteen lots on which fourteen homes will be built this spring and summer. Plans for all have been approved by the architectural committee of Lincolnshire Estates. The new development, near the Lincolnshire Country club, is named Arcadia Woodlands.

Planning Ten More.

George F. Nixon, who has finished and sold five residences in his Glenayre development, east of Glenview, has four more nearing completion. Sketches are being made by C. W. Lampe for ten more on which work is scheduled to start on May 1.

These homes are in the $18,000-$20,000 bracket and the smallest site is more than one-half acre. Nixon recently planted ten carloads of trees and shrubs in his landscaping program and also planted 1,940 perennials.

Herbert R. Jacobsen of 1 North La Salle street outlined a residential construction program for the eighty acre Sherwood subdivision, in the northwest part of Arlington Heights, which eventually is expected to total 140 homes.

Work Started on Six.

Work has just been started on six, all of which have been sold. According to Jacobsen the development is restricted and also supervised architecturally. Following the customary rule of eastern subdivisions garages must be made an integral part of the house. Every exterior plan must be approved.

Every lot in the subdivision has 100 feet of frontage. The six houses now going up range in price from $7,500 to $10,900 for land and building. All are being financed through Dovenmuehle, Inc.

Northwestern University Buys Clark-Wacker Corner

Northwestern university purchased the southeast corner of Wacker drive and North Clark street, 60 by 70 feet, from the Seabury-Western Theological seminary for $10,000, according to the revenue stamps on the deed. The property is under lease as a parking station and will continue to be used for that purpose, the new owner having no plans for improvement, according to the office of the business manager of the university.

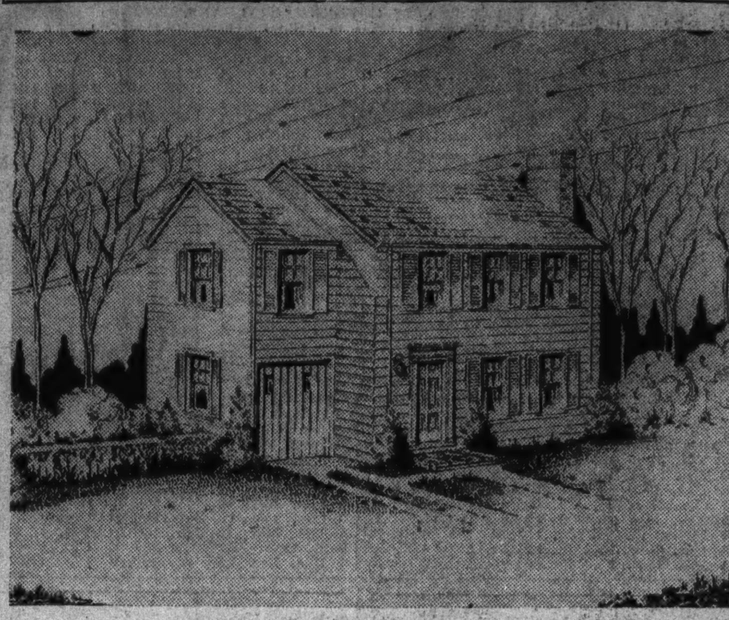
Rent North Michigan Ave. Space for Lingerie Shop

Annette Rosenberg and Rica Kaplan leased the store at 176 North Michigan avenue from May 1, 1938, to April 30, 1943, for a reported term rental of $30,000, and will operate a lingerie and trousseau shop under the firm name of Rica Kaplan, Inc. The lessor was the estate of Henry Schoellkopf. Frank S. Slosson of Hooker & Slosson was broker for all parties. The store will be modernized and air-conditioned.

Evanston Building Will Be Remodeled for Cafe

George Diamantis has leased from the Balaban & Katz corporation the Hoyburn building, 615-17 Davis street, Evanston, for seventeen years at a reported term rental of $114,600. The property will be rebuilt for use as a restaurant. Harry A. Nichols and H. Koop were brokers.

Being Built in Arlington Heights



The above house, for which Whitney & Beach are the architects, has just been started on Harvard road in Sherwood subdivision, in the northwest part of Arlington Heights. Costing $9,100 for land and building it has been purchased by Grant E. Judge, a tax accountant with Arthur Anderson & Co. It is one of six houses under construction in this project being marketed by Herbert R. Jacobsen. All have been sold. Details are given in the adjoining column.

REMINGTON-RAND RENTS JACKSON FRANKLIN SPACE

One of the largest downtown office building leases in several months was closed yesterday when Remington Rand, Inc. rented two entire floors and space in two more, in the Jackson-Franklin building. Approximately 30,000 square feet of floor space was leased for ten years beginning May 1.

All of the fourth and fifth floors, part of the second, and a store unit on the first floor were rented. Remington Rand one of the world's largest dealers in business machines and equipment has been located in the seven story building at 214 West Monroe street since 1923.

All of the space just leased will be rebuilt and modernized with the installation of indirect lighting and acoustically treated ceilings. H. C. Tresch, manager of B. F. Lindheimer, agent of the building, represented both parties in the lease negotiations.

TWO HAMMOND HOUSES SOLD FOR $45,000 TOTAL

Two residences were sold in Hammond, Ind., yesterday for a total of $45,000 according to Richard Weiss of Roscoe E. Woods and associates, realty firm.

The house at 7042 Woodmar avenue, one of eighteen residences erected during 1937 in the Roscoe Woods' subdivision "Woodmar," was sold by Paul Rountree, attorney, to Sam T. Ball, assistant general superintendent of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company.

The house at 6608 Forest avenue was sold by Alfred Kaufman to Dr. N. K. Forster. Kaufman, son of Carl Kaufman of Kaufman & Wolf, who sold their Hammond department store to Goldblatt Brothers, formerly was manager of the Goldblatt loop store in Chicago.

Gives Bungalow as Part Payment for Apartments

Mr. and Mrs. John T. Dieter sold to Carl and Bertha Schulzke the new nine apartment building at 6103-07 North Claremont avenue, for an undisclosed consideration, giving the new brick bungalow at 2830 Greenleaf avenue as part payment. John J. Kern, Inc., was broker.

Advertising Firm Rents Board of Trade Space

Douglass Doolittle, president of Salesvertising Associates, Inc., formerly at 234 South Wells street, has leased larger quarters in the Board of Trade building. W. J. Gumin of Ross & Browne and Albert H. Wetten & Co. were brokers.

Brokers' Notes

Joseph P. White, general manager of the William Zelosky company for more than a decade, is now associated with Bert H. Laudermilk's Town and Country estates at Mount Prospect.

Maurice H. Berkson has left the realty firm of Coen, Berkson & Co., Inc., and on April 1 opened offices in the Metropolitan building, 134 North La Salle street, under his own name.

Work Started on $100,000 Terminal Unit

Work was started Friday on the first $100,000 unit of a big interstate operators' truck freight depot at 34th and Iron streets, fronting on the south branch of the river, by the recently formed American Terminal company. The first section will be 516 by 75 feet and is being built by the Robert G. Regan Construction company. Frederick Dolke is architect. Completion is set for June 15.

Louis C. Seaverns.
[Walinger Photo.]

According to Louis C. Seaverns, president of the terminal company, space will be provided for 112 trucks to load and unload at one time. Leases will be made with interstate trucking companies so that freight can be interchanged for long hauls.

The property, which fronts 1,000 feet on the river, was leased for twenty-five years from the Levi Z. Leiter estate with an option to renew for a similar term.

The company is incorporated under the Illinois laws, but no stock will be offered to the public. Charles H. Morse Jr. is vice president, Jefferson D. Currier, secretary-treasurer, and J. M. Bruce is general manager. These four and Charles H. Morse Sr., chairman of Fairbanks, Morse & Co.; S. M. Rinaker, and S. W. Witwer compose the terminal company's board of directors.

The company has its general offices in the Fairbanks Morse building, Michigan avenue and Harrison street.

Andes Candies, Inc., Will Open Three New Branches

With 1937 proving a banner year in candy sales, Andes Candies, Inc., yesterday announced that this year's expansion program already calls for three new units. Space has been leased at 61 East Van Buren street, in the Buckingham building. A second store will be at Lawrence and Lincoln avenues. The third will be announced later, according to A. G. Kanelos, president.

ORATORY RISES TO HEIGHTS IN TENTH DISTRICT

3 Democrats Strive for Congress.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Oratory in the Democratic campaign for the congress nomination in the 10th congressional district, which the voters will confer a week from next Tuesday, rose to unusual heights last week as the three aspirants for the place approached the home stretch.

These three—Joseph F. Elward, William Mason, and C. Hilding Anderson—are the chief entertainers in the congressional race so far as north and northwest voters are concerned. The fight is much quieter on the Republican side in the district, and in the 7th, 8th, and 9th districts, where the Democrats are also providing the principal diversion.

The vigor that Elward has brought to the campaign has prompted his backers, the regular Democrats, to make confident predictions of victory for him in the primary and in the election next November.

Others in the Way.

That these predictions may be premature, however, appears from the fact that both a Horner-Courtney candidate and a man who made a strong campaign two years ago stand between him and the nomination.

The bidder for insurgent Democratic votes is Anderson, who, although he lacks the formal indorsement of the Horner high command [which has announced a strict "hands off" policy in the congressional fights,] nevertheless has the support of many of the Horner ward workers.

Mason, who is unattached, lost the nomination to Charles J. Wightman by only 2,401 votes in 1936, losing Cook county by only 304 ballots. However, he had the aid of the Horner insurgents then, which he lacks this year.

Elward, a lawyer and professor of real estate law at Loyola university, claims a sympathetic understanding of the needs of small business men, to whom he pledges his aid. Mason, a building contractor, promises tax relief for home owners. Anderson, an attorney, has made his main campaign theme the elimination of "boss" rule, which he says is evidenced by the regulars' ditching of Judge Jarecki.

Church Has Challenger.

Ralph E. Church, the present 10th district congressman, has the full weight of the county Republican organization behind him. His principal challenger for the small Lake county vote of his party [5,819 last primary as against 35,742 in Cook county] is John Fay Harris of Lake Forest, blind war veteran. Dr. Robert E. Schaefer, Chicago osteopath, has the advantageous final position in the Republican column.

The unopposed Republicans in the eighth and ninth districts are improving their time by building the organizations they hope will carry them to victory next fall while the Democrats in their districts are battling each other for the nominations.

Charles E. Dewey, assistant secretary of the treasury under President Coolidge, the 9th district Republican, already has begun his speechmaking for the November campaign, which will continue throughout the summer, he says. Mrs. Rena E. Pikiel, the nominee-apparent in the eighth, also plans an early start.

Leo Kocialkowski, incumbent Democrat in the eighth, is home from Washington to direct his campaign for renomination, even though he has the regular organization's support against a large field that his friends believe should scatter his opposition vote.

Has Horner Help.

Dr. John J. Liss, a dentist who lives in the seventh district, has the aid of Horner-Courtney workers and the indorsement of the C. I. O.-inspired Labor's Nonpartisan league. Stanley Henry Kunz, the former congressman who has become a perennial primary candidate since the electorate retired him in Kocialkowski's favor in 1932, is fourth in the ballot list of seven. Others are Stanley Guziec, Robert McCutcheon, Leopold Lagona, and Peter Lavorata.

No Horner-Courtney opposition of consequence has developed in the ninth district against the regular-supported incumbent, James McAndrews, who has represented four districts in congress, the fourth, fifth, sixth, and ninth. His opponents are Frank W. Brown and Michael J. Hanrahan.

The 11th district situation in McHenry, Dupage, Kane, and Will counties, remained unruffled; both major party candidates are unopposed for the nominations. William J. Bossingham of Joliet hopes next November to unseat the incumbent Republican, Chauncey W. Reed of West Chicago.

Food and Health Is Topic of 41st Ward G.O.P. Women

Members of the 41st Ward Regular Republican Women's organization will meet at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the clubroom at 162 North State street. The program will offer a talk on "Food and Its Relation to Health and Beauty." Mrs Helen Betts and Mrs. Lillian Post are program chairmen. Members are urged to bring their friends.

Clubs Assist Hospitals to Reclaim Lives

BY JUANITA DALY.

Although established charities are not neglected by the organized woman's groups, even in this field clubwomen like to pioneer. New projects are being introduced continually by enterprising public welfare chairmen. The clubs do not switch from one project to another whenever a new idea is a worthy one, but instead they add the new one to the list and contribute to all of them.

Mrs. Charles Shaw.

The outstanding project started this year by Mrs. Charles E. Shaw, 7th district public welfare chairman, offers support to the occupational therapy work conducted at Dunning, state hospital for the insane at 6500 Irving Park road. All the district clubs responded enthusiastically to this constructive work, which still is in the developmental stages in American institutions.

Aids in Recovery.

Occupational therapy is not considered a cure for occupational diseases. Rather, it is a treatment which includes a form of activity devised to aid recovery from mental or physical disorder.

An early history of work in occupational therapy reveals that it was used in Egypt in 200 B. C. and by the Greeks in 176 A. D. As early as 1791 in France, doctors were freeing the insane from their strait jackets and cells and experimenting with their patients in occupational therapy.

However, the real impetus for the work came during the world war when treatment was needed for maimed and nervously wrecked soldiers.

Occupational therapy work at Dunning has been conducted for more than ten years. It is now under the direction of Miss Florence Starck, who formerly was doing similar work in Elgin. Early in the year Mrs. Shaw started a campaign to familiarize clubs in her district with the type of work being done and to suggest ways the clubs could help.

Clubs Provide Materials.

According to a special doctor's prescription for each case, the patient is allowed to weave, crochet, sew, braid, knit, or make wooden knick-knacks. The clubwomen are asked to provide scraps of material, old silk hose, burlap, yarn, sugar and flour sacks, and wood for these articles.

The clubs also coöperate by selling the articles after the patient has completed them. Such articles as rugs, pot-holders, aprons, curtains, tea towels, and small tablecloths are disposed of rapidly at club or church bazars.

Mrs. Shaw sponsors one big district day a year for collecting and delivering these materials. The individual clubs have their special days for a general pickup whenever several women have baskets ready.

Others Aid Work.

Among the public welfare chairmen of district clubs who help Mrs. Shaw are Mrs. Oscar M. Lund, Wicker Park; Mrs. Katherine Feser and Mrs. M. J. Halloran, Irving Park Catholic; Mrs. Thomas A. Jordan, Irving Park; Mrs. Charles A. De La Master and Mrs. Clarence C. White, Norwood Park; Mrs. A. L. Opper, Des Plaines; Mrs. F. H. Wilberding, Albany Park; Mrs. Albert F. Spilman, Mayfair; Miss Emma Shotts, Edison Park; Mrs. John Pabich Jr., Belmont; Mrs. George Petrie, Hermosa, and Dr. Phoebe Dyer, Altrui.

Collect Rags for Veterans.

One club gathers rags, washes and tears them, sews them together, dyes and rolls them into balls for Hines and North Chicago hospitals. Mrs. Shaw's own club, the Norwood Park group, does extensive work in therapy. It has a special committee for this work. The committee members include Mrs. Leif Locke, Mrs. Vincent Brokaw, Mrs. Howard Knox, Mrs. Leif Lander, Mrs. Sidney Johnson, Mrs. Thomas O'Kane, Mrs. Warren Buckley, Mrs. Munder Reinhardtsen, anl Mrs. Harry Taft.

ALVERNIA GROUP PLANS TO GIVE LENTEN PROGRAM

The Alvernia Conservatory of Music and School of Expression, 3922 North Lawndale avenue, will give a Lenten program at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening in the Alvernia High school auditorium, 3901 North Ridgeway avenue. The dramatic students will present a four act play, "Barter," and the Conservatory Symphony orchestra will offer a program of classical music.

Proceeds will be donated to St. Joseph's hospital in Beaver Dam., Wis. The biblical drama is under the direction of Sister M. Canisia of the St. Francis order, head of the dramatic department.

The parts will be taken as follows: Phanuel, Dolores M. McNaney; Miriam, Florence M. Szot and Eleanor M. Pink; Jobal, Joan Smith; Varrus, Elsie J. Emmerich; Rhea, Ellen M. Marquette; Judas Iscariot, Dorothy Olinski; Mary Magdalen, Jacquell M. Kosinski; mother of Judas, Marion McCauley; Oreb, Catherine Ferrier; Lora, Carol Delfosse; Esther, Grace Komornichi.

Fall Comes in Spring for Roller Skaters

This is bad form, but it is not an unusual position, in fancy roller skating. These first spring days bring out the skates and skating enthusiasts, but they do not bring back last year's agility in whirls, turning corners, and jumping obstacles. Perhaps with some practice, though, Vincent Holmstrom will be in exhibition form for the roller skating party tomorrow night from 7:30 until 11:30 o'clock in the Arcadia rink, Broadway and Montrose avenue, sponsored by the student council of North Park college, Foster and Kedzie avenues. Members of the college, academy, faculty, seminary, music school, and Bible institute have been invited. Others practicing ahead of time are (left to right) Roger Anderson, Ella Jane Meyer, and Lillian Carlson. Miss Carlson is mistress of the rink and the others are assisting with the arrangements. 'SAFEST TOWN' TITLE AWARDED TO DES PLAINES

Praise Is from National Safety Council.

Des Plaines indulged in a little back patting last Friday. To residents and business men gathered for the finishing touches to the new safety gates at the River road crossing in the city, Mayor Hobart Ahbe read a telegram he had received notifying him that the city had won the title of "safest city in the country of its size in 1937."

An invitation to come to Washington, D. C., and attend a testimonial dinner to be given April 4 in the Mayfair hotel by the National Safety council was extended in the telegram. Mayor Ahbe and and E. H. Drexler, chief of police, will make the trip and take the bows for the suburb.

Twelve Deaths at Crossing.

The announcement of Des Plaines as the "safest city" coming at this time adds a note of significance to the dedication, said Chief Drexler. Twelve fatalities have occurred at the point, which has become known as "death crossing" in the northwest section.

The safety honor is awarded on the basis of two factors, according to L. E. Bland, secretary of the trafic contest committee of the National Safety council. Reduction of motor fatalities counts 50 per cent and safety activities in engineering, enforcement, and education count for the other 50 per cent.

Praise for Program.

"Des Plaines presented a thorough, well rounded program," said Mr. Bland. "It was one of the best that we have ever had before us for that population group."

There has not been a motor fatality in the town for the last eighteen months, according to Chief Drexler. Safety activities were carried on by the local safety council in coöperation with the police department.

Safety work last year included marking lanes in the winding streets of the town, placing buttons on either side of pedestrian lanes at crossings, sponsoring schoolboy patrols, repairing and replacing more than one hundred signs, and erecting signs warning of dead end streets.

NORWOOD PARK PLANS VOTE ON SANITARY AREA

Will Enable Obtaining of WPA Grant.

Residents in that part of Norwood Park township bounded by Irving Park road, Narragansett, Foster, and Ozanam avenues, will go to the polls April 12 to vote on the question of establishing a sanitary district. The election was ordered March 22 by County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki on the petition of 379 of the 1,009 voters registered in the township.

Acting as chairman of the board of commissioners of the proposed district and being assisted by Judge Thomas J. Lynch and Judge Benjamin P. Epstein of the Circuit court, Judge Jarecki fixed the boundary and set the time and place for the election.

Objections Are Settled.

The polling place will be at 7300 Irving Park road. Objections to the proposed district by some residents were settled at a hearing. Edwin D. Lawlor filed the petition in the County court in behalf of the petitioners.

Leaders in the petition movement were the township board and other officials. The officials are Henry J. Claussen, supervisor, and Bruce Harnden, clerk. Members of the board are Theodore Clatz, A. O. Peterson, Charles Klemkie, Ralph Blake, and Thomas Headley.

It was impossible for the township, which is unincorporated, to receive a WPA grant or issue bonds for a permanent sewer, according to Mr. Claussen. When the township is incorporated as a sanitary district it will be eligible for the grant, he explained.

Will Name Trustees.

In the event the voters approve the proposed district, Judge Jarecki will appoint trustees who will apply for the grant and issue the bonds to cover the township's part of the construction cost.

12 INCUMBENT ASSEMBLYMEN GET APPROVAL

Reason for Ignoring Others Unstated.

BY EDWARD WILSON.

Thirteen northwest side members of the state legislature campaigning for reëlection in the April 12 primaries were refused indorsement or recommendation by the nonpartisan Legislative Voters' league in its report made public yesterday. Twelve sitting senators and representatives in the eight northwest districts were recommended for return.

In the foreword to the list of recommendations the league stated it had carefully investigated and compared the qualifications of more than 650 candidates for the legislature and listed those who appear to be best fitted.

The foreword also said: "Because of the great number of candidates in the field the list contains only the names of those whom the league recommends or who seem most acceptable in districts in which there are contests."

No Reasons Given.

Because of this fact the report has been criticized by candidates and others as being incomplete. In several instances no recommendations were made for specific positions. In those cases no reasons were given for denying comment. In like manner no reasons were given for ignoring the 13 incumbents.

The northwest side legislators not recommended for return were, according to districts: 7th, Senator Charles F. Baumrucker [D.], Representative Emmett McGrath [D.]; 8th, Representative Nick Keller [R.]; 14th, Representative John F. Petit [D.]; 21st, Senator George M. Maypole [D.], Representative Robert Petrone [R.]; 23d, Senator Thomas E. Keane [D.], Representative Stanley A. Halick [D.]; 27th, Senator John Broderick [D], Representatives Edward J. Petlak [D.] and Joseph N. De Grazio [R.]; 25th, Senator Frank J. Huckin Jr. [D.], Representative Raymond T. O'Keefe [D.].

Although the league in its foreword condemns the practice of permitting legislators to accept "employment from other public bodies whose interests are directly affected by legislation," four of the recommended representatives hold local political positions.

Following are the league's recommendations for northwest districts in Cook county and the 8th, 14th, and 41st districts in the metropolitan area:

SEVENTH DISTRICT

Senate.

Democrat—Sinsheimer preferred.

Ralph E. Sinsheimer, 935 Spruce street, Winnetka, salesman. Has served community as police magistrate for twelve years and has good local support.

In the 1936 election he had a 149 vote plurality on the face of returns and was given a certificate of election. After four months of service he was unseated by Democratic majority in senate. During short period of service Senator Bidwill was attentive to work and gave indications of possessing legislative capacity.

Frank E. Foster, 15544 Loomis avenue, Harvey, lawyer. Served four terms in house with creditable record.

Democratic [one to be nominated] —Burdett recommended.

Robert J. Burdett, 17834 Howe avenue, Homewood, lawyer. High grade, well informed, dependable young man, well qualified for legislative work.

EIGHTH DISTRICT

House.

Democratic [one to be nominated] —Bolger recommended.

Thomas J. Bolger, McHenry, farmer. Ending fourth term with a good record.

Republican [two to be nominated] —Francis and Kapschull recommended.

Charles H. Francis, Woodstock, lawyer. Formerly served three terms in house with very good record.

Charles C. Kapschull, West Deerfield, engineer and contractor. A man of excellent standing; served as state commander of American Legion. Regarded as capable and forceful; seems to have good qualifications.

FOURTEENTH DISTRICT

House.

Democratic [one to be nominated] —Schuler preferred.

Leon M. Schuler, Aurora, former banker. Served as Kane county treasurer for four years. Credited with good record. Appears capable of giving equally useful service as legislator.

Republican [two to be nominated] —Friedland should be reëlected on record; Mrs. Peffers and Daniels appear well qualified.

John C. Friedland, Elgin, lawyer. Ending first term, did well, showed unusual fitness for legislative work.

Maud N. Peffers, Aurora, homemaker. Woman of fine character and standing, active in women's organizations of her city and in civic affairs.

FACTIONS BATTLE FOR PLACES AS COMMITTEEMEN

George F. Nixon Names His Candidates.

The struggle for control of the Cook county country towns by both Democratic and Republican parties is due to increase in the ten northwest suburban townships this week. Township committeemen will be elected at the April 12 primaries.

George F. Nixon.

The committeeman is a party officer and a member of the county committee. He shares in forming the slate and policy determination.

The most recent development in the township committeeman campaigns, since the list of candidates was published in these columns, has been the announcement by George F. Nixon of his candidates.

Nixon Leads Faction.

Nixon, candidate for both the county board and the Northfield township committeeman post, heads a country town faction in the Republican party which is attempting to unseat and replace the five Republican members of the county board. Nixon charges the present Republican commissioners permitted the Democrats to increase county budgets.

Nixon claims 13 Republican committeeman candidates have declared themselves in favor of his campaign. Those on the northwest side are, according to townships: Leyden, Thomas Carey; Maine, Fred A. Fulle, also a candidate for county commissioner; Niles, Fredinand C. Baumann, and Norwood Park, D. O. Peterson. Only one Republican candidate has filed in Barrington, Elk Grove, Hanover, Schaumburg and Wheeling. The regular Republican slate has not been changed. William Busse, Elk Grove committeeman and county board member, is one of the leaders against the Nixon faction.

William Busse.

Two Unattached.

In Palatine township two unattached candidates have filed against the regular party candidate. The regular aspirant is the incumbent, George W. Howes, and he is opposed by Edwin J. Nunn and Lawrence W. Inkster.

The Democratic party is facing another of the Nash-Kelly, Horner-Courtney splits in the township elections and no candidate indorsements have been changed since the opening of the campaign.

SLOT MACHINE JUDGE IS ISSUE IN 41ST DISTRICT

Campaign Recalls Fight for Impeachment.

The attempted impeachment of Judge Edwin L. Wilson of Joliet in the legislature last year because he issued an injunction restraining authorities from interfering with the operation of slot machines is being recalled in several legislative fights this year, particularly in the 41st senatorial [Joliet] district.

Representative Joseph Sam Perry [D., Wheaton] came within two votes of obtaining an investigation of the judge's conduct by a committee of the house. While his resolution, offered last June 2, called for Wilson's impeachment, the house executive committee modified it to provide for investigation and would have left it to the house membership to decide what action should be taken. The resolution failed of adoption even in that form by the close vote of 63 to 61 on a tabling motion put by Representative Frank Ryan [D., Chicago]].

Ties Hands of Authorities.

Perry offered his resolution after it had been revealed that Judge Wilson had issued a temporary injunction on April 27, 1936, enjoining authorities of Will county from interfering with slot machines and upholding the position of the owners, the Crown Supply company of Chicago, that the machines were legal vending devices.

A final decision on the injunction was postponed and was still pending last June after Judge Wilson had heard arguments on the merits of the case in November, 1936.

Representative Perry, in his impeachment resolution, charged the judge with "wilful and corrupt conduct in office and high crimes and misdemeanors." He declared that the jurist had given the Crown Supply company a monopoly by his injunction and that the injunction had effectually prevented law enforcing officers from performing their duty for more than a year.

Bar Members Support Judge.

The impeachment resolution was referred to the house executive committee, which made its recommendation on June 8. The following day Majority Leader Benjamin S. Adamowski [D., Chicago], the committee chairman, reported the resolution to the house and Perry moved that the house concur in the report.

Adamowski moved, as a substitute, that the house concur in the report of the committee, but that the resolution be placed on the speaker's table, which would have the effect of killing it. Adamowski read to the house the preamble to a resolution adopted by 58 of the 60 members of the Will county bar, who practiced before Judge Wilson, affirming their belief in his "honesty and integrity, fairness and ability."

This brought a report from F. W. Lewis [D., Robinson], Gov. Horner's downstate floor leader. "I'm surprised that all 60 didn't give him a clean bill of health," Lewis said. "How many would refuse to sign such a document concerning a man before whom they have to practice?"

Roll Call Ultra-Important.

In the midst of the wrangling Representative Ryan made his motion to table the entire matter and the roll was called.

"This roll," said Minority Leader Elmer J. Schnackenberg [R., Chicago] yesterday, "was one of the most important ever held in the house. The charges against Judge Wilson were so serious that I felt it my duty to join in any valid legislative method of examining into their truth. If true they would reflect seriously upon the judge; if untrue, his friends should have welcomed an opportunity to exonerate him."

The roll call was as follows:

Since the First Man Died

Since the first man died, and the first woman mourned him, the responsibility for final arrangements has been, strangely but certainly, the responsibility of women.

That is one reason why I took up the study of modern funeral methods and management. I felt there was a place in the world for a woman who could, with some authority, advise other women on such a matter.

I shall give you, from time to time in the future, my findings on various subjects, as they affect the Halleman Funeral Home, 4138 W. North Ave.

O, DONALD DUCK, THIS ITEM MAY INTEREST YOU!

Carolina Relative Makes Guest Appearance.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Penny postcards to:

DONALD DUCK—A Charlotte, N. C., station put on a program the other morning titled "Peeps of Spring," picking up the pips of baby chicks as they were hatching. And they had a guest star, too—a duckling!

IRVING CAESAR—Those "Songs of Safety" you are presenting on Rudy Vallee's hour are making a big hit with children. And if they help youngsters to be even a little more careful [and they should because they make safety education a delightful experience to children] your contribution to radio will be eminently worth while.

LEO FITZPATRICK—Compilation of fan mail on the swing vs. old fashioned rendition of folk tunes, contest, which your ban on swinging "Loch Lomond" on WJR provoked, shows melody a 4 and ½ to 1 favorite over the hot versions. The ratio is much higher in favor of melody in Detroit while in New York swing has the edge over sweet renditions.

ANDRE KOSTELANETZ—Quite a novel idea that one of yours—of sending to the library of congress recordings of Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" and a movement from Ferde Grofe's "Grand Canyon Suite" as music likely to be popular in 1988 when you have suggested the container be opened.

H. LESLIE ATLASS—Orrin Dunlap, New York radio writer, has expressed the same idea that you have: That Charlie McCarthy would never have been swung to such fantastic heights of popularity except for W. C. Fields stooging last summer.

FRANK MUNN—Though you are little mentioned by listeners nowadays your Friday and Sunday evening broadcasts, particularly the Album of Familiar Music on Sundays continue to be most pleasant. The whole program is very easy to take.

JUDGE J. M. BRAUDE—When your sessions of Safety Court are on the air the house to house salesmen [and bill collectors], we hear, have a tough time of it because housewives won't leave their radios to let them in. So the canvassers catch their lunches from 11:30 to 12!

JACK BENNY—Your candor in admitting personally the other day that your last week's show with all those guest stars was not so hot is to be commended. You can't be in top form every Sunday the year around. But if you maintain the percentage you have in the past you have nothing to worry about.

EDDIE and FANNY CAVANAUGH—Congratulations on your long record of broadcasting in Chicago—16 years this week. We doubt whether there is another Chicago act that has had such a continuous record in local broadcasting circles.

RALPH GINSBURGH—Lots of listeners are still asking about you, expressing the hope that your fine stringed orchestra music get back on the air. What are your radio plans, if any?

MRS. BYRD ARNOLD SMITH—Kind words are filtering into this corner concerning your Creative Living talks on WAAF [5:30 p. m. Sundays]. "Better than Dale Carnegie," some listeners say.

BOB HOPE—Our one regret that Your Hollywood Parade left the air was that you were sawed off. Your comedy improved remarkably during the last year. Hope you will soon find a sponsor and get back on coast to coast.

MARY PICKFORD—A Hollywood spy relays the information that you have plans to put your cosmetic company on the air with a dramatic series this summer. What are the details?

BOB BURNS, JIM AMECHIE, and CLIFF COVERT—And how are the new babies? And mamas?

MAXINE GRAY—You have had plenty of tough luck what with being injured in that train wreck and then getting the measles on top of that. We are sorry to hear that you cannot return to singing with Hal Kemp's orchestra for several months and hope you will mend quickly in California.

BOB CROSBY—What's all this about your rushing to Three Rivers, Mich., when you have a day or two off? Who is the young lady?

Back on the Air

After a two weeks stay in the hospital Sara Rehm, star soloist of the "Musical Steelmakers" program, will be heard on W-G-N and the Mutual network at 4 p. m. today. Miss Rehm heard the past few programs from her hospital bed. Next month Miss Rehm will be guest star on a program with Harold Stokes and the W-G-N dance orchestra.

LAST SYMPHONY PROGRAM TO BE AIRED APRIL 23

Dr. Frederick Stock will direct the Chicago Symphony orchestra in one of the closing popular concerts of the 1937-'38 symphony season in Orchestra hall on Saturday night. The concert, which will feature the favorite compositions of six of the masters, will be broadcast in its entirety over W-G-N and the Mutual system between 8:15 p. m. and 10:15 p. m. Henry Weber, conductor of the W-G-N Concert orchestra, will be heard as commentator.

The final popular concert and broadcast will be heard on Saturday night April 23.

BOB ELSON BACK ON SPORTS HOUR; HAS 2 SPONSORS

Bob Elson, back in Chicago after a two week visit to the training camps of the Chicago Cubs, White Sox, and the Pittsburgh Pirates in California, will inaugurate his new sports review under two sponsors beginning at 6:30 p. m. tomorrow. The review which has been presented under a sustaining basis for the last three weeks by Jim Fleming will be heard at the same hour every week night.

In addition to a complete coverage of baseball, the review also will feature race results from all tracks and the latest results in other sports.

MAGIC KEY WILL FEATURE ARMY SALUTE TODAY

'Flying Fortress' Broadcast Scheduled.

A graphic demonstration of United States army facilities, including pickups from an army substratosphere plane attempting to break an altitude record, from the army's new "flying fortress," from West Point and from two army bases, will be broadcast during the Magic Key program at 1 p. m. today over WENR-NBC.

Arranged as a tribute to Army day, the entire army portion of the full-hour broadcast will be under the personal supervision of Gen. Malin Craig, chief of staf of the United States army.

Lotte Lehmann, Metropolitan Opera soprano, will be soloist with the Magic Key orchestra, conducted by Frank Black, during the first half of the program.

Linton Wells, Magic Key roving reporter, will open the army tribute, speaking from the NBC Radio City studios. Wells will coördinate all of the outside pickups, which also include broadcasts from Fort Hoyle, Md., and from Fort Monmouth, N. J.

Switching to Washington, Gen. Craig will discuss briefly the diversified work of the army. The next stop will be the West Point academy, where Gen. Jay L. Benedict, superintendent, will speak. Songs by the 160-voice choir and the sound of the cadets marching also will be heard.

A picture of how artillery batteries fire at unseen objects, through the use of a radio link, will be given when the program shifts to Fort Hoyle.

Flying over New York in the XB-15, the air corps' mightiest "flying fortress," Maj. Gen. Oscar Westover, chief of the U. S. Army Air corps, will relay greetings to the radio audience from the giant plane.

BANQUET HONORS MOSES GINZBURG, JEWISH EDITOR

1,500 Expected at Feast This Evening.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Fifteen hundred guests are expected to attend the banquet to be held tonight in the Hotel Sherman for Moses Philip Ginzburg. Sponsored by a committee of which Judge Harry M. Fisher of the Superior court, is chairman, this occasion pays double tribute to the anniversaries of Mr. Ginzburg's golden wedding and his jubilee as editor of the Daily Jewish Courier, the first Yiddish journal to be published in the United States.

Moses Ginzburg.

Mr. Ginzburg married Feige Rachel Levin on April 2, 1888, and both of them for the last half century have devoted their lives to the furtherance of Jewish community work.

"It is with great privilege and pride that we honor Mr. Ginzburg," said Judge Fisher, "a man who has been an inspiration and of essential personal help in the founding and growth of many of our present organizations and institutions, some of which have grown to national importance."

Mr. Ginzburg became active in the Chicago Jewish community in 1883 when with Moses Dulsky and Nathan B. Grossberg he assisted in organizing the Hebrew Literature society of which he was the first secretary.

Among Chicago institutions which owe their origin to the inspiration of Mr. Ginzburg are the Marks Nathan orphan home, opened in 1904; the Jewish People's institute, whose charter was obtained in 1903; the Hebrew theological college, which opened in 1920; Mount Sinai hospital, the Federated Jewish charities, the Daughters of Zion day and night nursery and infant home, and the organization of the union of orthodox Hebrew congregations in Chicago.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, April 4.

Do not be in a hurry to uncover roses, for a late freeze may injure the new growths. Bulb beds may be partially uncovered if the plants have made some growth. A dusting with commercial plant food will aid the plants in the production of larger and better flowers. Plant plenty of annuals in bare spots in the perennial border, unless it is desired to use all perennials. Watch the hotbeds and coldframes daily, for they will need ventilation and watering occasionally. Pansies may be planted now, if they are available. Use stocky plants that are not in full bloom. They do best during cool weather. They are fine for planting in bulb beds.

Tuesday, April 5.

Ferns do well in shady places, such as the north side of houses, along shady walks, beside streams, at the edges of pools. Transplant hardy chrysansthemums about nine inches apart in rich soil. Cuttings can be made of the young growths or the outer growths may be used. As soon as the plants have made some growth divisions of goldenglow, gaillardia, lily-of-the-valley, phlox, salvia, shasta daisies, and others of similar nature can be made. Good covers for bulb beds are violas, wild blue phlox, and arabis. Give the perennial border an application of balanced commercial plant food. Spray the ground surrounding peonies with bordeaux mixture.

Wednesday, April 6.

Winter damage in the rock garden should be repaired; damage may have resulted from miniature washouts and upheaval of plants by frost. Do this work as soon as the frost is out of the ground. Repair erosion damage with fresh soil. Dahlia tubers from which it is planned to raise cuttings may be started in boxes or pots of sand. Keep the plants in a warm place and well watered. When the growths have formed with three or four sets of leaves they may be cut and placed in a sandy soil to root. This method is followed to increase rare varieties, otherwise divisions are made. Leave an eye on each division.

Thursday, April 7.

Many kinds of seeds may be sown indoors in small boxes. Use equal parts of soil, sand, and peat moss. If the arborvitæ tips are sheared or cut back the plants will grow more compact. Many other evergreens can be aided in this way. Make the first sowing of peas, lettuce, radishes, and spinach as soon as the ground can be worked. Prune hedges before growth starts. Burn the tops of iris to kill the borer. Cut back to the ground all shrubs that have been bady winter killed.

Friday, April 8.

Remove potted seedlings to the hotbed for rapid growing. Plunge the pots to the rims and keep them level and in straight rows. Plant new fruit trees. All grafting of fruit trees should be done before growth starts; cions cut and stored in sand should be in fine condition at this time. Investigate the value and use of the dwarf fruit trees. They are ornamental, easily cared for, and bear fruit much earlier than the standard trees. Make a sowing of cabbage, cauliflower, peppers, and tomatoes for early plants. Try a few herbs, such as sage, dill, thyme, and others.

Saturday, April 9.

A trial garden where new varieties may be tested is an interesting addition to a garden if one can spare the room. It need not be more than 5 or 6 feet wide by 10 to 12 feet long. Encourage the children to have a garden plot. Plant vines, both tender and hardy. A few annual vines are the variegated hop, hyacinth bean, moonvine, morning glory, scarlet runner, cathedral bells or cobæa, balloon vine, and cardinal vine.

WHAT ABOUT A 50TH AT 6.3?
THE METER SAYS A 60TH AT f.8
IF YOU WANT ME TO SIT FOR A PORTRAIT, YOU'D BETTER HURRY UP.
WE'LL BE READY IN JUST A MINUTE, PHYLLIS.
WE'VE GOT TO GET THE EXPOSURE RIGHT, AUNTIE BLOSSOM.
LET'S TAKE THAT READING AGAIN. THAT SEEMS AWFULLY FAST.
WELL, IT'S A SUPERSENSITIVE PAN, YOU KNOW.
THAT'S RIGHT— THAT'S RATED AT 24 INSTEAD OF 16 — OR 21 SCHEINER.
WHAT'S THE DEPTH OF FOCUS AT f.8
AT 7½ FEET, IT IS BETWEEN 6 FEET 10 AND 8 FEET 2
THAT'S FOR A CIRCLE OF CONFUSION OF 1/100 OF AN INCH.
THAT'S GOOD ENOUGH FOR 11 X 14'S. ALL WE'LL MAKE IS 5 X 7'S.
THEN YOU CAN ALLOW 6 INCHES MORE ON THE NEAR SIDE AN' 9 ON THE FAR SIDE.
LET'S GO AN' GET A FILTER.
YOU CAN USE A NUMBER A2 AND GIVE IT 1.6 MORE EXPOSURE.
LET'S SEE, THAT WOULD MAKE IT ABOUT A 50TH AT 7.
OR A 25TH AT ABOUT 9.
OF COURSE, IF WE USE THAT Z179 FINE GRAIN DEVELOPER, WE'LL HAVE TO GIVE IT 100% MORE.
THAT'S THE ONE THAT TAKES 18 MINUTES AT 65 AND 14 AT 70.
MAYBE AUNTIE BLOSSOM WILL GET TIRED POSIN'.
WE'D BETTER GO AND SEE, MAYBE.

"LIKE GETTING A NEW WASHER FREE"

—Say Women of This New, SAFE Miracle Soap

Now expect new things! See white things come 4 to 5 shades whiter in old machines or new! See washing time cut 25% to 40% in either machine or tub!

Developed by the makers of gentle Ivory soap, OXYDOL cost over $1,000,000 to perfect. And is the result of a patented process to make soap much faster acting—an amazing new formula that makes mild, gentle soap far whiter washing, yet "keeps it safe."

Scientific tests of OXYDOL against other soaps reveal these important things:—

First:—One cup of OXYDOL makes as much rich, lively suds as three cupfuls of other soaps tested. This means that OXYDOL possesses three times the suds-building power!

Second:—Cup for cup, OXYDOL washed clothes 4 to 5 shades whiter than other soaps tested—including other GRANULATED soaps.

In tub washing, OXYDOL's hard-working suds end washboard rubbing—soak out dirt in 15 minutes, without scrubbing or boiling. Even "grimiest" spots come clean with a few quick rubs between the fingers.

Yet OXYDOL is safe for hands—safe for all washable colors. Even sheer cotton prints washed 100 consecutive times in OXYDOL suds, showed no perceptible sign of fading.

OXYDOL is economical, too. Tests show that it often goes one-third to one-half again as far as even the latest soap chips on the market.

So stop blaming your old washer if clothes wash dingy-gray. Switch to OXYDOL and see clothes come so much whiter and brighter that you'll say "it's like getting a new washer free!"

You can get OXYDOL at all dealers. Phone for a package today. Procter & Gamble.

SECURITY AND INCOME.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Bob Becker

Spring's Advance.

April 2, 1938.

A VISITOR to the Tribune farm near Wheaton can see many signs of spring without tramping through the woods to look for spring flowers, buds, and leaves. Near one of the farm homes the other morning we noticed that the rhubarb was out of the ground, and the men working in the tool shed were making wooden racks to be placed in the berry plots as supports for the gooseberries.

Another spring chore which the men finished last week was that of uncovering the tender strawberry plants in the plots. But perhaps the most significant sign of spring around the barns was the unloading of new seed. When we were at the tool shed several men were unloading a large truck full of seed corn, timothy, oats, alsike, red clover seed, and soy beans. The seed [in burlap bags] was stored in the tool shed until it is time for the men to go into the fields with seeders and planters.

Picks Odd Nesting Site.

The warm weather evidently gave a couple of the turkey hens some foolish ideas about making nests. One hen must have thought she was going to enjoy traveling while sitting on her eggs, for she flew to the top of a hay rack loaded with corn fodder and made her nest on top of it. There she deposited two eggs, evidently forgetting that the rack had to be hauled about a mile every other day for new supplies of fodder.

The flockmaster is broadminded about the locations of turkey and duck nests, but he couldn't figure out how he could let this foolish hen keep her odd nest on the fodder. So the eggs were taken from her and placed under a sensible Barred Rock hen.

Selects Haymow Home.

Another turkey hen has made a nest in the haymow of the sheep barn. Each spring a few of the turkeys decide to nest in the mow, even though it inconveniences the farm workers, who have to be careful with their pitchforks when these birds have deposited eggs there. Then when the poults hatch the hens never can figure out how to get their youngsters down to the ground. Usually the flockmaster has the job of putting the poults in a hat or a basket and carrying them down.

The black swans, which surprised the farm workers by making a nest inside the swan house way ahead of their usual nesting schedule, have changed locations now and are busy making a new nest. They have been placed all alone on the Round pond. As soon as they arrived there they started making a nest mound. But after a day or so in this location they moved to a new place on the shore of the pond, starting all over again to pile débris on their mound with the intention of depositing eggs and raising a family.

Swans Oust Geese.

Two of the white swans are having a little competition for their nesting site. These birds took over an old nest built on the big pond last year by a pair of Canada geese. It is located on the shore, just a few feet from the water's edge. But now the geese are ready to use the nesting spot and they can't understand why the big swans are in their old home. The geese can't put up much of a fight against the large swans, so they are picketing the usurpers. They keep walking and swimming around the nest trying to discourage the swans.

So far the swans are not in the least disturbed by the geese and the way they stay around close to the nesting site calling the bigger birds a lot of bad names. The boys on the farm have been wondering if the honkers would be able to dislodge the swans. But knowing the temper and the stubborn disposition of the latter it doesn't look as if the pair of geese will make much headway in their fight for their old home.

Spring Is Here

Open roads are calling . . . But maybe the "old bus" looks shabby and out of date?

THEN WHY

delay the purchase of a new or "good as new" car when you can finance its purchase here at money saving rates—spread the deposits out to fit—and buy for Cash where dollars count the most?

for yourself. On new or used cars the finance charge is only 6%—$6 per $100—per year on amounts of any size. No fee—no extra charges—it's as simple as that to figure the cost yourself on any deal. Fire and Theft is all the insurance we require.

Buyers-Dealers-Brokers

all like our plan because it's a CASH proposition any way you look at it. And there's the added advantage of doing business with a 20 year old State Bank right in the Loop.

WHY NOT

come in—Call up—or Write, whichever suits you best? You'll see why people say we couldn't make our service more convenient or quicker on the trigger.

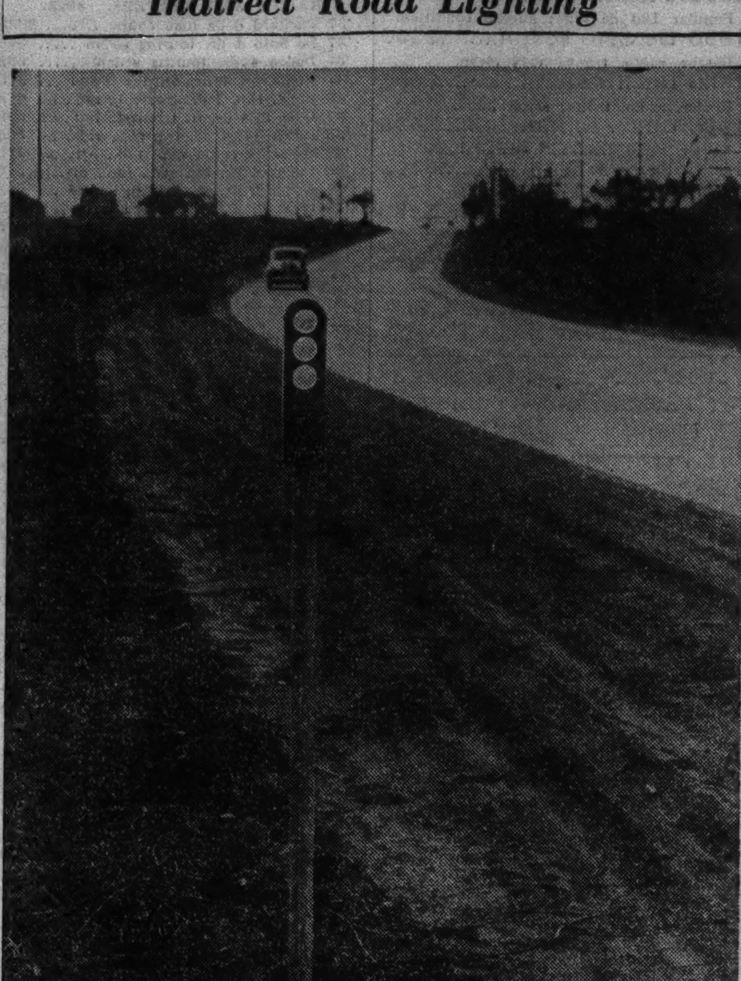
Indirect Road Lighting



A new type of indirect lighting is being installed on the 70 miles of U. S. 16 from Lansing, Mich., to Detroit. The reflectors in this system are mounted on steel standards at the edge of the shoulders of the road. They are large enough so that they may be seen, 100 feet apart, for a mile ahead.

ROADS OFFICIAL GIVES VIEWS ON FINANCE POLICIES

BY HAL FOUST.

Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the United States bureau of public roads, condemns as "horse and buggy" current policies of highway finance and administration. His views are published in Public Roads, official journal of the federal bureau.

The engineer deplores the waste due to existence of township road districts; the author shows that they are too small to employ talent, tools or materials efficiently. He protests against a trend among state highway departments to assume the cost of local road construction and maintenance. He points out that the vocal volume has been more potent than trafic volume in proportioning road funds as among states, counties and cities.

Mr. MacDonald ended his paper with the following dozen recommendations and conclusions:

1. Allocation of state vehicle taxes to local roads and streets should be made with reference to both volume and intensity of trafic generated, but with consideration for the priority of primary road requirements so that transportation facilities for the integrated system may be adequate and at lowest total cost.

2. The state should maintain adequate control over all projects on which state money is used.

3. Arbitrary political boundaries have no relation to functions of highway transport.

Not Limited to Optimum Unit.

4. A highway operating unit may be limited in its ability to function economically by reason of certain characteristics inherent in small-scale operations.

5. A highway administrative area is not necessarily limited to the optimum unit determined upon for construction and maintenance operations, and should embrace sufficient area to permit quantity purchasing, specialized personnel, and a coördinated highway program.

6. With the transfer of local roads to state control, benefits to land remain a legitimate highway service which should be recognized by property contributions to the highway fund.

7. It is important that the state should provide first for all primary road obligations before assuming added burdens in connection with local roads.

8. Federal aid for secondary roads is recognition of the fact that such parts of the highway system are of more than local service. This new federal policy promises to create closer coöperation between states and local units.

Surveys Bring Out Facts.

9. State-wide planning surveys constitute the first wholesale attempt to bring before the public and legislative bodies facts concerning the need for sane financial and administrative policies.

10. State-wide plans cannot be successful without a central planning authority.

11. The failure of any state to provide a major system of highways not only adequate but attractive to the rapidly growing tourist and recreational trafic results in large losses of potential income to the public from the user taxes and to private business relying upon the highway travel. The failure to establish and to follow sound principles of financial administration is a serious cause of lack of progress toward adequate major highways where this condition exists.

12. The waste of highway funds by duplicate local units and the uneconomical operations they necessitate brands financial administration the least progressive field of highway transportation.

NEW YORK WILL HOLD SAFETY COUNCIL APRIL 19

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 2.—[Special.]—The Greater New York Safety council has invited the nation's leading trafic and highway authorities to particpate in a three day conference here on April 19, 20, and 21. Seventy commercial, civic, and public agencies will be represented by their experts on aspects of the automobile accident problem.

The social and economic loss from motor mishaps will be discussed by D. D. Fennell, president of the National Safety council, and by H. P. Jackson, president of the Bankers Indemnity company.

Dr. McClintock to Preside.

Dr. Miller McClintock, head of the Harvard university bureau of trafic research, will preside at a session that will review the street and highway conditions under which occur these accidents. Speakers on this subject will include Harry H. Harrison and Robert A. Mitchell of the Illinois highway department.

Franklin M. Kreml of the Northwestern university trafic research bureau will preside at a session devoted to the law enforcement as it is related to trafic accidents. John J. Seery, first deputy commissioner of the New York police department, is on this program.

Yale Engineering Instructor to Talk.

William J. Cox of the Yale university engineering school will deliver a résumé of protective activities throughout the country. Also on the speaking program will be the state motor vehicle commissioners of New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut.

NEWS AND VIEWS

W. M. Purves has been appointed general sales manager for Dodge passenger cars and commercial vehicles, W. J. O'Neil, vice president and general manager of the Dodge division of the Chrysler corporation announced yesterday. Purves succeeds A. vanDerZee, who has just been appointed a vice president of the Chrysler corporation. Purves was with the Dodge organization before it was bought by Chrysler. His first automobile job was with Ford, with whom he started in 1913. At one time he was with the old Wills St. Clair.

W. M. Purves.

Some 700 automobile dealers and others allied with the industry on Tuesday night will attend the first annual "Carnival Jamboree," which will be held in the Congress hotel under the sponsorship of the Chicago Automobile Trade association. H. T. Hollingshead, president of the trade association, has appointed a committee, consisting of M. J. Lanahan, S. L. Davis, J. J. Wright, and S. B. Shapiro, to arrange the festivities. Hollingshead said the purpose of the affair is to resell dealers on the opportunities their business affords and to put them in a cheerful frame of mind.

VOICE OF TRAFIC

CAUSE FOR DISRESPECT.

Lake Forest, Ill., March 21.—Has any one in authority tried consistently to enforce all the motor laws and provisions?

For instance, there are, at all hours of the day, parked—even packed—cars under countless "No parking at any time" signs. Under this circumstance, however, how is it possible to show the proper humility when a policeman—ignoring this violation—shouts at you for going too fast? There is obviously no argument as to the relative import of the above violation and those pertaining to reckless driving with its potential wake of murder and destruction.

However, any one with the slightest knowledge of psychology should have learned during prohibition that for authorities to wink at the violation of one law causes almost automatic disregard and disrespect for other laws.

Incidentally, if pedestrians are responsible for such a large percentage of motor accidents, why are jaywalkers not fined and arrested? There doesn't seem much point in punishing half the offenders and letting the other half either get killed or go unpunished, according to their agility. GERTRUDE INGRAM.

RANDOLPH CONGESTION.

Chicago, March 29.—It would seem that with the opening of the new Randolph street viaduct something would be done to relieve the rush hour trafic congestion caused by numbers of southtown street cars making East Randolph street their north terminus. In turning about, these cars make three left turns, and during rush hours cut across heavy motor trafic, and in East Randolph at Wabash and at Garland court across a heavy stream of commuters.

While clockwise turns here would be impractical, it seems that no great inconvenience would be caused car riders were these cars to make their turns about farther north beyond compelling library patrons to leave or board their cars on Wabash avenue. Owing, however, to the long ramp north of the river in Wabash avenue, no convenient circle turn seems available, unless a track were laid on Wacker drive between State street and Wabash avenue. This would run along the drive plaza and would detract from its appearance.

However, the roadway north of the Wabash avenue bridge being extra wide and the street car trafic there not heavy, it is suggested that a cross over switch could be installed there and street cars turned back with little interference with the motor trafic or with the regular car service on this street. PETER ARNESON.

PITTSBURGH ENFORCEMENT.

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 26.—I was traveling east on business and drove into Pittsburgh at 4:20 o'clock. I failed to see a "No Parking" sign a half a block ahead of me. I checked in a hotel, washed up, and sent in my reports to my firm, and came out to get in my car at 5:50 p. m. My car was missing so I phoned the police and reported it stolen.

Police informed me it had been towed in. I have paid $3 towing charges and have to pay a $2 fine tomorrow. How about this for courtesy to visitors from Illinois? JACK THOMPSON.

INSTALL NEW TYPE LIGHTING IN MICHIGAN

Lansing, Mich., April 2.—[Special.]—A new type of indirect lighting is being installed on the 70 miles of U. S.-16 from here to Detroit. State Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagoner described it as a radical advancement from the reflector buttons now in somewhat common use.

"The reflectors in this new system," said the commissioner, "are mounted on steel standards at the edge of the shoulders of the road. They are large enough so that they may be seen, 100 feet apart, for a mile ahead."

Dedication ceremonies will be held here next Wednesday night. Because the growing toll of night accidents is of first concern to all trafic and highway authorities the dedication will be attended by officials from several states.

Exciting Ideas from Leading Designers Will Give Any Wardrobe a Real Lift

A—The tiny hat for dress parade clothes, made entirely of white valley lilies with only their pale spiky leaves for contrast. ● B—Another crisp spring creation, a black and white combine of dull black linen and candy box white frills of embroidery. The hat itself is a high, Russian looking band. The white embroidery skullcap is slipped on the head, then the black linen band is superimposed on the white, so that it shows below the band. ● C—From an American designer, this dashing straw hat with chin straps. The high crown is cut off sharply. The wide brim rolls up at the extreme edge and the chin straps tie at the side. Two white small-flower bouquets are attached to the straps to cover the ears. ● D—Agnes swathed fine, chiffon-thin wool jersey into a peaked turban in a most unusual pastel shade. For accent a most subtle idea, as only the French can manage, the bead necklace swathed with the jersey. ● E—Schiaparelli's latest brain wave, made of crisp, shiny straw and then folded into the shape of a romantic tricorn. Lest the finished affair lack the correct amount of true Schiaparelli madness, whimsy, or amusement, a pastel clothespin is clipped to the side fold of the straw as the only trim. ● F—Molyneux sends a stunning large brimmed straw hat, trims it with flat contrasted bow, and attaches bouquets of small flowers in still other shades to the back headbands. Nothing can equal the charm of the sweeping long curves.

Spring Headlines Go a Trifle Mad, but They Are Just the Hats Your Spirit Craves

By RHEA SEEGER

SPRING HEADLINES! Brisk, a bit skittery, a trifle mad, but exciting new ideas that remake a jaded wardrobe, refire a temperamental shopper weary of the usual finds. Straw as crisp and shiny as new green leaves, vivid colors that will brighten any dreary landscape, veils until you're completely covered, pillboxes with or without flowers, daffy bonnets, picturesque, flirtatious affairs that swoop down over the eyeline like a shadow, infinitely alluring—these are but a few of the latest arrivals.

Berets, by all the records, go on forever. This spring you'll find them artfully folded, graciously curved, and tucked to follow the lines of the head. Largs disks as flat as a prairie, without any semblance of a crown, are anchored to the skull with a fitted bandeau. Watteau colors, rakishly slanted models, have clusters of flowers nestling under the upturned brim. Bicycle sailors are back, tied on with veils. Flip the pages of any old photograph album of the Gay Nineties and you'll see the original heartbreakers from which they have been copied.

Small, perky straw hats have birds for trim, beaks and all, and unless a lot of masculine critics suddenly go extremely chivalrous we're all in for plenty of wise-cracks concerning such bird nest affairs. Any one with just a mortal soul will have a hilarious time selecting the head magic to catch and entertain the appraising eye of the spectators.

Skullcap hats made completely of flowers are ideal toppers for all dark clothes. They're so small they really look like wigs, and every imaginable flower, and more unknown to any botany book, are sewed helter-skelter to a foundation of either net chiffon, straw, or fabric. Stems stick skyward, and the blossoms are all sizes. Some of the small new hats have chin straps trimmed with a small nosegay of flowers. Others boast veils with tiny bouquets attached, while still others are unadorned on top and the flowers are massed under the back or at the sides.

The first hats are small and medium in size, the sort of headlines for suits, fitted ensembles, and spring coats. Later, for prints without benefit of either coat or furs, come the large brims, and these will be brilliantly colored, too. Some of them have flower trim, others bows and bands of ribbon or velvet, and the veils go to the waistline and sometimes longer. Colored veils provide additional contrast, with a leaf green being the favorite and navy blue next.

Besides the gay, very young, extreme models, there are plenty of the more sophisticated hats, distinctive, graciously designed models with cleverly curved brims that do a superjob of flattery; crowns that are molded to the headline to the best advantage. Veils are short but flattering, especially over the eyeline, and materials are elegance personified. None of these hats is ordinary, none of them sedate, but flattery is stressed, not the trying lines for extreme youth.

From one collection of original imports we've sketched six outstanding ideas, models that are definitly new in outline, in treatment, in color trend, and in general design. Others equally interesting and new are featured in the same showing. All models sketched are originals and can be ordered copied in other colors and materials to suit the needs of your new wardrobe.

Campus Modes by a Co-ed

Well, spring has hit the campus at last, after we've been wearing our spring togs for a couple of months! Fashion discussions in the dormitory lounge necessarily center more or less around summer clothes. One of the girls bemoaned the fact that dresses for active sports too often lose sight of the "action" principle, and begged me to design a tennis and golf frock with dash and a suggestion of that same "action." Here it is, for Bessie's pleasure and yours.

You may have a choice of necklines. The original is styled like the model on the larger figure, with a collarless high and round neck sharing in the row of buttons down the front of the bodice. Shirring emanates from the tiny yoke. The sleeves are squared and yet in the tradition of the plain ones favored for sports frocks. There is an action plait in the simple skirt and similar plaits in the pockets. The frock I made was fashioned of pale pink lightweight flannel.

The smaller sketch shows another idea, the same dress with a tiny collar and styled in horizontally striped cotton. Pastel silks make up beautifully in either model, and all the numerous cottons are perfect.

Style No. T-8563 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20 years.

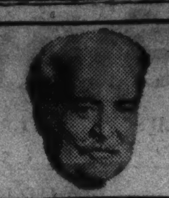
George Rector



[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune.]

A few months ago when I was out in Hollywood I met a lot of old friends and among them was Adolphe Menjou. Aside from being a good actor Menjou can talk food and recipes like a master cordon bleu chef. He's an epicure, and is especially fond of the French cuisine. I fully agree with him on that. His father, you may know, was a famous French restaurateur.

We got to talking about the restaurants in Paris, particularly of that delightful little restaurant on the Rue de l'Echelle, Café Montagne, where the proprietor, Prosper Montagne, is the chef. Montagne restricts his bill of fare to a few dishes each day and works enthusiastically in the kitchen which is separated from the dining room by a curtain. The boss gets your order from the waiter and then prepares it. When the dish is placed on the table before you, Montagne is gazing through the curtain at your face. If your features register satisfaction, Montagne responds to your joy and laughs happily. If the dish which he has prepared does not please, he will immediately remove it from the table and go back in the kitchen and cook one that will.

Menjou raved about the way our friend Montagne prepared chicken, otherwise known as Poulet Maison. I remember the dish very well and this is the way he did it.

Cut Two and a Half Pound Chicken, Season.

Cut a small chicken, weighing about two and one-half pounds, in six or eight pieces. Season with salt and pepper to taste. Melt two tablespoons of butter in a heavy saucepan. Lay the pieces of chicken in the very hot butter. Brown them on one side and then turn them to brown on the other side. Now place cover over saucepan and continue cooking in oven until chicken is tender. About fifteen minutes before chicken is cooked, add one cupful of diced fresh mushrooms. Remove chicken from oven and add two tablespoons chopped truffles along with three tablespoons of cooking sherry. Let it come to a boil and then add one cup of cream and heat thoroughly. Arrange the pieces of chicken in a platter and pour this delicious sauce over the chicken.

After I recited this recipe to Menjou he replied in perfect French with this short poem:

"Je veux bien mourir, o deesse, Mais pas avant d'avoir dine," which, translated, reads:

"O, goddess, I am willing to die,
But not before I have dined."

I want you to know about the lobster a l'Americaine, that is an outstanding gastronomic delight. Such dishes as lobster Newburg, chicken à la king, shrimps creole are reheats, but when you cook lobster in the shell, you are most certainly going to get the essence of of the lobster in the sauce. Now we will proceed with the recipe.

A female lobster is preferable because of the roe. Have the butcher cut the whole live lobster (weighing about two and one-half pounds) in crosswise sections in one and one-half inch pieces. Have the claws cut in halves. The lobster meat is not to be removed from the shell, but have the roe carefully removed. Put about six tablespoons of olive oil in a large saucepan and when the oil is very hot add the sections of lobster (in the shell), three tablespoons brandy, ignite the brandy and add one cup of fish consomme. (This is obtained by simmering one pound of inexpensive fish and fish bones along with a soup bunch until the essence is extracted.) Season with salt, pepper, and paprika. Cover pan and cook for twenty minutes, occasionally turning the pieces of lobster.

Meanwhile prepare the following: Two small carrots, chopped very fine, one clove of garlic, chopped fine, four medium sized fresh or canned tomatoes, cut in quarters, and the roe of the lobster, chopped fine. Add chopped vegetables and roe to lobster along with a pinch of thyme, one small bay leaf and one cup of tomato sauce. Cook all together for fifteen or twenty minutes. Enrich the sauce with one teaspoon beef extract dissolved in one-third cup boiling water and one tablespoon butter. Last but not least, add a small glass of sherry (about two ounces). On account of sauce, serve in soup plates and sprinkle over with finely chopped parsley.

Deviled stuffed crab is strictly an American culinary creation. It is a very simple dish to prepare and I'll let you be the jury to decide on its merits. I am offering you this tried and tested recipe that was used for two generations in the Rector restaurants:

Deviled Stuffed Crab Is Strictly American Dish.

Melt two tablespoons of butter. Add two tablespoons of flour and, when blended together, gradually add two cups of thin cream. Stir constantly and bring to the boiling point and cook for five minutes. Now add two egg yolks which have been beaten together with one-half teaspoon salt, a few grains of cayenne pepper, one teaspoon dry mustard and one teaspoon Worcestershire sauce. Remove from fire and add one pound of fresh or canned crabmeat. If canned crabmeat is used be sure to remove bits of bone and cut the claws in small pieces. Also add one-half cup of chopped cooked mushrooms. Mix all together and let cool. When cool enough to handle, stuff shells with the mixture, building it up rather high and rounded. Sprinkle with bread crums and dot with small bits of butter. Place in the oven to bake until the crums are browned. If crab shells are not obtainable you will find very attractive fancy scalloped shells in the household department of most department stores.

I do not know of anything that causes more happiness in the home than well prepared food. To be sure there is quite some work attached in the preparation of many dishes, but the old saying is justified "that the proof of the pudding is in the eating." This alone should compensate the housewife for her time and trouble.

Olive Oil Used in Preparation of Steak Recipe

Pour a third of a cup of olive oil into a shalow dish. Add a garlic bud and, after thre or four minutes, discard it. Dip both sides of a steak into the mixture and then broil it quickly. While the steak is still hot sprinkle it with salt and pepper, dot it with butter and sprinkle it with two teaspoons of lemon juice and one teaspoon of Worcestershire sauce. Serve on a sizzling platter.

Spread baked ham, veal or pork with a mixture of half a cup each of crushed pineapple and brown sugar. Added flavor and a crusty top will result.

Hand Knitted Sweater Is Fashioned of Angora Yarn

By Jean Macdonald.

With the return to the fashion sphere of those flattering plaited skirts it is a foregone conclusion that sweaters and plaited skirts should rank high in popularity for spring and summer wear. The fine, lightweight wools which are the delight of every wearer of hand knits are available in every imaginable shade, and those persons who insisted they never could wear wools find themselves with three or four sweaters and thoroughly unaware of any skin sensitivity.

The coral blouse illustrated today is knitted of the finest angora yarn in the good old stockinette stitch. The yarn is so fine that a hem of the material is used instead of the popular crochet edging. This same hemline affords a picot edge at the bottom of the blouse and around the short sleeves. The darts above and below the waistline give the garment a smart dressmaker touch found only in hand knitted garments. The placket at the neckline has no buttonholes, since the novelty buttons are of the fragile variety which cannot stand the hard wear customary with buttons and buttonholes. Two snappers fasten the sweater. The turnover pointed collar is edged with two rows of single crochet. The original model has a crocheted belt, but novelty belts matching the buttons at the neck may be substituted or the sweater may be worn beltless with equally attractive effect.

HOW TO ORDER

No wonder the New Improved Rinso is taking America by storm!

ALL over the country women are discovering that, cup for cup, the New Rinso gives over 25% more suds than the old. Even in hard water, these richer suds last nearly a third longer than ordinary suds.

Most important of all, these active suds soak clothes at least 5 shades whiter than ordinary soaps do—and get colors much brighter with perfect safety.

Clothes last longer

In tub washing, Rinso's energetic suds soak out dirt in as little as 10 minutes. Yet you can soak your clothes in Rinso suds for an hour—or overnight, if you wish—and be certain that everything is safe. This gentle "no-scrub" way to wash clothes makes them last 2 or 3 times longer.

Rinso is recommended by the makers of 33 famous washers. It's grand for dishes and all cleaning. Its creamy suds soak off grease in a twinkle. Dishes, pots and pans come sparkling clean without a trace of greasy film on them. The New Rinso is kind as ever to hands. Try it!

Model Home Uses Green for Summer

"Furnishing Your Home on a Modest Budget," a booklet by Claire Winslow, solves problems for the woman who hates to sacrifice beauty and yet wishes to be economical. Price, 5 cents by mail, 3 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, and Tribune Tower lobby.

By Claire Winslow.

Green is one of the coolest colors in the palette. And if you think colors aren't either cool or warm just try sitting in a room where the walls are papered in red, some July day. You'll know what we mean.

There are many varieties of green, but all of them are ideal for summer furnishings. One of the loveliest homes we've seen in a long time is done almost entirely in shades and tints of this tone. The living room combines celadon, that pale, soft tint of green found in the Chinese porcelains of that name, with light yellow, beige, and deeper green.

The color scheme of one bedroom is in blue-green, white, coral, and chartreuse. The dining room is stunning in pure white contrasted with deep ivy green, and even the kitchen has touches of green in its gay, colorful wall paper.

The whole effect of this delightful house is one of lightness, airiness, and coolness—just the qualities you appreciate most in summer. The decoration is simple, but with the simplicity of true distinction.

The living room furniture is grouped to face a battery of wide windows that reach from ceiling to floor and that look out on a lawn with pleasing arrangements of outdoor tables and chairs. In the winter the long, luxurious English couch can be faced about to view the fireplace, and the chairs near by can be grouped with it. But in the warm months this room emphasizes the charming outlook from the wide windows.

These windows, as shown in the photograph today, are hung in a flowered glazed chintz that combines all the colors in the room: pale yellow, celadon green, beige, and white. They are hung under a cornice of cane edged in bamboo. And this bamboo note is repeated in the handsome mahogany chair placed before the draperies. Its seat is done in yellow.

Near the chair is an artistic little drop leaf table on which a large, simple lamp in white and beige, with a textured shade, has been placed. The upholstery on the couch and chairs was made especially for this color scheme, the couch material being a soft green "angel skin" striped in beige, and the matching English lounge chair being covered in a solid toned green chenille.

The fireplace is surrounded by a huge mirror panel and as this is opposite the windows it reflects the view of the terrace and lawn.

Off this room at one side are an interesting little book recess, where you'll find a comfortable love seat in green, and a chic powder room simply brimful of color, for it's all done in Scotch plaids, à la "Victoria Regina." Floor and walls are done in the plaid and it's used, too, on a downy ottoman placed before a small corner dressing table of black. The diaphanous curtains are in yellow. There is a most amusing, gothic screen in the room, resembling the huge screen under the marquee in the last act of "Victoria Regina."

The dining room has beautiful mahogany furniture of the 18th century English type. The walls are white, and a wide window is hung in pure white glazed chintz draperies which come with their own charming border, an ivy leaf design. This ivy motif is repeated in the ceiling. A border of ivy paper has been applied as an inset border to the ceiling, with an unusual and lovely effect.

You see the ivy again in the custom-made design along the edge of the green rug. Like the rug in the living room, there is a sculptured effect to this floor covering that is the height of the mode, this season.

Space does not permit descriptions of the two bedrooms and the kitchen, but you can see them all for yourself, for this charming house is in the loop and is open to the public.

A glimpse of the living room of a charming new model home. The beautiful flowered chintz draperies in pale yellow, celadon green, beige and white determine the color scheme for this room and create a lovely feeling of coolness and light.

Conservative smartness is apparent in both these daytime frocks. They are styled to meet the many demands faced by the wardrobe of a busy woman. No matter where one goes during the day and informally in the evening, she will find these two dresses will serve her well, especially if her figure is above the teen sizes.

Sketched at the left is a simple dress with V neckline, around which there is graceful shirring. The raglan shoulderline is a clever minimizer of any extra breadth your figure may have through the bustline. The sleeves are bracelet length, a new note appearing in the smartest fashions this spring. The skirt is a simple and paneled affair that fits the figure beautifully.

A nice combination is a dark background print with narrow ruffling or lace edging for trimming around the neckline and sleeves.

The other model is more tailored. It has either a V or a high neckline. In the former case the frock has a narrow collar, in the latter a standup one with self-fabric bows for trimming. Sleeves may be either long or short. In either case they are cut in one with the shoulder, a trick that lends squareness and breadth, thus minimizing the waist.

This dress may button all the way down the front, if you choose. If you like pockets, place a couple of them on the skirt. Both silks and cottons make up beautifully in this model.

Style No. 3150 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material.

Hot Breads in Various Forms Simple to Bake

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune.]

All of us love hot breads and rolls, and making them is pleasant work. The three recipes I'm passing on today are some which I personally like a great deal and which I hope many readers will want to try for themselves.

The hot cross bun recipe comes from our booklet, "Yeast Breads in the Modern Manner," 5 cents [in stamps] by mail, or 3 cents if picked up at one of the public service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.

HOT CROSS BUNS
[Sixteen buns]

1 cup scalded milk
¼ cup sugar
2 tablespoons butter
½ tablespoon salt
1 yeast cake [compressed] dissolved in
¼ cup lukewarm water
1 egg
¾ teaspoon cinnamon
3 cups flour [approximately]
¼ cup currants

Pour scalded milk over sugar, butter, and salt in mixing bowl. Cool to lukewarm and add dissolved yeast, beaten egg, and flour sifted with cinnamon. Stir until smooth. Work in the currants, which have been washed in warm water and well drained. Cover and let rise until the dough doubles in bulk. Shape into fat buns by pinching off bits of dough and patting them into shape. Place on greased pans at least an inch apart. Cover and let rise until light, about an hour. Cut a cross on the top of each with two slashes of a sharp knife. Brush over with slightly beaten egg white diluted with two tablespoons water. Bake in a hot oven, 425 degrees, 15 to 20 minutes. Remove from oven and fill crosses with frosting made from confectioners' sugar and cream flavored with a few drops of vanilla.

When a search of our files failed to uncover a recipe for "form cake" in answer to a reader's request recently we began inquiring among friends. The mother of a member of the Tribune's beauty department had developed this particular recipe, which we immediately tested and found worth passing on to others. "Form cake" is a coffee cake baked in a tube pan, and it's very good, I can assure you.

FORM CAKE
[A yeast coffee cake]

1 cup milk
1 cake yeast
½ cup sugar
3½ cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup butter
3 eggs
Grated rind of 1 lemon
Chopped almonds

Scald milk and cool to lukewarm. Add yeast, one tablespoon sugar, one cup flour, and the salt. Beat well and let rise until light, about an hour. Cream remaining sugar with shortening. Beat eggs until light and add to sponge with sugar and shortening, and remainder of flour. Add grated lemon rind. Sprinkle the bottom of a greased tube pan with chopped almonds. Cover with batter and let rise until light, about an hour longer. Bake at 350 degrees, moderate oven, for an hour.

And here is my favorite recipe for rich, buttery rolls. It was developed in the test kitchens of the Wheat Flour institute.

RICH REFRIGERATOR ROLLS
[Two and a half dozen]

2 cakes compressed yeast
¼ cup sugar
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup butter
3 eggs
4½-5 cups flour

Crumble yeast and add sugar. Let stand 15 to 20 minutes to liquefy. Scald milk. Add butter and salt. Cool to lukewarm. Add yeast and beaten eggs. Add flour, mixing thoroughly. Turn out on a lightly floured board and knead until satiny. Place in greased bowl, cover, and let rise until doubled [about two hours]. Punch down, form into a smooth ball. Grease the surface lightly, cover well, and place in the refrigerator. When wanted remove from refrigerator and let stand in warm room at least one and a half hours before shaping. Divide the dough into four parts. Roll each part thin, into a circle, as you would roll pie pastry. Brush with melted butter and cut in pie shaped pieces. Roll each piece, starting at the wide end. Place on a greased baking sheet and let rise until doubled. Bake in moderately hot oven, 425 degrees, for 15 to 20 minutes. This same dough may be shaped into cloverleaf rolls, twin rolls, Parkerhouse rolls, or tiny buns.

Clotilde Children's Fashions

We're deserting the tots this one day in order to present a dress design for the miss from 8 to 16. Easter is only a fortnight away, but there is ample time to order this pattern and get started on a smart frock for daughter's parade up the avenue.

The frock may be quite dressy or take on a tailored air and a pert bolero. The version sketched at the left is a trim model, the one piece dress topped by a high neckline and a shirtwaist collar, with puffed sleeves cuffed to match. A slide fastener does decorative and service duty up the front of the bodice. The bolero is sleeveless and reaches barely to the waistline. The original of this model is created in crisp printed silk, the background navy and the figure white, with the collar and cuffs also white. Piqué is the fabric chosen for these, and the trimmings are made detachable for easy laundering.

The design at the right omits the bolero and adopts a square neckline which is edged in ruffling, some more of the same being used on the puffed sleeves. Buttons to match the ruffling are lined up on the bodice, and a narrow belt is added to the waistline. The original of this version is a medium blue silk, with the trimming, including buttons, in shell pink.

Cottons also make up attractively, and the types available in the stores are legion.

Style No. 2932 is designed for sizes 8, 10, 12, 14, and 16 years. Size 8 requires 1⅞ yards of 39 inch material, with ½ yard of 39 inch contrasting for the collared dress.

If You Live in Apartment Be Quiet Neighbor

How should group introductions be handled? The answer to this question and to many other problems of introduction which often puzzle the hostess are given in "The Etiquet of Introductions," by Helen Bartlett, Tribune etiquet editor. On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 2 cents. Postpaid, 3 cents.

By Helen Bartlett.

It has been called to our attention that apartment dwellers and those who live in apartment hotels have a slightly different behavior code to observe than have the families who live in private dwellings. With only the comfort of one's own family to consider, relations, of course, are on an extremely informal basis. And while even within the family circle it is necessary to respect the properties and pleasures of the other members, if it is to be a congenial arrangement, still one's mother, father, sisters, and brothers usually are a more tolerant lot than the family downstairs. There is no doubt that they are more frank and outspoken and, if any one steps on the notorious toes of another, it is a sure bet that he will be reminded of his remissness. And that word "reminded" is a gross understatement of what actually would take place!

But the apartment building—that's a slightly different story. There still is the family relationship to be maintained. And I might say parenthetically that family circle manners are the true test of one's social upbringing. There also are the neighbors just on the other side of the wall. If their comfort is to be respected, as you would have yours considered under reversed circumstances, then you will have to watch such things as the volume of the radio and the lateness of the hour it is used, the time of day you operate the vacuum sweeper, unnecessary noise of any kind.

Practicing tap dancing, for instance, the immature scrapings on a violin, or unmusical blasts on a saxophone, never are appreciated by the neighbors, for some strange reason.

It also is important that the portions of the building that are used by all the residents, such as the corridors, hallways, lobby, stairways should not be carelessly abused. These parts of the building are for the benefit of all. Don't litter them up with papers. And when it is necessary to store baby buggies, tricycles, and similar equipment in the lower entrances for protection, put them where other people using the same entrance will not be inconvenienced by them.

Remember to hold the door for people who are leaving or entering at the same time you are, and not let it slam in their faces; to observe elevator etiquet and, if it is an automatic elevator, to take other residents in the car with you, remembering to close the doors tightly after you get out so that it will respond to the signal of others later on. Operate the elevator with caution so as not to put the delicate mechanism out of order and tie up service for hours.

All of the same old rules for social behavior and social contacts everywhere are simply reapplied to the apartment dweller.

Paris Swerves to Curves for Spring Styles

By Bettina Bedwell.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

PARIS.—The Paris openings were a build-up of a new ideal. Dressmakers want women to try for figures built on curved lines. Chanel, who is big shakes in this business of giving us curves, said to me the day of her show: "Women have got to stop worshipping the 18 year old boy. They can never look as beautiful as a lad o: the age, but they can make the most of things he hasn't got; their own beauty curves."

Chanel shows femmes how, throughout her collection, which is a build-up of bosom and hip lines to the end of infinite slimming of the waistline. Other Paris style royalists work at the same silhouette, so that all of us who saw the openings came out with the curves of feminine beauty firmly lodged in our minds as the new style of Paris.

Don't let any mistaken prophet make you think that this is a revival of the wasp-waisted, hour-glass figure of 1900 or any other period. It's today's feminine figure, and plenty athletic. The super-slimness of the waistline is a setup done by adding generosity to the bosom and the hipline.

Another thing, before I forget it. The other lines. Hemlines, you've heard, are on the up and up, but don't let that news scare you. Skirts are made on a sliding scale. Shorter than last year for sports and strictly tailored suits, which don't partake of the new femininity, but they keep getting longer for the rest of our daytime clothes and finish frankly long for evening. Sleeve lines are mostly slim, but there is some inflation in short sleeves and a little in long.

Inside of these boundary lines, spring dresses have an impressive variety. Color enchantment, built around black, navy, and midnight blue is found on most daytime frocks. Theye are literally thousands of ways of adding color to the very smart black or dark blue day dress this spring. The colors most seen for this are all the pinks, all the lilacs and violets, many light reds, intense blues that are either frankly greenish like peacock or strongly purplish like hyacinth, yellows from pinkish plaster yellow to greenish chartreuse, and above all white and lots of it. These contrasting colors are often wraps—jackets, coats, and capes.

Dress-softness in drapery and gathers and plaits is outstanding for daytime styles, except the strictly tailored. Thus the soft materials like crêpes, silk jerseys, and such are important. For tailored clothes foulards and surahs are used everywhere and by everybody in Paris.

One new Paris model illustrates all this more eloquently than words. This is a Paquin model of an afternoon dress in black silk jerseys, closely draped between bosom and hips, with a half-full skirt and softened sleeves. A daring, curved rever swirls around a big bunch of white violets and the toque is made of them. Curves? Uh, HUH!

A Schiaparelli day ensemble is of black crêpe with a hip-length jacket that fits and fits, while the waistline is made incredibly slim-looking by beaded embroidery flaring above the bosom line.

North, with four-plus honor tricks, was tempted to jump all the way to a slam, but gave South a little "leeway" by going only to five. South, holding all the aces, realized that North must have almost all the kings and queens, and accepted the invitation.

West opened the ten of hearts. Put yourself in declarer's position and play the hand as though you could see all 52 cards. This is a comparatively easy problem. Don't look at the solution unless you have to.

SOLUTION: Duck opening lead in dummy, win with heart ace. Cash all clubs and spades. Lead diamond ace, then diamond jack. West must cover. Win with dummy's king and lead third diamond. East must win and, since he had been forced to discard a diamond on the fourth spade lead, in order to guard the heart queen, now must return a heart from the queen up to dummy's king-jack.

Through the Looking Glass

—By Eleanor Nangle—

[Posed by Anita Louise.]

Good news for gardenia lovers: Out for Easter is a new bath set of fragrant oil, a friction lotion with a concentrated scent, soap and a perfumed bath mitt. The fragrance is a true gardenia that clings to the flesh for a full day.

Gardenia is, to our way of thinking, a fragrance of grandeur, but not chilling grandeur. It has rich overtones that make it luxurious. When a gardenia fragrance is good it is, like the little girl, very, very good; but when it is bad, this hard to capture scent can be rather horrid.

All lovers of a good gardenia will be inchanted with some new bath sets that have been brought out for the Easter fanfare. These are the product of an eastern woman, who is undoubtedly one of the most talented and imaginative of American perfumers. Every charming offering of hers is perfect of its kind.

Her bath set in gardenia is irresistible. In each box are four vials of exquisitely scented bath oils in gardenia, white lilac, and two divine blends. Then there is a cake of soap, rich and smoothly and heavily perfumed in gardenia, and a large bottle of one of our favorite preparations in all the world, a "friction lotion," also in the gardenia motif. If you wish, you also may have a bath sachet, a terry cloth mitt containing castile soap, herbs, and gardenia perfume in a lavish quantity.

We want to stress the fact that these bath aids are lavishly perfumed. There's nothing fleeting about their scent. The oil alone, used in the bath, does more than perfume the water. It actually scents the skin slightly. The friction lotion, to our own personal knowledge, scents it much more than slightly. You can use it as an after bath fragrance in the morning. That night, as you waft off to sleep, you'll find that you're still perfumed.

The mitts are a constant joy. You can use each one six or seven times. Simply let it dry out from bath to bath. The soap is just what you'd expect in such good company. It's creamy, lasting, and mild as milk.

For those who don't find the gardenia to their taste, this same set comes in a dream of a white lilac scent. This is lush and lovely.

For information about these bath sets, telephone Eleanor Nangle, Superior 0100, or write to her in care of The Chicago Sunday Tribune.

Eleanor Nangle, "through her looking glass," sees everything that is new in the fascinating realm of beauty aids, and tells you about them daily in The Chicago Tribune.

Contract According to Culbertson

Ethics of the Game of Contract

By Ely Culbertson

(Copyright: 1938: By Ely Culbertson.)

The New York Bridge Whist club is one of the three oldest bridge clubs in the country and as such naturally enjoys a position of distinction and authority. It has just published a brief dissertation on "The Etiquette of the Game," which I feel sure will interest my readers. Here it is:

Years ago there were formulated and distributed among the members of this club suggestions embodying the ethics of the game of whist and its then modifications. The same pen has revamped the production in question to fit its provisions for the ethics of contract bridge. It is hoped that this presentation will prove equally acceptable at this time and that it may, at least, give food for thought.

The main element of consideration in card playing of any and all kinds should be the pleasure of the game and the delight that comes from the meeting of kindred spirits.

Ethics are an expression of morals. Both are based upon a code which has not been improved upon since Moses gave the children of Israel the ten commandments. However, even though the two are synonymous, there is a distinction between them which emphasizes ethics as a form of supermorals, in the relationship of man to his fellows.

In card playing this finer distinction comes into play in various aspects. The gentleman instinctively carries on both morally and ethically. The boor may be honest and moral but his honesty and his morality may not include ethical behavior.

One should therefore guard himself against liabilities attachable to his manner and even to his character as a gentleman, by avoiding even the semblance of that which might offend the sensibilities of the finest and cleanest nature.

And so it happens that special codes of ethics have been evolved for the purpose of making sure that certain cardinal principles of propriety shall be held as reminders of deportment to the moral man, so that he may conduct himself ethically, as well, and may what follows help to that end:

1. It is not immoral to allow your enthusiasm at holding a resplendent hand at contract to animate you into making your bid so loud and so emphatic as to insure your partner's belief that the bidder is on eminently safe ground—but it is highly unethical.

2. It is not immoral for a kibitzer, unasked, to volunteer an opinion as to how a play should have been made—but it is unethical.

3. It is not immoral for the partner of the player to leave his seat in order to stand back of the player and scrutinize his management of the hand—but it is unethical.

4. It is not immoral for partners excitedly, across the table, to discuss a play or a declaration, but if it disturbs others—it is unethical.

5. It is not immoral for players or others, in loud terms, to descant on the merits of a story or boisterously to relate an experience, the whilst others in the cardroom are seriously engaged in play—but it is unethical.

6. It is not immoral, whether intentionally or through preoccupation, to hesitate unduly as to the play of a card [a singleton for instance] or for a partner to make deductions from such an act—but it is unethical.

7. It is not immoral for a nonparticipant in the game to scrutinize the record of losses and winnings which are the private property of the group at play—but it is unethical.

To grumble at "bad cards" is a display of bad taste—moreover, it discomposes one's partner, annoys the opponents and intensifies the distress of the grumbler.

Courtesy should mark every step in card table procedures.

Do not rail at your partner even though he be a poorer player than yourself. He will learn from gentle suasion better than from angered contempt; and with peace of mind, better card reasoning may come to him. Harsh criticism by voice or implied dissatisfaction in mien, is therefore strictly prohibited.

So-called "bad luck" comes to all at times, whether at the card table or in the game of life. Thus are we chastened as well as taught.

Although I agree in principle with the above pronouncements, I should like to add my own personal comment to the numbered paragraphs. For instance, the conduct mentioned in No. 2 is, I think, not unethical, but presumptuous. No. 3 is just darned bad manners. No. 4 is boring. No. 5 is highly inconsiderate. No. 7 seems to me a case of plain gall. I heartily concur with the verdict "unethical" as applied to Nos. 1 and 6.

The supreme test of a bridge player, like the supreme test of a man or woman, is whether he can meet emergency with courage and rapid decision. To take in a situation at a glance and just as quickly to devise a suitable plan of campaign is no easy matter. Consider the declarer's magnificent coup in the hand shown herewith. It did not involve mechanical technique, painstakingly analyzed and meticulously executed, yet it was more worthy of applause than the most difficult squeeze play.

The bidding [both sides vulnerable]:

East	South	West	North
1 club	2 clubs	4 diamonds	Pass
5 diamonds	5 spades	Pass	Pass
6 diamonds	6 spades	Pass	Pass
Double	Pass	Pass	Pass

South felt none too happy about his own last bid. He would have preferred to play at a five contract. Of course he could have doubled the six diamond bid with virtual certainty of defeating that contract, but he knew that it would not be a large set and the temptation to try for a slam in spades was very strong. There was always the chance that his two club cue-bid might dissuade West from opening the suit, and without that opening there might be a chance to salvage the club trick.

West, however, could see no future in a diamond lead and, especially after his partner had doubled the six spades, felt called upon to open the singleton club. The moment dummy went down, declarer saw that his contract was doomed if the defenders played properly. Dummy had turned up with an unexpectedly pleasant club holding but, as declarer instantaneously decided, "all was not gold."

The precise card that West had opened, the three of clubs, spoke volumes, and declarer did not like what it said, namely, that it was a singleton. Declarer knew East to be a sound player. If an honor were played from dummy East would not cover, since there would be no point in doing so—declarer was marked with the ace and it might be blank. The dummy, therefore, could hold the trick, but if declarer followed with the deuce the cat would be out of the bag and East, who undoubtedly held the spade ace, would have a perfect picture of the situation. He would be able to tell absolutely that West's club lead had been a singleton and, by merely returning a club, would let West ruff away the club ace.

This reasoning requires considerable time for description but went through South's mind almost in the flash of an eye. Equally quickly he found a plan that was practically sure to throw dust in East's eyes. The club ten was played and, when East as per expectation ducked, declarer tossed his ace on the trick! He then laid down the spade queen. East, winning with the ace, could hardly fail to fall for declarer's diabolical plot. East was missing the club deuce and had utterly no reason to believe that declarer had flimflammed him by overtaking his own first trick. I venture to say that there is not a player alive who, in East's position, would do other than he did, which was to lay down the diamond king. True, he knew that West had a long line of diamonds, but this line might be only seven long instead of eight. Declarer permitted himself a war whoop as he ruffed the diamond return, drew trumps, cashed the A-K-Q of hearts, and then led a heart to dummy to dispose of his club deuce on the fifth heart. I am pleased to report that East-West took their defeat with perfect grace and joined in the applause, East, specifically, murmuring that as long as he had been sold a gold brick, he was glad that it was the very finest obtainable.

Substitute Mushrooms and Rice for Potatoes

If you'd like a change from potatoes try a ring of rice filled with creamed mushrooms or giblet gravy. Candied sweet potatoes may be mashed.

Ripe olives blend with duck. Dice them and add them to the gravy. Or slice them and scatter them over the duck when it is served.

Becoming Hair Style Is One Suited to Type

By Antoinette Donnelly.

What is seen in the smart dancing, dining, and theater spots in the way of hair styles convinces one that she can decide on her own most becoming hairdress and stick to it, provided her coiffure is not a dated one, such as the mannish, short-clipped style, say, "shells" over the ears, or some such back number. You wouldn't wear a frock that's dated or outmoded, so naturally you would introduce up-to-dateness into the arrangement of your tresses.

It's almost humorous the persistence with which the long bob holds on. One cannot see its popularity losing an inch of ground. Both professionals of stage and screen and women in private life cling to it with a vengeance in spite of hair stylists' efforts to get the hair up high off the neck. Some advance is made in the latter style, but more hair still flows around necklines than mounts the cranium, you may believe.

As with all vogues, some women will wear things that are not becoming to their individual style. One finds them in the long-haired group. The style was planned and executed for the youngish person with a long, slim throatline. And one never wonders why this group holds to it so loyally. But one does wonder why plumpish women with short necks and kinda "chinnish" will take on the long-haired style, when a little trimming at the neck would smarten them appreciably.

But I suppose it's the woman's own business what she does with her hair, as it is her business whom she marries or doesn't marry. We all are stubborn mules, more or less, when a vogue plagues us with its popularity. We must try it once, anyway, whether it was originally designed for our infants, our grown daughters, or for our own age.

So today, anyway, feeling mellow on the coiffure subject, we leave you to your own choice, hoping, however, you've picked a lovely one and one that does nice things for your face and throatline. But there is the matter of hair beauty on which we can rant. Beauty of the hair itself. Gracious, but it is an item of major importance at the moment!

And don't think it is for women only. Actually, on an evening out lately, at a swank after-theater spot, the men at the table got into the most heated argument over the comparative beauty qualities of hair as it was observed around the room. We, too, were surprised that the other sex is so aware of the finer points, such as texture, gloss, and complete grooming. The fact that one or two of the men hadn't much to brag about on their own heads didn't deter them from joining in the hair debate. Which fact is introduced merely to remind women that the fancy coiffure doesn't blind the other sex to shortcomings of the hair itself.

Then, this long bob vogue has been extremely influential in promoting stunning, glossy locks. The girls who wear the style best have hair that, in itself, is gorgeous. And because the ends only are waved, usually, there is no fear of hair-brush attacks, and these attacks girls have gone in for with vim and vigor. You should see the way Loretta Young goes after her hair and scalp with an excellent brush. There's no fooling about it. You should see Deanna Durbin do hers. And Lily Pons and Grace Moore, dozens of others whose locks are aglow with light, life, and beauty.

It's an old fashioned custom, girls, but it's back and if you want your hair to be picked out as one of the loveliest exhibitions in any room, don't you believe you can get along without the brush. You are competing with women who use it with more vim and ardor than did the trick in the much-vaunted great-grandmother hair era. If your hair is dry you can't get a gloss more quickly or better than with the brush. For good measure, rub a bit of pomade into the scalp and over the hair lightly, and then brush. If you are keen on observations, you will see that when your hair has a gloss your face actually looks younger.

If your hair is oily don't be persuaded that brushing is bad business. Here you have more need for the mechanical massage of the brush. At first, yes, it will seem to make the hair oilier, but soon you will see improvement because of the scalp stimulation and the better circulation. Brushing oily hair is one well known means of correcting the faulty gland action in the scalp responsible for the excess supply of oil.

Remember, too, that your diet affects your hair. Oily and greasy foods should be abandoned, and effort made for early release from the constipation trouble that invariably affects oily-skinned and oily-haired people. Your hair, being oily, will call for frequent shampoos. Once or twice a week, or even three times a week, will not harm the hair, provided you rinse and dry it thoroughly. If you can stand cold water on your head after the shampoo, use it as an excellent corrective of the faulty pore action in the glands.

In any event, brush the hair vigorously after every shampoo. Here's where you are going to get in your best corrective work. Between shampoos you can easily enough use an oily hair tonic. While it really is more attractive to have hair a little too oily than too dry, you still cannot afford the greasy look with which the eye associates dandruff and soiled scalp.

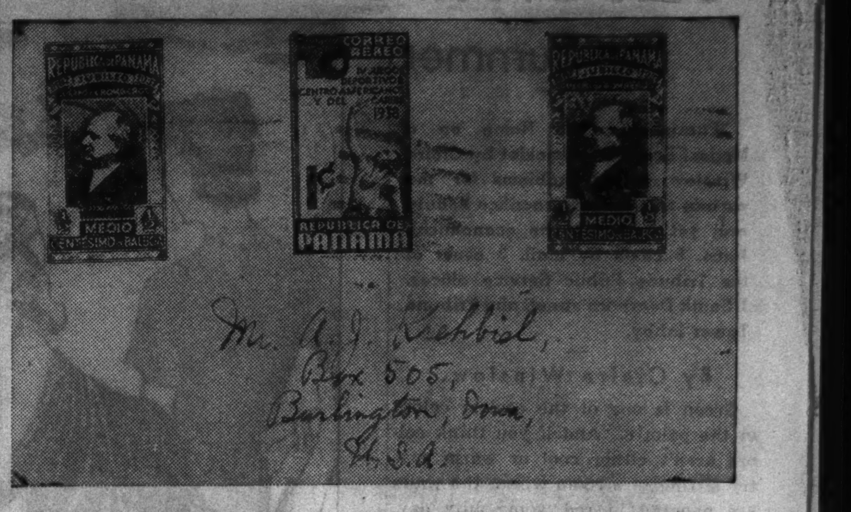
The Stamp Collector

—By Richard McP. Cabeen—

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning values. Do not ask where stamps may be sold, as the Postage Stamps and Coins advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.



This cover, loaned by Mr. A. J. Krehbiel of Burlington, Ia., shows two recent stamps from the Republic of Panama. The ½c stamp is from a set issued to commemorate the Jubilee of the Fire Brigade, and the 1c value is from the airmail stamps issued in connection with the fourth Central American-Caribbean Olympic games.

The collecting of precanceled stamps will be simplified in the future, for the postoffice department has issued an order that stamps over the 6 cent denomination will not be precanceled in the future. Present stocks in postoffices are to be disposed of to permit-holders on assurance that the stamps will be used in the near future.

Postmasters are instructed to determine the number of stamps of this class in the hands of permit-holders, and the length of time required to dispose of them. It is apparent that the department is preparing to make an exchange for the stamps where the present quantities would last more than a few months if used at the normal rate.

With the exhaustion of present stocks, precanceled stamps will cease to be valid for the prepayment of postal charges on fourth class mail matter, and in the case of mail of any other class not more than one precanceled stamp may be affixed to any one piece of mail, except when stamps of the correct denomination are not available at the postoffice.

There are approximately 2,000 varieties of bureau print precanceled stamps of the current type, according to the price list published by Adolf Gunesch. About one-third of these are coils stamps and the remainder sheet stamps. The only bureau print coil which comes within the new restrictions is the 10 cent value and this has been precanceled for about 30 cities. More than 500 varieties of sheet stamps in values greater than 6 cents now in use throughout the United States, or recently used, will no longer be available.

City type precancels will likewise be affected and the prohibited values in this group extend to the 5 dollar stamp, whereas in the case of bureau prints the 50 cent stamp is the top value. The department order which was published on March 15 appears to make no exceptions and, if this is true, it will mean an end to the precancelation of miscellaneous stamps by mail order houses, which practice, although perfectly legitimate, has done a great deal of damage to this branch of stamp collecting. Since this ruling comes well in advance of the new general stamp issue, it is unlikely that any of the higher values will ever appear with bureau print precancelation.

On the whole, it is thought that the change will be beneficial to the hobby, for it will greatly limit the number of available varieties and make it possible for a collector to include the city types along with bureau prints if he so desires. This may not be apparent from the figures quoted above, which deal with bureau prints only, but one need only to consider that the use of these stamps on fourth class mail has accounted for a large proportion of all of the city types, especially the scarce varieties provided by some cities for Christmas mailings.

National Air Mail week, May 15 to 21, is the focus of activities in almost every postoffice in the United States. Under the guidance of Paul R. Younts, a director of the National Association of Postmasters, and postmaster at Charlotte, N. C., the campaign is in full flight and state directors have been appointed to arrange for the fitting observance of the 20th anniversary of the inauguration of regular air mail service. Postmaster Ernest J. Kruetgen at Chicago is in charge of the state of Illinois, and a regional director has been appointed for each congressional district in the state.

While it is hardly likely that each postoffice will avail itself of the second assistant postmaster general's authorization for an official cachet, there are promises of a vast number, and collectors will be able to obtain a cachet from their favorite city, especially those cities prominent in air mail history, by sending their covers to the postmaster. A nation-wide drive has developed for a commemorative airmail stamp on this occasion and the officials are open to suggestions.

Stamp Notes.

The department of conservation of Indiana, 772 local conservation clubs, and various affiliated organizations are coöperating with the General Wild Life federation of Washington, D. C., in the sale of wild life stamps. These stamps, which picture a variety of game and wild life and bear the inscription, "Help Restore Our Wild Life," are sold at 1 cent each. Money obtained from the sale of the stamps in Indiana will be used in the restoration and conservation of wild life in the state.

Complaints regarding the 35 cent and 40 cent values of the Presidents issue have borne fruit and those values have been eliminated and 21 cent and 24 cent values substituted. This will rearrange the list of portraits previously announced, for it is desired to keep the Presidents in chronological order. The 21 cent stamp will show Cleveland, the 24 cent Harrison, the 25 cent McKinley, and the 30 cent Theodore Roosevelt. Other values will be as previously announced. It is expected that values up to the 10 cent will be issued before the first of July, and that the remainder will be placed on sale by the end of the year.

A special 6 rpf green stamp will be issued in connection with the plebiscite, April 8, on the Nazi conquest of Austria. The design will show two male figures carrying a swastika banner.

The Wholesale Market.

Farleys, scrap and used copies, are in steady demand, which keeps the price from sagging; full mint sheets are weak.

Exhibition sheets, Tipex and SPA, are weak and in little demand; White Plains, Byrd, and the two Park sheets are firm, and supplies are more readily absorbed than is the case with the other sheets.

Commemoratives, Ohio Canal, Massachusetts Bay, Braddock, and Maryland, slightly stronger.

Fallen Timbers, Von Steuben, Pulaski, William Penn, Newburgh, NRA, and Kosciuszko are slightly weaker. Recent 1935 commemoratives have little if any market.

Club Notes.

The Cicero-Berwyn Stamp club is sponsoring a junior stamp exhibition today at the Olympic building, 6138 West Cermak road. The exhibit is free and will be open from 10 a. m. until 6 p. m. All are invited to attend.

Cachets and Covers.

William P. Gabel, 10600 Thrush avenue, Cleveland, O., will sponsor printed cachets from the birthplaces of the following Presidents: April 23, James Buchanan; April 27, Ulysses S. Grant, and April 28, James Monroe. The closing date is 10 days before the event. Send standard 6¾ size covers ready to go, but unsealed, and include 1 cent per cover for forwarding.

In answer to numerous queries regarding the nonarrival of covers sent to the postmaster at Boulder City, Nev., for dispatch on the first airmail flight from that city on March 1, the postoffice department announced on March 1 that the service had been postponed and that the existing schedules on route 2 and 37 would be continued until further notice.

Tailored Crochet Gilet Is Easy to Make and Keep Neat

By Ellen Bruce.

Paris fashion designers are running wild on blouses and gilets for spring and summer wear. These are either softly bloused and thoroughly feminine or crisply tailored. The crochet blouses and gilets are in these categories, and the crocheted gilet illustrated today is a perfect example of the tailored simplicity.

The finest boucle and fine mercerized crochet cotton are the two materials suggested for this vestee, with the laces of the shade matching the suit with which it is worn. By making this vestee of the crochet cotton one can launder it and dip it in a weak solution of elastic starch. When dry, it possesses the right amount of stiffness to achieve the crisp, fresh, well groomed appearance every one must have these days.

The pattern is extremely simple and it does not take any time to crochet. The fine boucle makes a more dressy afternoon gilet worn with silk poplin or bengaline suits. Fine linen yarns may be substituted for the two above mentioned if the yarn works up at the same tension required for the gilet and given in the instructions.

If you wish instructions for crocheting gilet illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Ellen Bruce, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby.

A FRIEND IN NEED

By Sally Joy Brown.

We don't like to bring up unpleasant subjects, but it is time for housecleaning and we hope, for the sake of our needy applicants, that all good housewives will find many useful articles to be discarded.

If one stops to realize how often items in any household need replenishing, it is easy to understand the situation in homes where the income has provided only the most meager budget for food and shelter. In some cases this situation has existed for five or six years. Furnishings of all kinds, from dressers to dish towels, are requested every day.

Of course, we are not asking for useless articles or things in disrepair. If the donor cannot afford to make them usable, it is only logical to understand that a needy recipient will be even less equipped to do so.

Dishes, pots and pans and other kitchen utensils are frequently requested. There are numerous families eating in relays because they have insufficient utensils. These requests come from all parts of the city.

Curtains will do a good deal for any room, and they are particularly helpful in dingy, poorly furnished quarters. As one woman wrote:

"Maybe some reader has curtains she no longer wants. Things here look dead and I would like to make our home bright looking like the homes others have."

Mrs. M. is much in need of a buggy for her son, nine months old. He now weighs twenty pounds, and it is difficult for her to carry him to the infant welfare station. She is unable to purchase a buggy, as her husband is ill and in a veterans' hospital at present.

Mr. M., on the west side, has appealed to me for a bed for his small daughter. She now is nine months old and has slept in her buggy since birth, but she now is too large to rest in it properly. Mr. M. is unable to buy a bed. He formerly had steady employment but was laid off, and he exhausted his savings before applying for WPA work, which does not provide sufficient salary for more than food and shelter.

A community house in one of the poorest districts of the city would appreciate having a piano in good condition. It would help provide for folk dancing and other entertainment.

Mrs. O. on the northwest side needs numerous articles, including a large child's bed for her 4 year old son who has been seriously ill. He had a severe operation, followed by scarlet fever and an infection. His weight now is 19 pounds, and he is unable to walk. A stroller, which would enable his mother to take him outdoors, would be a great help to her, as she has another son, 2 years old. The older boy is extremely nervous and must have a bed with sides to prevent him from falling out. The family's income is very small and they also have requested a rug or linoleum for the floor. Mr. O. possesses just one pair of trousers and would appreciate clothing, size 36. His wife, who wears size 14 or 16, and shoes 6½, also is in need of apparel.

That 'Natural' Air in Child Is Valuable

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

Unself-consciousness in children can be cultivated. A mother [and she needs also coöperation from other grownups, or else a very strong hand with them!] can help her child to achieve this state if she is wise in her own behavior. If she does, she is conferring upon her child a sort of personality-freedom which is a most valuable possession.

Or, if you want to think of it in reverse, self-consciousness can be avoided. In saving her child from self-consciousness, a mother is freeing her from a state of mind that is hampering. Any grownup who has experienced marked self-consciousness knows that this is so. If acute enough, self-consciousness can make a child seem to be conceited, and also really hinder her development, both inner and social.

For besides the effect of her self-consciousness on the child's inner life, there is the effect it has upon people. You know and I know that we adults consider unself-consciousness as one of the charms of childhood; and this responsiveness that is created in grownups is a real asset to a boy or girl.

To be sure, most children pass through some periods of self-consciousness, no matter how well managed they may be. Our adolescent, for example, gains an awareness of people and their opinions, and his place in the world as part of his growing up; with this new awareness often comes temporary self-consciousness.

It is not this sort of thing but the chronic self-consciousness brought about by grownups that is not good for a child, and that I deplore: The kind of self-consciousness that makes a child always aware of eyes upon him; that makes him timid, or shy, and conscious of his shortcomings; or smug, or conceited; or self-important and obstreperous in making a bid for the center of the stage.

This is the kind of self-consciousness, long continued, that is bad for a child and handicaps him. It keeps him from being well balanced and at peace with himself.

But what we call a natural self-consciousness, phases through which most children pass, is quite different. These are times in a child's life when, through special circumstances or an age he has reached, he becomes aware of other people in relation to himself in a new way.

Let me see if I can give you an example of what I mean. Well, take babies. You know how trusting they are of everybody. But sooner or later that attitude usually changes; they act self-conscious, draw back, tuck their heads in your shoulder or your skirt when they meet some one new. That's a natural self-consciousness and will pass. It is a normal phase.

Then, there's the show-off age, coming along later, that most little boys and some litttle girls go through. They get in front of you in the middle of the floor, and turn handsprings or act generally silly when you're having tea with a friend or two. This feeling-their-oats self-consciousness is the natural kind and will pass, with the right handling.

And the third example that comes to my mind is that of your fast growing teen age son or daughter. Aware of rapid and radical physical changes, some of them become self-conscious. No longer children, these boys and girls develop noticeable feminine or masculine characteristics in body and mental attitude, too, and it takes time for them to get used to the change.

In this period they are frequently self-conscious to the point of actual suffering, and also of hiding it at any cost! And that hiding may take the form of brusqueness, rudeness, exaggerated casualness or assumed poise. This is a perfectly natural self-consciousness which will pass, and be replaced by real ease and poise. That is, it will, if the grownups will refrain from the joshing and ridicule and emphasis that so many indulge in with young people—directing it at their awkwardness, or their primping, and preening, or their "puppy loves." It's all right to have your own affectonate chuckles inside you about them and the things they do; but the people and novelties and playwrights who find adolescent ways and emotions such a huge joke and exploit them, always fill me with a righteous anger.

"Understanding the Adolescent" is a booklet helpful to parents. It will be sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Address Mrs. Gladys Bevans, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

WILL JOIN HER MOTHER

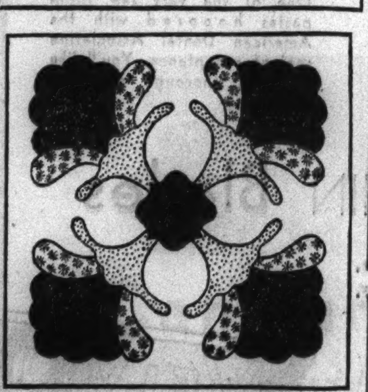
Yellow Rose Is Dainty Theme of Indiana Quilt



YELLOW INDIANA ROSE.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

BY NANCY CABOT.

All civic minded and patriotic daughters of any state endeavor to create a quilt pattern which will typify their home state in all its glory. "Yellow Indiana Rose" is one of several beautiful applique rose patterns credited to the Hoosier state. It is appliqued in yellow and yellow print material, with light green for the leaves, and is set against a white background. The finished applique block measures 16 inches square, and twenty of them are set together with 4 inch bands between the blocks, and surrounded by a 6 inch border and a one-half inch bias binding. Measuring 88 by 108, this coverlet also is suitable for use as a spread.

For a limited period Nancy Cabot offers 10 quilt patterns of her own choice at a price of 10 cents for the group (12 cents by mail). Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.

It's Quite Simple to Give a Modern Look to Bathroom

It isn't so hard as you might imagine to give an old bathroom that modern look—the appearance of having been fashioned all in one piece!

If you are planning to modernize a bath, make a plan first of how it will look when it is completely done over and choose your decorations and fixtures accordingly.

There are many types of washable wall papers, and enamels, and paints that clean easily and give added brightness and cheer to a bath if their colors are chosen with regard to the room's sunlight exposure. Then, too, there are a number of types of imitation and composition tiles, metal tiles, coated fabrics, and linoleum. And it goes without saying that the long used and beautiful ceramic tiles are still used extensively for wainscoting and floors.

Also into the bathroom picture has come structural glass and glass brick. Tubs are now completely built-in, so that they seem a part of the walls and floor toilet tanks are low, and lavatories may even have a comfortable cabinet beneath them. As for a shower—this can be easily installed on a wall at the tub end or can be in a stall all its own.

THEY USED TO CALL HIM "OLD SOUR PUSS"

LOOK at that healthy, happy grin! You'd never guess that just a little while ago he, too, was one of those dull, logy, irritable, unhappy victims of constipation. Then he turned to FEEN-A-MINT, the delicious chewing gum laxative—and what a difference it made! And no wonder—for FEEN-A-MINT not only removes waste, but guards against upsetting digestion too—in these 3 important ways:

1. NO STOMACH UPSET—With FEEN-A-MINT you don't swallow a heavy, bulky dose; there's nothing to burden digestion.
2. CHEWING AIDS DIGESTION — The chewing stimulates the flow of the same natural alkaline fluids that help food digest.
3. ACTS WHERE IT SHOULD—FEEN-A-MINT's tasteless laxative ingredient does not affect stomach action. It passes to the intestine and works where it should.

You'll enjoy taking FEEN-A-MINT — and there's no griping, nausea, or weakening after-effect. Wonderful for the whole family—ideal for children. Get a package of FEEN-A-MINT today at your druggists.

NO OTHER TYPE OF LAXATIVE CAN DO EXACTLY WHAT FEEN-A-MINT DOES

Methodists of City to Honor John Wesley

The Methodist Women's association of the Rock River conference this spring will join members of the church in a world-wide celebration of the 200th anniversary of the night in Aldersgate when John Wesley felt his heart "strangely warmed" and first was inspired to preach Methodism.

The association opened its spring season Friday with a group meeting at Vincent Methodist Episcopal church, 91st place and Langley avenue, and three other sectional meetings will take place this week: a west suburban on Wednesday at the River Forest Methodist Episcopal church; a west side on Thursday at the Hermosa church, and the Aurora-Wheaton group Friday at the Naperville church.

"Aldersgate and the New Vision" will be the theme of these and thirteen other group meetings throughout northern Illinois preceding the association's spring meeting on May 25 at the Hemenway Methodist church church in Evanston. Mrs. James Oldshue of Chicago is president of the association.

Mrs. James Oldshue.

Presiding over the various group sessions are Mrs. William F. Hurter, Oak Park; Mrs. James Larsen, Chicago; Mrs. Edward Hines, West Chicago; Miss Floy Haldeman, Richmond; Mrs. John Patterson, Chicago; Mrs. O. A. Hills, Joliet; Mrs. U. K. Reese, Elgin; Mrs. A. B. Collins, Chicago Heights; Mrs. Lloyd White, Waukegan; Mrs. A. G. Finch, Ottawa; Mrs. Elmer Haire, Cortland; Mrs. Jacob Cantlin, Rock Falls; Mrs. H. A. Fenn, Lena; Mrs. H. E. Sandstrom, Evanston; Mrs. S. O. Girard, Oregon, and Mrs. George Butler, Palatine.

The City Methodist church of Gary, Ind., will be the scene of the April quarterly meeting of the northwestern branch of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society all day Friday.

Three missionaries, Miss Helen Hewitt from Mexico, Miss Maren Tirsgaard from India, and Miss Ruth Northcott from Africa, and officers of the society will speak. Mrs. Frank Baker of Evanston will speak on "The Vaster Issues." Mrs. H. L. Hoskins of Chicago heads the branch, which comprises Michigan, Wisconsin, Indiana, and Illinois.

Give Fireplace a Paneled Wall in Stained Pine

If you want to change the fireplace end of your living room and give to the room at the same time the added beauty of mellowness, try the effect of darkly stained knotty pine paneling on the fireplace wall. Then let this wall form the background of a copper faced fireplace. There need be no mantel.

Not only will you find the copper color attractive, you'll find immense enjoyment in the picture of flames reflected in the polished surfaces until the whole room seems aglow!

After you have lived with this copper fireplace a while you may never want to live without it!

Paris Frock in Soft Shades Is Designed for Mature Figures

No. 5235—The Paris pattern for this frock is available in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, and 50 inches bust measurement.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS. — [Special.] — One bright spring day recently I abandoned all plans for serious business and took a carriage through the Louvre gardens instead. I felt guilty about it at first, much like a child playing hooky from school, but I could justify my expedition later, if need be, because that trip through the park on a balmy spring day brought its own reward in the line of fashion snooping. I noticed a young mother promenading with an active little daughter who was busy rolling hoops. A pretty little girl she was, but her mother was even lovelier. She wore the very dress I have had adapted for our pattern today, No. 5235. The original of this model was of soft, dusty pink silk with a lilac figure in it. The two tone sash was of rose and purple. Milady of the garden walk wore a rolled pink straw sailor, and its ribbons matched those of the dress.

This slenderizing dress may be worn by women of all ages and figure types. But be sure to pick a soft and colorful fabric scheme. The thing this season is to be feminine and to look the part.

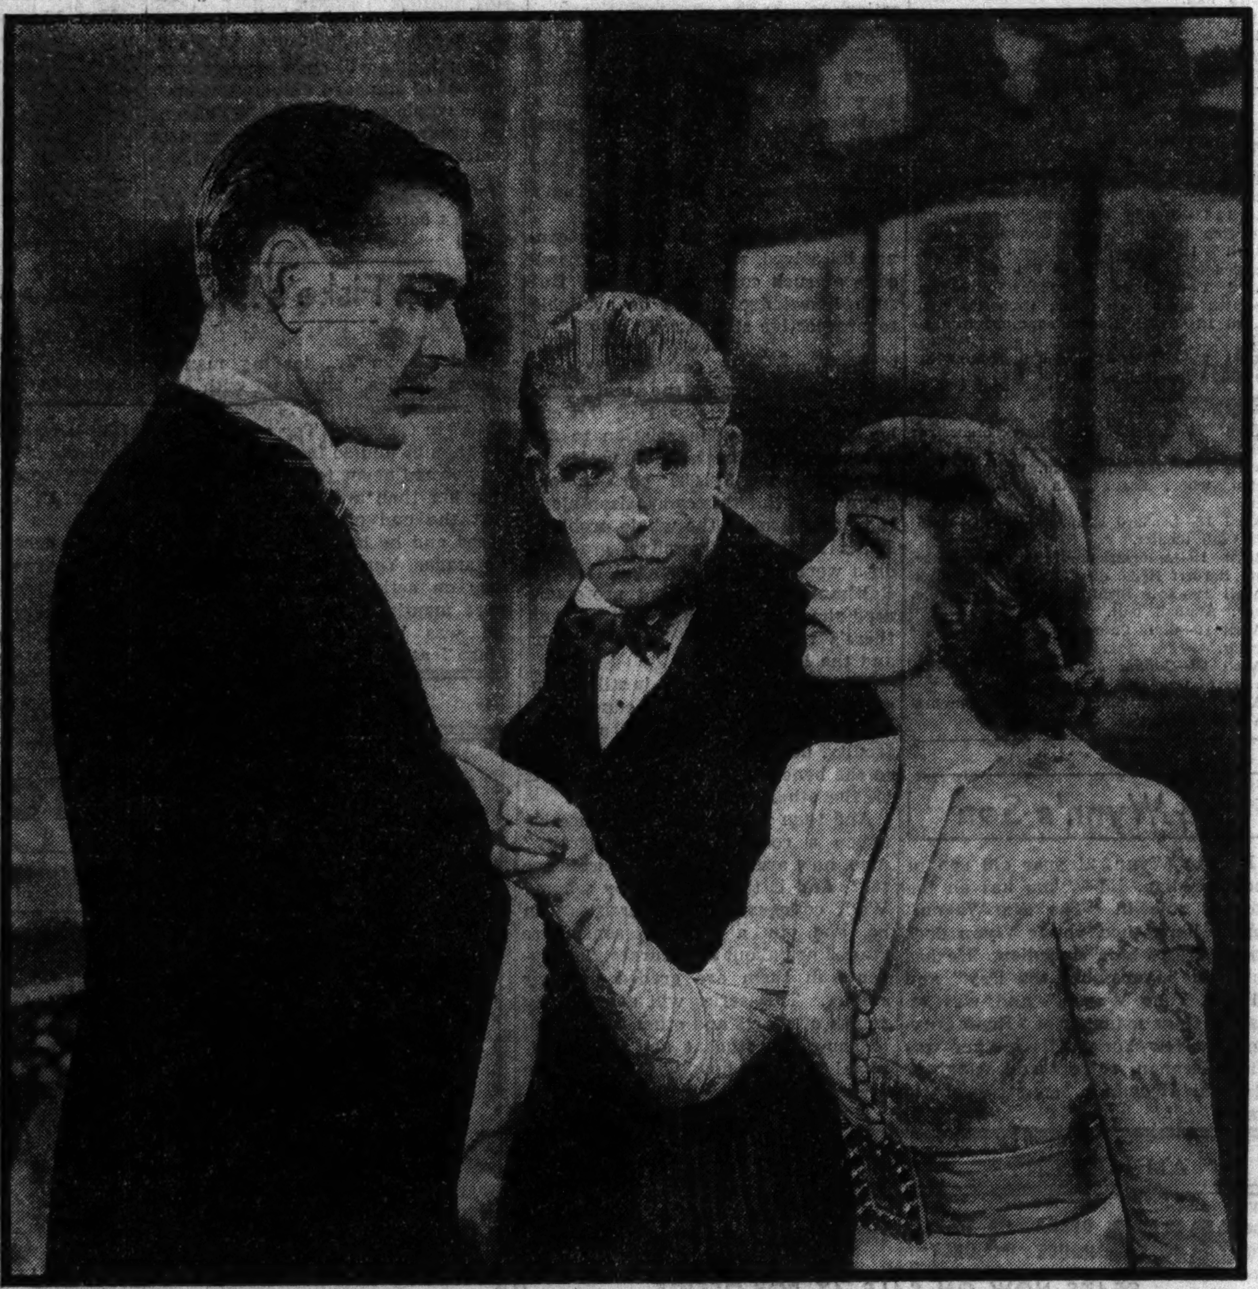
Above: "Aren't they sweet!" "They" are Tommy Kelly and Ann Gillis, who play the roles of Tom Sawyer and Betty Thatcher in a screen version of Mark Twain's beloved story, "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer." On the United Artists' screen.



Right: Claudette Colbert may NOT be laying down the law to Gary Cooper—but she's certainly being mighty definite about something. The interested bystander hiding behind a false mustache is none other than our old friend, Edward Everett Horton. This trio are playing in "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife." (Chicago.)

Bette Davis looks demure enough in this photograph, but looks belie the lady, as you'll discover when you see "Jezebel." (Oriental.) The picture is localed in the deep south in the days of 1852, and Miss Davis is one Miss Julie Belle, a storm center, if ever a human being was one. She has two leading men, Henry Fonda and George Brent. Prominent in the cast are Fay Bainter and Margaret Lindsay.

Margery Maxwell, soprano, will sing for the Musicians Club of Women in Curtiss hall tomorrow afternoon. The Zoellner String quartet is to assist.

Playgoers Await 'Star-Wagon' and Musical Shows

By Charles Collins.

The Chicago stage settled down into Lenten poverty with last night's departure of Orson Welles' staging of Shakespeare's "Julius Cæsar" as a parable of Fascism, and "Father Malachy's Miracle." "Room Service" keeps the spirit of merriment alive at the Selwyn theater, and Maurice Schwartz's production of the Yiddish drama, "The Brothers Ashkenazi," remains at the Studebaker for another week; but elsewhere there is vacancy, pending the renewal of activity, especially in musical shows, that the spring is expected to bring.

The first arrival of the spring theatrical season will be "The Star-Wagon," a play by Maxwell Anderson with Burgess Meredith and Lillian Gish as the leaders of its cast. This work has been one of the favorite items on the Broadway playbills since last fall, and it will come to the Grand Opera house immediately after the closing of its New York run. The première is scheduled for the Tuesday before Easter Sunday, or April 12.

This work is a fantastic comedy, dealing with an old inventor and his colleague who are given a supernatural opportunity to live their lives over again and correct their errors of judgment which had deprived them of material success. The content and meaning of the play are serious and reveal certain aspects of Maxwell Anderson's philosophy, but there is said to be much humor in the treatment of the incidents.

Lillian Gish, who appears as the heroine, has an international reputation because of her participation in some of the most popular productions of the silent films. It is said that no movie in which she figured over a period of fifteen years netted less than $1,000,000. They included "The Birth of a Nation," "Broken Blossoms," "Hearts of the World," "Orphans of the Storm," "Way Down East," and "The White Sister."

Two years ago Miss Gish and her sister, Dorothy, also famous as a film actress in the pre-talkie era, were traveling through the Balkan states. They stopped at a hut on the Albanian frontier, a mountainous region miles away from any motion picture theater. The woman of the house was an ignorant, barefooted peasant, but she recognized Lillian Gish instantly. Years before, the priest of the parish had arranged for an exhibition of the film, "The White Sister," strongly religious of sentiment, in his church, and she had seen it.

Miss Gish withdrew from the film studios when the talkies arrived and returned to the dramatic stage in 1930 in a distinguished production of Chekhoff's "Uncle Vanya," which was seen in Chicago. Since then she has acted in a revival of "Camille" both at Central City, Colo., and in New York; in Sean O'Casey's "Within the Gates," in Philip Barry's "The Joyous Season," and in Shakespeare's "Hamlet." She was the Ophelia to John Gielgud's Prince of Denmark in New York last year.

"The Star-Wagon" gives Miss Gish a "protean rôle." She acts a poor old household drudge, a winsome girl of 20, and a wealthy but unhappy wife of 55. These, of course, are phases of the same character.

Burgess Meredith, Miss Gish's co-star, has become a leader of Audiences Fail to Warm to Clare Kummer's 'Spring Thaw'

Critic Regrets Time Spent on Play by Author

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—There were four of them—a comedy about a chilly wife, a farce about a Hollywood brat, one drama about a matriarch who was 101 years old, and another drama about patients and doctors in a state insane asylum. As in the children's jingle, the first was the worst, the second the same, the last the best of all four.

The comedy was Clare Kummer's "Spring Thaw," with Roland Young the chief comedian. Mrs. Kummer usually writes comedies about Roland Young, who is her favorite son-in-law. Remember, "Rollo's Wild Oat" and "Her Master's Voice?" "Spring Thaw" already has left us, having been gathered to its storehouse guardians a week after it started. No great loss, but enough to inspire a regret that Mrs. Kummer, who is one of the brightest of our comedy writers, should have spent so much time on it. Being selfish, we would have her work on nothing but successful plays. Probably that is her idea, too.

The Young piece told of a whimsical little man married to a chilly wife. When the wife thought she might do better for herself by running away with a composer and pianist the husband did what he could to assist.

But for one reason and another wife could not get started on her romantic flight. She was always missing the train, or the boat. Finally she and the pianist did get as far as her husband's Adirondack hunting lodge. Only to find husband there before them. There was but one fireplace in the lodge, and that was in the master's bedroom. Naturally the wife insisted on sleeping where it was warm. So did the pianist, and also the husband. They were all three in the same bed with their coats on at the last curtain—husband in the middle.

"All the Living" Best and Least Inspiring.

The best, and yet the least inspiring, of the four plays, is Hardie Albright's "All the Living." Mr. Albright is an actor by profession. He takes the story for his play from a volume written by Dr. Victor S. Small called "I Knew 3,000 Lunatics." Dr. Small was for six years employed in an asylum for the insane in a southern state and his book is a record of his experience.

You would not, being normally minded, select a play having an insane asylum as a setting for an evening's diversion. And you would have every reason for objecting when you found a theater popularly dedicated to entertainment taking your money for such an exhibit. Of course, that is what play reviewers are for—to warn you of what to expect in the theater.

But once in the theater, and once introduced to the activities of "All the Living," you would quite likely find it an absorbing adventure in playgoing. For here is the most compelling picture of life back of the bars of a state institution for the mentally defective that has ever been publicly exposed.

Leaving the theater you might decide that you did not want to see that play again, but you would probably be well pleased that you had seen it once, and proud of such added knowledge of a hidden phase of life as it had given you. The educational drama has a place. The playgoer's rightful quarrel with it is that it too often is deceitfully exploited.

Individual Treatment Message of Play.

The message that Dr. Small and Playwright Albright seem eager to get over with "All the Living" is that the mentally ill should be treated as individual cases and not in the mass. Their curing, rather than their confinement, should be stressed. The institution pictured in the play has 3,000 patients and a staf of four qualified physicians. There is no time for proper experimentation and study. Treatments are routined and cases grouped.

The hero, a youthful specialist who believes he has discovered a sulphur formula that will help cure attacks of dementia precox, is pushed around and threatened with dismissal until he is himself a fit subject for a mental breakdown. Thanks to the help of a fellow worker the formula is secretly tried and proved effective.

The story involves the romance of the two doctors, who are both in love with the same nurse. One gets her through the sacrifice of the other.

But it is not the romance, nor yet the conspiracy to test the formula that holds the play together. It is the wealth of incidental detail, the exposure of patients, both pathetic and comic, and the sense of actuality which Lee Strasberg, who staged the play, has been able to suggest and sustain that does this.

One part of the audience laughs quite openly at the actions of the demented. The chief comedy relief is in the hands of a happy fellow who for seventeen years has imagined himself a great industrialist. He will sell you anything, or trade you the White House for a nickel cigar. Another part of the audience as openly resents the laughter, concentrating on the social significance of the exposure.

"All the Living" is strikingly staged and acted. The leading players are Sanford Meisner, Leif Erickson of the movies [Frances Farmer, Leif's wife, is here playing the lead in "Golden Boy"], Elizabeth Young, John Alexander, and Charles Dingle.

Ethel Barrymore Enjoys Old Time Triumph.

Ethel Barrymore enjoyed an old-time first night triumph this week with the second most interesting play of the four produced. This was "Whiteoaks," a dramatization by the author, Mazo de la Roche, of her collected stories, popular fifteen years ago as "Whiteoaks of Jalna."

The play has long been a success in England, has recently come from a triumphant tour of Canada, the scene of its locale, and seems likely to bring its American star happily back to the arms of her adoring friends in New York.

It takes courage for an actress of Miss Barrymore's years and quality to agree to play ageing character parts. Mostly they go down fighting to be accepted at 50 plus as they were when they were 20. The resulting exhibits are usually pathetic.

Miss Barrymore, being a good trouper, has taken her age in her stride and made much of it when called upon to do so in such plays as "The Kingdom of God" and this "Whiteoaks." In "Whiteoaks" she plays a centenarian, the mercurial Adeline Whiteoaks.

At 101 Adeline is still the matriarch of the family, querulous, a little spiteful, sharp as tacks, quite conscious of her family's subtle efforts to wheedle themselves into her will and defiantly determined to have her own way.

She leaves her money, as the book readers will remember, to Finch, the least upstanding of her grandchildren, because her sympathy for him and her understanding of his ambition as a musician are aroused during her last years.

Adeline dies gracefully at the end of the second act and the play, in a way, dies with her. It is a pretty artificial affair at best, but so long as Miss Barrymore is pegging her way through it, with cane and cackle, playing old age with all the tricks of her trade, looking a lot like her brother, Lionel, a part of the time, and spreading her eyes as John does at other times, it is good theater. Audiences love it and so, I suspect, does Ethel.

She has her daughter, Ethel Colt, playing one of the younger wives of Jalna, and Stephen Haggard, one of England's best character juveniles, is the Finch, Robert Shayne is prominent in support.

Another Play About Hollywood Appears.

A little something called "Schoolhouse on the Lot," written by a couple of Hollywood boys named Joseph Fields and Jerome Chodorov with some hope of duplicating the success of other Hollywood exposures, did not do so well. First, I think, because it duplicates much that was new in "Once in a Lifetime" and "Boy Meets Girl"; second, because the exposure of the alleged stupidity, cupidity, and general worthlessness of the picture industry's executives has ceased to be a joke. At least it is no longer a good joke.

There is one new idea in "Schoolhouse on the Lot." That is the picture of the dear little brats of the screen as many of them probably behave when they are not on parade. Dear Little Dolly Shepherd, who is going on 7 and already the star of Mercury pictures, stamps her feet and screams and flatly announces that she will do this and won't do that, until she has directors and actors in a state of rebellion. Finally little Dolly has the nice young lady who is the teacher of the schoolhouse on the lot fired from her job because she has given her C's and not A's on her report card.

It happens that Peter Driscoll, sent by Wall street to deny or approve Mercury's request for another $2,000,000 loan, is witness to Dolly's action against her teacher. Mr. Driscoll, having paternal promptings, turns Dolly over his knee and gives her a spanking. For this he is accused of having committed an attack upon the child, which is part of a Mercury plot to force him to confirm their loan.

It is a plot of many complications, decorated with occasional good lines. But it struck me as pretty poor stuff for comedy purposes. The chief players are Robert K. Harris, from the Yiddish theater, Onslow Stevens, Mary Mason, Buford Armitage, and Eda Heinemann.

Box Office Honor

A Selwyn theater pass issued fourteen years ago was presented at the box office recently. Marked "Good any time," it was signed by Walter Duggan. Stanley Levine, ticket seller, thought someone was playing a joke and rejected the slip, but John S. Hale, veteran manager of "Room Service," recognized the signature and admitted the bearer.

Duggan, well known in his time and now dead, was press agent of the Selwyn in 1924. The young man who tendered the pass the other night is Lester Hillman, son of Roy Hillman, a city employe. Hillman's mother came across the old pass in some household documents. She thought it was of fresh issue and turned it over to her son.

"The Women" will end its New York run on April 23. It then will have had 567 performances, not counting benefits.

Meredith and Gish to Come in 'Star-Wagon'

the American stage during the past four years. His rise to eminence has been so rapid and recent that he was overlooked by the editor of "Who's Who in Theater" in the last [eighth] edition of that collection of brief biographies, published in 1936.

Five years ago Meredith was a member of Eva Le Gallienne's repertory company, playing three rôles in her staging of "Alice in Wonderland" [seen in Chicago]—the roller-skating Duck, the Dormouse, and Tweedledee. After that tour he had engaged in two short lived Broadway productions—"The Three Penny Opera" and "Little Ol' Boy." In November, 1933, he scored a New York hit as a tap-dancing Princeton student in "She Loves Me Not," a success which never reached Chicago except in its film version. It kept him busy for a year.

Then he figured in three failures, called "Hipper's Holiday," "Battleship Gertie," and "Hide and Seek." Katharine Cornell engaged him to act one of the young men in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," and since then, except for two screen productions in Hollywood, he has appeared under the management of Miss Cornell's husband, Guthrie McClintic. His summer visit to Chicago to play the title rôle in "Noah" in a disastrous repertory adventure in Glencoe forms a footnote to his career. He was acting Father Noah with brilliance and charm when the North Shore Drama Festival crashed into bankruptcy and the players passed the hat in effect, at a few free admission performances in order to secure railroad fare.

Became Star in "Winterset" Movie.

Under the McClintic management Meredith appeared in "Flowers of the Forest," one of Miss Cornell's relative failures; in "Winterset," which came to Chicago two years ago, and in "High Tor," which had a run in New York last season. Hollywood secured him for the screen version in "Winterset," and after his season in "High Tor" he returned to its studios for another picture called "There Goes the Groom." He has a long term movie contract which provides that he will work in Hollywood only when free of dramatic duties.

Before he got a foothold in Miss Le Gallienne's organization he was a flighty lad who had been in turn a choir boy in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York, a student at Amherst college for a year, a reporter on the Cleveland Plain Dealer, and in Stamford, Conn., a partner in his brother's haberdashery shop, a Wall street messenger, a vacuum cleaner salesman, a roofing material salesman, a clerk in the necktie and fur departments of two New York stores, and a common sailor on two tramp steamers visiting South American ports. He married Margaret Perry, a young actress who was also an heiress. She played the leading rôle in "Strictly Dishonorable" when it played its Chicago run in 1930, when she was 16 years old.

WPA Will Stage Drama of Negro Life.

The Yiddish WPA production, "The Tailor Becomes a Storekeeper," will end its run of five weeks at the Great Northern theater with tonight's performance. The next WPA [federal theater project] venture there will be "Big White Fog," a drama of Negro life by Theodore Ward, to be acted by the group of Negro players who appeared in "Mississippi Bubble" at the Princess theater.

The story of the musical comedy by Cole Porter called "You Never Know," which is scheduled for a première in the Grand Opera house on May 1, is concerned with a valet who is masquerading as an aristocrat and a serving maid who is posing as a lady of title. They are having a love affair in the grand manner when the baron, employer of the valet, walks in upon them and pretends to be a servant. This sounds suspiciously like the plot of the comedy, "By Candle Light," in which Eugenie Leontovitch appeared in the Princess theater in 1929. Clifton Webb will have the rôle of the valet, and Lupe Valez will be the maid.

Among Cole Porter's song titles will be "By Candlelight" [this confirms the suspicion of origin], "From Alpha to Omega," "For No Rhyme or Reason," "At Long Last Love," and "What Shall I Be?"

Maurice Schwartz, now presenting the Yiddish drama, "The Brothers Ashkenazi" in Chicago, will take his company on a European tour next June. They will open in the Porte St. Martin theater, Paris, on June 15. Other engagements will be played in Brussels, Antwerp, The Hague, Amsterdam, and London. Next October Schwartz will return to his home theater, at 7th avenue and 59th street, New York, to stage one of two plays by Sholem Asch, either "Three Cities" or "Salvation."

The annual festival of Shakespeare's plays at Stratford-on-Avon, England, will run from April 11 to Sept. 24. The principal players will be Phyllis Neilson-Terry, Peggy Livesy, James Dale, Gyles Isham, Jay Laurier, and Francis James. On Shakespeare's birthday, assumed to be April 23, the bill will be "Henry VIII," which has not been staged at Stratford since 1916.

Ed Wynn's Son

Keenan Wynn, 21 year old son of the comedian, Ed Wynn, has an important rôle in "The Star-Wagon." Unlike his father, young Wynn does not aspire to be a comedian. He has acted in "Remember the Day" and "Hitch Your Wagon," and was assistant stage manager of "Room Service" in New York. His mother was Hilda Keenan, actress and daughter of Frank Keenan, a famous dramatic star.

What Must Be Considered in Rating College

This is the first of a series of articles on the selection of a college or university. Such statistical matter as endowment, budget, and the like is taken from public records supplemented by correspondence. No attempt will be made to recommend specific colleges, but Dr. Evans will be glad to suggest answers to proper questions which will amplify this series. Letters should be addressed to Dr. John Evans, care of the Chicago Tribune.

By the Rev. John Evans.

Thousands of high school students are now making up their minds about going to a college or university this fall. The decision is a life's turning point, and if the decision is to go, then which college or university shall it be? And why a university instead of a college, or a college instead of a university?

For the serious minded student and his parents the question is a difficult and confusing one if higher education, and not social or athletic considerations, is the main object of his quest. America is rich in its higher educational facilities, but that very wealth of opportunity complicates the question. The school for Tom may not be the school for Harry, or Mary.

Dear Old Freshwater college beckons and so does grand Old Saltwater university. What has each to offer to meet Tom's particular needs, or Mary's or Harry's?

And it will cost a lot of money to send Tom or Mary away to college in September. That's important to the family purse, but no more important than the amount of money the college or university will have to spend on the young folks. There would be more satisfaction in squeezing the family bank account if Dad knew that Old Saltwater was somewhere near matching his money, dollar for dollar, on the young folks' education.

Let us say that tuition at Saltwater is $300, and to pay the full cost of Tom's education the university would have to put up as much as $800 a year more. On the other hand, Freshwater's tuition is also $300 a year, but is able only to put up $200 a year to meet the full cost of Tom's schooling.

But the value of an education cannot be solved solely through knowledge of such comparative facts. But such knowledge should be available to prospective students.

There are many other considerations; for instance, the matter of buildings and equipment of the college or university in relation to the number of students. This varies in America from $12,000 per student downward. But this comparison alone is just an item in the whole problem. Johns Hopkins university's grandest days were when it occupied two old Baltimore residences and professors used shoe boxes for bookshelves. And there's the adage of Mark Hopkins and the log.

The famed Prof. Mark is still as important as ever and grand educational edifices will never replace a strong faculty, but the log may be improved to the benefit of the student who sits on the other end from Mark.

And then what is the difference between a college and a university? Also, how are standards of excellence set? And if they are set, by whom? Well, colleges and universities can be, and, in a general sense, are graded just about as accurately as students in them are graded in their studies. This series will attempt, by means of charts and other references, to show the student and his educational sponsors how, with reasonable accuracy, this may be done.

However, certain considerations cannot enter this series. These are personal, religious, and social, such as whether or not fraternities are fostered, and the question of co-education, pro and con. Also, many decisions are made by family tradition; for three generations it has been Yale or Smith! The fourth generation, represented by Tom and Mary, of course, will go to Yale and Smith.

Today's table shows the thirty standard colleges, approved by the American Association of Universities, having equipment valued at $2,000,000 or more. The table is designed to show equipment value and endowment per student. Thus it is seen that Dartmouth, for instance, having the largest endowment of $17,209,302, does not rank as a per student college with Williams college with a far smaller endowment. Similarly, comparisons in equipment may be made.

Later tables will show similar comparisons of standard universities both of the whole country and the colleges and universities of the six central western states.

[The next article will point out differences between colleges and universities.]

College Financial Structures

Standard liberal arts colleges having investments in buildings and equipment in excess of $2,000,000 [land values not included]. The table shows also total endowments and endowment and investments per student. Third and fifth colums are most important for student consideration.

College—	Total investment.	Student enroll.	Inv. per student.	Endowment.	Endowment per student.
Dartmouth [New Hampshire]	$9,643,000	2,480	$3,888	$17,209,302	$ 6,939
Vassar [New York]	9,859,235	1,223	8,061	9,048,047	7,398
Wellesley [Massachusetts]	7,770,000	1,541	5,042	8,440,402	5,477

Mrs. Fiske's End

Reed Brown Jr., leading man in "Room Service," appeared with Mrs. Fiske in her last play, "Against the Wind," in Chicago. The great actress was then 65 and so feeble that Brown was warned never to get farther away from her than arm's length.

At the end of every act she collapsed and he had to carry her from the stage. Yet her determination to keep on acting kept her going for three months. Just before she died she was planning to do "Becky Sharp" at matinées.

Mechanics Least Important in Music, Asserts Critic

Art Must Make Known Feelings of the Creator

By Edward Barry.

Neither the hands nor the organs of speech are well designed by nature for musical uses. The dreadful difficulty which every student encounters in his effort to bend unsuitable physical apparatus to the production of music is the cause, argued this column last Sunday, of two closely related and widely current misconceptions.

First, a person engaged in the appalling business of trying to make muscles or vocal organs behave comes too frequently to believe that this and nothing else is music study. Second, he decides all too often that the best way to conquer the obstacles which confront him is to lock himself away for eight or ten years and devote all of his time and energy to the task of acquiring a technique.

A week ago the first of these fallacies was the object of an attack. Today comes the turn of the second.

Any one who believes that he can retire from the world and become a good interpreter by ceaseless work upon the mechanical difficulties of his profession is deaf to the most enlightened philosophy of art and blind to the peculiar place of music among the arts. And he probably will emerge from his experiment dumb—dumb in the sense of speechless, at least—because he has given his time merely to the task of perfecting a vocabulary. A vocabulary, let it be emphasized again, is not something to say but merely a means of saying it—when and if the something demands to be said.

Any Piece of Art Is Means of Communication.

A piece of good art, whether it be a Rembrandt portrait, a Robert Frost poem, the porch of the Parthenon, a Rodin head, or a Schumann Album Leaf, represents a means of communication between creator and beholder. Something is passed from one person to another. The fact that this something is intuitive rather than logical, that it must be expressed in an object rather than in words, does not blunt the point in the least.

A man's feeling about some aspect of life or experience and his recognition of the truth that this feeling may be objectified in a certain arrangement of colors, rhythms, lines, planes, or sounds—these two things [plus, of course, the acquired technique which permits him to manipulate these colors, rhythms, lines, etc.] constitute the necessary conditions for the creation of a work of art.

The ability to perceive the fact that these colors, rhythms, lines, etc., do embody a way of feeling about some aspect of life or experience constitutes the necessary condition for the reception of a work of art. If the beholder senses only colors, rhythms, and lines as such, then the whole thing becomes a silly game and should not be dignified by the name of art.

Take from art its warm, intuitive awareness of life, its bursting burden of feeling, and it becomes utterly meaningless. Art is incapable of dealing with logical meanings and can justify itself only through its ability to convey those of the intuitive sort.

Merely Decorative Art Is Trivial in Origin.

Merely decorative art, art which consists of patterned colors, lines, or sounds without genuine feeling underlying them, is trivial in its origins and in its ends. It may serve as a means of titilating the sense but remains completely unimportant as far as the whole inner man is concerned.

Feeling is the very essence of art, and depth of feeling, it need hardly be said, is attained only through experience of life. This does not mean exhaustive experience of what we call "real" life, but may consist largely of a sensitive and comprehending living of vicarious lives which study, conversation, and contemplation make possible. An embryo singer or instrumentalist must make sure that he has a reasonably wide and deep knowledge of life. Else how can he hope to understand and transmit the meaning which informs the music?

For music finds itself in a peculiar position in that it is the only one of the arts which requires an interpreter to convey to the beholder the knowledge which the creator has won. A person who is to sing or play something must first find out what it is all about; then do his best to convey that meaning to an audience.

And if the would-be interpreter has locked himself away from life in order to fuss around with the mechanical elements of music and has had the misfortune to become a specialist in the worst sense of the word, then the chances of his discovering the way of feeling about some aspect of life and experience which informs a work and of passing it warmly on to his listeners are extremely slim, to say the least. Too often he will content himself with passing on his superficial idea of the sounds and rhythms in which the composer has embodied his feeling, and will be honestly surprised to find that his academically correct rendering of the music does not produce the effect which he has been assured is part and parcel of that piece.

Technical Aspects Least Important.

So much for the lack of wisdom inherent in the process of studying music in its technical aspects alone or of failing to remember constantly that these technical aspects constitute the least important view of the whole. One might go further and claim that even an intelligent study of music, in which the all important place of feeling is thoroughly understood, may be unwise if it is not supported at many points by study and experience of other and varying sorts.

For music must have points of reference. Considered in and for itself and without the constant checking with other forms of knowledge which alone can give us proper perspective and a proper sense of values, music is as likely as anything else to turn its votaries into specialists. And may heaven preserve us from the specialists, men who have lost all sense of how their activities fit into the general scheme of things and who are responsible, at a conservative estimate, for 90 per cent of the nonsense which is thought and spoken and written in the average year!

SYMPHONY SOLOIST

Lotte Lehmann, German soprano (and novelist), will sing excerpts from "Fidelio," "Lohengrin," and "Tristan und Isolde" with the Chicago Symphony orchestra next Thursday night and Friday afternoon.

Notes of Music and Musicians

The season's last assisting soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra will be Lotte Lehmann, soprano, who sings at this week's Thursday-Friday pair of concerts in Orchestra hall. Mme. Lehmann's record of distinguished achievements in Europe and America places her unqualifiedly in the top bracket of operatic singers. Chicago has a particular interest in her, for the Civic Opera company introduced her to America, engaging her services for several seasons before the Metropolitan Opera association woke up to the full significance of its oversight.

During the larger part of her career she has been a leading soprano at the State Opera in Vienna. There, in addition to the German rôles for which she has become famous in America, she has sung nearly every sort of Italian dramatic soprano rôle. Even the perilous altitudes and loud noises of Puccini's "Turandot" held no terrors for her. The only non-German rôle she has sung in America is the title part of "Tosca," and this was rated her only operatic mischoice.

Overture to "Fidelio" ....Beethoven
Scene and Aria from "Fidelio" ....Beethoven
Symphony No. 2, D major ....Beethoven
Prelude to Act 3 of "Tannhäuser" ....Wagner
Elsa's Dream, from "Lohengrin" ....Wagner
Introduction to Act 2, and Ride of the Valkyries, from "Die Walküre" ....Wagner
Excerpts from act 3 of "Tristan and Isolde" ....Wagner

Dr. Stock also conducts the Saturday night popular program:

"Academic Festival" overture ....Brahms
Symphony No. 3, E-flat major "Rhenish" ....Schumann
Oriental Suite, "Beni Mora" ....Holst
Adagio Pathétique ....Godard
Polonaise, from Serenade for Violin, Viola, and Cello, Opus 8....Beethoven
Waltz, from "Der Rosenkavalier" ..Strauss

For the season's last symphony program by the young musicians of the Civic orchestra in Orchestra hall today, Hans Lange, their conductor, has selected a challenging Wagner-Strauss program. Even though its chief function is to serve as a training school for talented students of orchestral instruments, the Civic orchestra consistently manages to play programs of first rate interest and full professional difficulty, and to play them with remarkable success. Today's program:

Overture to "Tannhäuser" ....Wagner
Prelude and Love-Death, from "Tristan and Isolde" ....Wagner
Tone Poem, "Ein Heldenleben" ....Strauss

The Illinois Symphony orchestra has invited Leo Kopp, conductor of the Chicago City Opera company, to take over this afternoon's concert in the Great Northern theater. Dorys Seelig, Chicago pianist, is the soloist:

Symphony No. 5, D minor ["Reformation"] ....Mendelssohn
Variations on a Nursery Air, for orchestra with piano obbligato. Dohnanyi Dorys Seelig.
"The Sea" ....Debussy
Overture, "The Roman Carnival" ...Berlioz

The orchestra plays a concert at New Trier High school auditorium, Winnetka, Monday night under the direction of Izler Solomon, with George Swigart of the New Trier faculty as violin soloist.

The spring concert of the Chicago Symphonic choir, Walter Aschenbrenner, director, will take place in Orchestra hall Tuesday evening offering the following highly varied program:

"Weep, O Mine Eyes" ....Bennet-Saar
Aria ....Scarlatti-Aschenbrenner
"Come, Sweet Death" ..Bach-Aschenbrenner
Motet, "How Brightly Shines the Morning Star" ....Georg Schumann
Motet, "O King, to Whom All Things Do Live" ....Healey Willan
Credo ....Gretchaninoff
Salvation is Created ....Tschesnokoff
The Last Spring ....Grieg-Bull
Sunrise ....Taneyef
Vale of Tuoni ....Sibelius
Finnish, Slavic, Russian and German folk songs.
By the Rivers of Babylon ....Pantchenko

Gunnar Johansen, Danish born California pianist, begins a series of twelve historical piano recitals this week in Breasted hall, the Oriental institute, the University of Chicago. Programs will be given every Tuesday and Thursday afternoon at 4 for the next six weeks.

Rossini's "Stabat Mater" will be sung by the choir of the First Congregational church, La Grange, Monday evening, under the direction of Cecil Smith. Assisting artists include Louise Grosser, soprano; Josephine Swinney, mezzo-soprano; Carl Strum, tenor; Paul Pence, baritone, and Gilman Chase, organist.

Margery Maxwell, soprano, and the Zoellner string quartet will provide the last concert of the year for the Musicians Club of Women in Curtiss hall, Fine Arts building, Monday afternoon.

A musical fantasy entitled "The Life Drama of the Zingani" constitutes the program of Triancia [Frances Vandercook], dancer, at the Auditorium recital hall tonight. She will be assisted by Josephine Swinney, mezzo-soprano; Eileen Bowman, pianist, and Eva Lynn, cornetist.

Miss Graham's Group to Dance Here This Week

By Cecil Smith.

For the first time in more than a year Martha Graham, chief high priestess of the modern American dance, will bring her group of twelve to Chicago for a demonstration in Thorne hall on Wednesday evening and a recital in the Auditorium theater Thursday evening.

One of the most positive personalities the art of the dance has brought forward in America, Miss Graham has now emerged from the dark privation and hardship of her earlier career into the high noon of national publicity and wide fame. Her ideas are gospel to hundreds of younger dancers, and she has recently become the subject of an imposing biographical and critical book by a remarkable list of authors including John Martin, Lincoln Kerstein, Stark Young, Wallingford Riegger, George Antheil, and Winthrop Sargeant.

Miss Graham's style of dancing grew in the first place out of an inner revulsion against the kinds of dance that were popular fifteen years ago. The pretty-pretty veil and garland school of self-expression held no attraction for an alert, galvanic mind like hers, and the sugared exoticism of the Denishawn dancers was not much better. The ballet, as represented in the Diaghileff-Nijinsky tradition, at least fell within the bounds of esthetic respectability, but she felt it to be a frozen tradition—a vocabulary to which new words and meanings were no longer being added.

Asserted Ballet Defied Force of Gravity.

With daily heroism in the face of poverty and short rations, the young iconoclast set out to experiment with all the kinds and varieties of movement forbidden in ballet dancing. Asserting that the ballet defied nature by trying to keep its dancers up in the air in spite of the force of gravity, she endeavored to find new movements capitalizing both the downward pull of gravity and the corresponding sense of effort required to lift up or elevate the body.

Out of this experimental beginning Martha Graham gradually began to understand which movements are natural to the body and which movements are distortions of its natural movement. Her subsequent style made constant use of these distortions, whose resolutions to points of rest are similar to the constant resolution in music of discords to points of rest upon concords.

For several years after Miss Graham became sure of her style and able to teach it to a group of students, she placed constant emphasis upon the need for educating audiences to understand "pure" or "non-representational" dancing, in which there is no story to be told—nothing but a complete concentration upon the expressive power of bodily movement alone. Her pupils, followers, and imitators have concentrated upon the developing of pure dance movement, decrying alike the story telling ballet and the pictorial or heavily symbolic dance composition.

Insists Dancing Must Be Watched for Own Sake.

This insistence that Americans must learn to watch dancing for its own sake, instead of for the stories it tells or the pictures it paints, is probably Miss Graham's greatest contribution to our understanding of the art of movement.

Now, however, she has progressed into a new stage of worry. The dance, she feels, must not only be pure, it must be contemporary. It must be both the product and the representation of our own times and our own life problems. She has found herself in a strange straddling position, trying to keep her dance movements abstract on the one hand, and on the other hand trying to infuse "social consciousness" into them.

Thus her newest compositions, like those of her New York associates, hang perilously on the brink of political and social propaganda, if indeed they do not fall over. All the modern dancers in New York, for instance, have adopted a partisan attitude toward the Spanish civil war. While I have no quarrel with any dancer's political views, I am somewhat tensely awaiting Miss Graham's recital to find out whether she has really turned political propaganda into high art, or whether her esthetic principles have suffered at the hands of her new found convictions.

"Deep Song," one of the three new dances Miss Graham and the group are to give Thursday, is directly suggested by the Spanish conflict. Another, "Chronicle," carries generalized overtones of it. Since I have not seen "Deep Song," I resign the floor to Henry Gilfond, New York dance critic, who has:

"'Deep Song' is not a dance that depicts the Spanish scene, its anguish, its sorrows, and its strength, but rather a dance that speaks of the anguish, sorrow, and determination of an American, three thousand miles away from the realities of the battlefield, contemplating the suffering and the unflagging spirit of a people who will not be defeated.

'Deep Song' is not a picture of Spanish women; it is, in intense phrases of torment, the story of the tortured mind and body, that in some way was and is the experience common to all people who understand, know, react to such human sufferings as the Spanish peoples have faced these last long months."

Of the other two dances new to Chicago, "Chronicle" is an anti-war suite consisting of three parts, "Dance before Catastrophe," "Dance after Catastrophe," and "Prelude to Action." The other new dance, "American Lyric," takes its theme "from the belief in the American right of petition."

The complete program of Thursday's Auditorium theater program, with the composers of the accompanying music, follows:

Praeludium ....Paul Nordoff
Celebration ....Louis Horst
Frontier ....Louis Horst
Deep Song ....Henry Cowell
Chronicle [in three parts] ....Wallingford Riegger
American Lyric ....Alex North

Ada Belle Files, Chicago contralto, will appear in song recital in Kimball hall Wednesday evening. She will be assisted by Leonard Sorkin, violinist of the Chicago Symphony orchestra. Jacob Hanneman will be the accompanist. Miss Files has been heard with various orchestras at the Grant park summer concerts and has studied with Leon Rothier, Mary Garden, and Dino Bigalli. Recently she sang at the annual frolic of the Cordon club.

Ada Belle Files.

Harry Hamilton and his partner Kathleen Addison will give a program of entirely new dance compositions in the Studebaker theater today. The recital is a benefit for the Park Ridge School for Girls. Mr. Hamilton's study includes work with Andreas Pavley and Serge Oukrainsky, Harold Kreutzberg, and Mary Wigman. The accompanist is Hadassah McGiffin.

For her Kimball hall recital Tuesday evening Esther Goodwin, Chicago contralto, promises a remarkably intelligent program, including songs and arias by Purcell, Giordano, Tschaikowsky, Wolk, Ravel, Crist, and others. Miss Goodwin made her Chicago debut in 1931 and has appeared with the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

Spring Revues Come to Bloom in Night Clubs

The Continental Room of the Stevens hotel opened a new program of floor entertainment last Tuesday night, under the direction of Sterling Young. Among the performers are Maxine Marfield, acrobatic and tap dancer, who has toured professionally in this country and South America; Consolo and Melba, ballroom dancers who have appeared with the dance bands of Ted Fio-Rito, Tommy Dorsey, Lou Breese, Herbie Kay, and Xavier Cugat, and Dale Rhodes, singer, dancer, and master of ceremonies.

● Griff Williams' orchestra continues in the Marine dining room of the Edgewater Beach hotel. The floor show contains the Six Queens of Hearts, Viennese singers; Tony Moreno, singer; Monte Kelly, tenor, and the Gilhooley Five. Songs by members of fraternities at the University of Chicago were a special feature last Friday night.

● The Royale Frolics put a new floor show, called "Easter Revels," into performance last Friday night. Sid Tomack and the Reiss brothers, long-run comedians, and Dolly Kay, stanadard "blues" singer, remain as co-stars, but the other principals are new, and replacements have been made in the ballet of 30 dancing girls, who have new costumes and numbers. The cast includes Maxine and Clayton, dancers; Dawn and Darrow, ballroom dancers; the De Long Sisters, acrobatic dancers; Emile and Evelyn, novelty dancers; Jackie Hilliard, tenor, and Mark Fisher, tenor. The latter also leads the dance band.

● Bob Crosby's dance band began an engagement in the Blackhawk restaurant last Wednesday. The floor entertainers are Ronald and Roberta, ballroom dancers, and Marion Mann, prima donna.

● Harry Richman's engagement at the Chez Paree will end next Sunday night. The Yacht Club Boys, singers and comedians, will be the stars of the new revue which will open on Friday night, April 15. The Three Trojans, acrobatic performers, will join the current bill next Friday. Other performers now on the bill are June Preisser, dancer; Judy Starr, singer; Jean Mona, dancer, and a ballet. Lou Breese's dance band has succeeded Henry Busse's. Richman will go to London for a spring engagement after he leaves Chicago. He will return to New York next October with the intention of producing and managing a new "Ziegfeld Follies" revue on Broadway.

● The Trianon ballroom has Ray Pearl's orchestra to supplement Ted Weems' on today's dancing sessions. Freddie Martin presides at the Aragon ballroom, with Emil Velazco as co-feature today.

● Hal Kemp's orchestra and troupe of entertainers began the last fortnight of its engagement in the Gold Coast Room of the Drake hotel last Friday. The floor show also contains the Crane Twins, dancers; Tung Pin Soo, sleight-of-hand performer, and Mirth and Mack, singers, dancers, and impersonators.

● Art Kassel's dance orchestra remains in the Walnut Room of the Bismarck hotel. Marion Holmes and Billy Leach are singers with the band. Manno and Stratford, ballroom dancers, and Gus Howard, dancing comedian, are also on the bill.

● Nils Thor Granlund has been reengaged for four weeks as impresario of the floor show in the Congress Casino. A spring edition of his revue will go into performance this week. Vera Fern, acrobatic tap dancer, and Nitzi von Janos, Hungarian beauty, are prominent on the bill.

● Adriana Caselotti, who is said to have spoken the dialogue for the heroine of the "Snow White" film, has been added to the program of cabaret entertainment at the College inn. Others on the bill are Joe Wallace, master of ceremonies; Carl Marx, clown; Myrus, mindreader; Stadler and Rose, dance team; the Novelle Brothers, violinists and comedians; Sally, dancer, with her trained dog Bobo; Lee Laetyn and Hal Berwyn, singers; Bob Bromley, puppeteer, and Lou Panico's orchestra.

● Maysy and Brach, unicycle performers, will end their association with the floor show in the Empire Room of the Palmer house next Wednesday night. Gwynn, magician, will replace them. Bernie Cummins' orchestra continues. Other performers are Maurice and Cordoba, ballroom dancers; Dorothy King, Russian dancer who appears with the Abbott ballet, and Stanley Hickman, tenor.

● The Club Alabam show includes Harriet Norris, singing mistress of ceremonies; Inez Gamble, dancer; Marrita Ryan, dancer; Effie Burton, prima donna; the singing Paramount Trio, and three dance bands.

● The Viking ballroom has installed an electric organ to supplement Augie Knapp's dance orchestra. Jimmy Coulas, manager, finds that this musical instrument has become popular among his patrons. . . . The trio of musicians called "Three Bits of Rhythm" has returned to Bartel's café, 6935 Sheridan road.

● The Yacht Club café opened a new show last Wednesday with June St. Clair, "parade dancer," and the three comedians, Lane, Tree, and Edwards, as featured performers. Mildred Fenton, singer, and the tango ballroom dancers, Ondrea and Michel, are held over. Teresa Rudolph, recently in the news as a dancer stranded in the Chinese war zone, is another addition to the bill. Maurie Stein and his new band play for dancing.

Lincoln Plays

Brock Pemberton plans to stage Paul Horgan's "Follow Me Ever," a play about Lincoln in the White House. He has been talking to Paul Muni and Walter Huston about impersonating the Emancipator. Thus there seems to be a Lincoln trend in drama, what with "Prologue to Glory," current on Broadway, and Robert E. Sherwood's "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" to come.

First Sunday of the months—it iss, and true to form we—reminisce:

... Good Morning!

"SNOW WHITE and the SEVEN DWARFS"—"Never did a production better fulfill eager anticipation. . . . So different! So amusing! So bewitching as to drawing, dialog, and music! . . . is the beloved old Grimm fairy tale Walt Disney-ized. . . . Certainly Walt Disney should go down in history as one of our country's greatest benefactors! For the laughter he gives us is healing laughter . . ."

"MAYERLING"—"Warm human drama with a persistent pulsation of suspense. . . . Charles Boyer tremendously appealing. . . . Danielle Darrieux lovely and believable . . . finely intelligent acting contributed by supporting players. . . . Direction, staging, and photography are superb. . . . 'Mayerling' is engrossing from start to finish. . . ."

"THE BARONESS and the BUTLER"—"Lightweight comedy of manners . . . sophisticated but not too sophisticated; funny, suspenseful, and tricky. . . . Annabella, the charming Parisienne, plays the baroness with humor and sincerity . . . never was William Powell in finer fettle . . . class to this cinema. . . ."

"YOU'RE ONLY YOUNG ONCE"—"One of the most entertaining 'all family' pictures I've run across in a long time . . . the second of a series of four dealing with the Hardy family . . . to be classed with such films as 'Ah, Wilderness,' 'Family Affair,' featuring Lionel Barrymore, Sping Byington, Cecelia Parker, and Mickey Rooney was the first chronicle. All of the acting is aces, but to Lewis Stone and Mickey Rooney go the honors. . . . Anybody who loves family and home will get a kick out of this movie."

"BIG BROADCAST of 1938"—"—Large, lavish, leisurely, often ludicrous, and quite lovely in spots . . . offers as pièce de résistance W. C. Fields. . . . Mr. Fields looks mighty fit and plays with true Fieldian zest. . . . Picture is well acted and dialoged and was directed by a man who knows his way around revues. . . ."

"ROMANCE IN THE DARK"—"If ever you've liked Gladys Swarthout, or the Johns, Boles and Barrymore, before you're bound to care for them in this new starring vehicle . . . gay comedy romance with music . . . fine setting and photography, smart dialog, and expert direction make 'Romance in the Dark' a picture of charm and appeal. . . ."

"A SLIGHT CASE OF MURDER" "This is fun! The silliest thing imaginable—but a circus! . . . Edward G. Robinson portrays a different sort of 'Little Cæsar' with gusto and humor. He has first and first rate aid from Allen Jenkins, Edward Brophy, Harold Huber, and young Bobby Jordan. . . . Ruth Donnelly gives a highly amusing performance. . . . Direction was clever. Situations have the tang of the unexpected . . ."

Our reminiscing now is o'er
Till May 1st—when we'll do some more.
See you tomorrow.

FLYING BLIND

By Alice Campbell

Questioning of Vera Coldbottom Leads to a Mad Chase Toward a Place on the Map Called Ledbrook

THE STORY TO DATE

● A shot fired through the window of their London home barely misses Rosemary Bellamy-Pryce and her aunt, affectionately called Boggie. A nephew of Tommy Rostetter, a journalist, persuades him to investigate. Calling to question Rosemary's aunt, they find her bound and unconscious from a blow. Revived, she says her assailant wore black gloves. Tommy suspects her of knowing more than she tells. Rosemary tells Tommy that her uncle, Gavin Bellamy-Pryce, always wears black gloves. Gavin would benefit by the death of Boggie, Rosemary, or Rosemary's vicar father. Gavin was a steerage passenger on the boat returning from India when his brother, who was Boggie's husband, died of heart failure. Rosemary's father comes to town and appears at a cocktail party at her hat shop. Gavin is with him. Next morning the cleaning woman is found dead, poisoned from strychnine in a cocktail left over from the party. It was Rosemary's glass, though Boggie insists it was hers. That night the vicar falls or is pushed from his hotel window. Gavin decides to lodge with Rosemary, Boggie, and Tommy at the vicarage for the funeral. After the funeral Gavin leaves unexpectedly. Rosemary is near collapse. Boggie suggests a motor tour in the car she has bought from Capt. Argus, who suddenly decides to return to Australia. Tommy returns to London.

"So she lost a nail file," said Inspector Headcorn indulgently.

INSTALMENT XIII.

(Copyright: 1938: By Alice Ormond Campbell.)

BOGGIE had taken off her hat and settled down to her driving with a gravity almost stern. Even more silent than yesterday, she not only failed to volunteer remarks but when addressed seemed scarcely to heed. She was looking for one of her houses, evidently, for there they turned back to try an alternative route. They were choosing byways now, through what was mostly barren downland, very desolate, the villages widely spaced. Once, topping a ridge, they sighted Stonehenge, looming lonely and unimpressive out of its vast plain, but, though it would have been natural to pay it a visit, Boggie merely frowned and reversed in a southerly direction.

At an almost isolated tavern they paused, and Boggie made a hearty meal of the villainous food. Against her will, Rosemary kept glancing at her.

It was perhaps perverse that she should suddenly think of her Uncle James. Had he, too, at times suffered a little from his wife's excess of buoyancy? Till now she had seen quite a different equation.

"While you're finishing," she said, "I'll get some cigarets."

Boggie gave a bare nod and helped herself to a second big wedge of Cheddar. Rosemary got up and walked toward the bar. As she reached the door she heard her aunt call to the landlord for the bill and while she waited for her change caught the two voices conferring over a direction. Vaguely she listened. Thus far she had not been able to discover just where they were heading. Boggie herself seemed undecided. Maybe this conversation would enlighten her.

"You did say Lembridge?" asked the landlord. "Well, now, you won't find that on no signpost, not till you're on top of it. Unless that map of yours is an extra-sized one . . ."

Through the open bar entrance, quite close, was a little all-in shop, with "Postoffice" on a sign jutting out. Rosemary went across to it, scribbled a telegram, and handed it in. Then, with some bottles of ginger beer under her arm, she returned to find Boggie making a rough toilet and looking well satisfied.

In the car again, they steered back into the unbroken country. Toward Lembridge? There was nothing to indicate where they were going, and Boggie's manner made it difficult to put any more questions. They had begun once again their rather aimless wandering, under a blinding hot sun, with a wind blowing furnace gusts, and, to add to the discomfort, a steady succession of army trucks, heavy gray affairs, churning up dust clouds which choked the lungs and hung low over miles of landscape.

To crown the unpleasantness, Boggie's hand was giving trouble. At their stop for tea Rosemary found it broken open and bleeding. From now on it was she who took the wheel, with a good will but diffidently, for her driving experience was small. They looked at one house, wholly unsuitable, and when they went on Rosemary, fully occupied, relinquished her last pretense of interest and simply did as she was bidden.

"WHAT the hell's going on here?" exclaimed Tommy, pausing in the door of Mrs. Bellamy-Pryce's bed room.

"Never mind me," returned the inspector, stripping off the loose cover of the sofa and prodding in the corners. "I got your message saying you were back and had more to tell me. What is it?"

Actively observant of the room's disorder, Tommy described what he had heard from Rosemary. Her uncle, just before his unceremonious departure, had tried to persuade her to go back to London—unable, naturally, to give any reason, and making a definitly poor show of it.

Headcorn, now busily hauling covers from the bed and exploring every inch of the plump mattress, grunted. "Go on. I'm listening. When will they be home?"

"Not before the 23d. I was going to say they've taken over Argus' car and are off on an unpublicized tour. Best possible notion, don't you think?"

"I see," the inspector said thoughtfully. "And whose notion was it?"

"My brother's, in general. He ordered the girl away. Her nerves are in pieces. Mrs. Bellamy-Pryce worked out the details. She and I talked it over last night, and as far as I know they made a start this afternoon. In a couple of hours I mean to ring up Salisbury, where they're stopping the night."

"O, so you know that much, do you?"

"I do, certainly, but no one else. If I go tomorrow they'll keep you posted day by day. With their whereabouts kept dark and Gavin under your eye——"

"Gavin!" Headcorn roused and returned to his task. "I should have told you at once. He's given us the slip."

"The devil he has! For God's sake, why didn't you say so?"

"There are three stations where he could have got out," explained Headcorn. "The last for Waterloo express trains is Wyebridge Junction, where the branch line to Newhaven cuts across."

Gavin on the loose—and the officer in charge of the case put in his time ransacking premises for God knows what!

"But, man, don't you see what this may mean? I've told you in my opinion Gavin has something very close to second sight. How do we know he hasn't got on to this motoring project? Mrs. Bellamy-Pryce and I were discussing it at dinner last night just about the time he sneaked off. He may have heard and planned accordingly."

"Could he have heard enough to be of any use?"

"We mentioned the Black Bull at Salisbury," said Tommy slowly. "And there may have been more. I can't say I paid very close attention, as the rest wasn't fixed."

"You don't think the Australian went with them?"

"No, he was catching the Southampton-Havre boat."

"I knew he'd given up his flat," remarked the inspector, running a frowning eye over the other furniture. "I'm calling there presently, if you'd care to come with me."

"Perhaps some time you'll tell me what it is you are hunting for," suggested Tommy, heavily sarcastic.

"That's easy. It's a paper."

"O! What paper?"

"Unanswerable till I've seen it. I imagined you agreed it was a paper the person who rummaged in the brief case expected to find."

Light was breaking.

"You believe Gavin was after some document his sister-in-law was or is holding? That in some way this may explain her refusal to identify him?"

• • •

THE new maid, without knocking, had come into the room.

"Can I help you, inspector?" she asked pleasantly.

The inspector, in a brown study, blinked and woke to the situation.

"My fault, Mr. Rostetter. This is Mrs. Gladys Potter, one of our employés for delicate jobs. Go ahead, Potter; you can repeat what you told me—Saturday morning, wasn't it?"

Mrs. Potter, having bowed, delivered a crisp statement. Tommy listened with increasing bewilderment.

"Not long after the two ladies had gone," said the Yard assistant, "Capt. Argus called in to say Mrs. Bellamy-Pryce had sent him back to fetch the pass book she had left behind and post it on to her. He had been advised where to look for it, so I gave him the run of the house while I, with his permission, went out on an errand. I came in at once, very quietly, slipped off my shoes, and hid in this room opposite —leaving the door ajar.

"He had come in here and closed the door. I heard him flinging things about and swearing hard. He took about twenty minutes over it, after which he had a go at the lower rooms. When I made my official return he was helping himself to whisky, with a very black expression. Finally he went out and banged the front door."

"And the pass book?" inquired Tommy.

"O, still in that pigeonhole," replied Mrs. Potter, pointing to the small writing desk. "Where it had been all along. If you're going out, inspector, I can do this room later on."

When she had withdrawn Tommy remarked somewhat coldly that Argus must have supposed his visit would be duly reported to Mrs. Bellamy-Pryce.

"O, I daresay," admitted the inspector absently. "Coming?" he asked, leading the way downstairs.

Tommy followed, and together they drove the short distance to Argus' abandoned residence. At the second door out of the mews they were met by a thin, shrewd-faced man with blackened nails and grease-streaked features. He conducted them up a flight of linoleum-covered stairs to a fair-sized living room into the center of which a heap of litter had been raked together.

"This is the lot, sir," declared the mechanic. "And I asked the wife about the thing you mentioned. She's seen nothing of the kind."

Moodily the inspector turned over the empty bottles, twisted tubes of shaving cream, and torn-up letters. Among the débris lay a dead orchid, a cracked mirror, and a grimy powder puff. After a cursory examination he stowed all the flotsam away in an attaché case and, having ordered the rooms to be left as they were, clumped down to the pavement.

"If you get on to Miss Bellamy-Pryce this evening," he said, "I should not say anything about her uncle's disappearance; merely try to secure some idea of where they mean to go next. If you want to get in touch with me, I shall be back at the house."

"See here, what makes you so certain this paper, if it exists, is hidden in the house?"

"Because it is not among Mrs. Bellamy-Pryce's stored belongings, which I've taken the liberty to search. And she had no private deposit box at her bank."

"Otherwise, I take it, you'd have searched that, too. But if you don't know what this document is, how can you swear you haven't come across it?"

"Possibly I have. However, I think not."

He turned on his heel and walked rapidly away.

Back in the bedroom, now tidily restored, Inspector Headcorn disposed of the meal his assistant had brought him and lit a thoughtful pipe. As he did so the downstairs bell rang, and a moment later Mrs. Potter came up to say that the young person he was expecting had arrived.

"Show her up," he instructed, and rose to receive the guest whose nervous giggle presently sounded on the stairs.

"Come in, Miss Coldbottom," said Headcorn kindly. "Sit down, won't you?"

Vera Coldbottom subsided awkwardly on the extreme edge of the Sheraton chair. She gulped twice and, meeting a friendly gaze, broke into a broad smile.

"That's right," said the inspector comfortably. "Now, then, Miss Coldbottom, just understand that all I want is a few straight answers. They won't affect you in any way, and, as I mentioned in my letter, I shall make it worth your while to be frank. First of all, do you recall the occasion some six or seven weeks back when a gentleman, Mrs. Bellamy-Pryce's brother-in-law, paid a call here?"

"O, yes, sir!"

"Did you notice anything in particular while he was paying his visit?"

"Well, sir . . ." The tone was doubtful. "I didn't see much of him. It was soon after lunch, and I brought up some hot coffee for him. I did notice the gentleman never drank his, for his cup was full up when I took it down. And I noticed most of the talk was between him and Miss Ro."

"Did the ladies show him over the house?"

"O, no, sir!" The question evidently surprised her. "At least, they couldn't have done without me hearing. He didn't stop long. He and the other gentleman that was here that day left at the same time. I saw them walking off together along the street."

"And this other visitor was——"

"Why, sir, Capt. Argus," said Vera Coldbottom simply, though with a trace of reserve.

"O, yes, Capt. Argus! He was a fairly regular caller, wasn't he?"

"I'd say the only regular one. No, I'm wrong. There was a nice young man—red hair he had. I can't just say his name, but he was sweet on Miss Ro. Madam had some lady visitors, people she'd known out east, I think; but not many. And Miss Ro saw most of her friends outside. They was both out a lot."

"Now, then," the inspector resumed, "after this one occasion did you ever see Mr. Bellamy-Pryce again?"

"O, no, sir! That was the only time."

"Good! In that case I'd like you to cast your mind back to the day Mrs. Bellamy-Pryce took possession of this house. You arrived just after she did, I heard. Did you help her unpack?"

At ease now, Vera launched on a rambling account of her first afternoon here. The captain had turned up, too, and he was sent around to Harrod's to fetch in some gin and what not for cocktails.

"Miss Coldbottom," said the inspector, stemming the flow, "on that first afternoon your mistress managed to mislay an important paper. She thinks she put it away so carefully that she forgot the hiding place. What I want to know is, did you see her with a paper of any sort—in or out of an envelope—in her hand?"

"A paper, sir? No, I can't say as I did. I was in here right along, but for the little time I had to run to get curry powder."

"It may have been then. Still, try to remember what she did during the time Capt. Argus was out. I say then," explained Headcorn, meeting her puzzled look, "because he knows nothing about it, and that's why, as they are both away, I've been called in to help. You are quite sure you didn't see anything being hidden?"

"No, sir. Nothing of that kind."

"And you didn't hear your mistress mention losing anything?"

"Not no paper, sir." Unexpectedly Vera giggled. "Now, if you'd 'a' said nail file, sir, I could 'a' told you how she come to lose that—and where it is now. But that's not a paper, is it, sir?"

"O, so she lost a nail file, did she?" asked Headcorn indulgently.

"Yes, sir, right down the crack." Vera's gloved finger indicated a section of wainscoting beneath the back window. "Let it slip out of her hand, she did, and it fell in there and slid right to the bottom. You can't see now, because we pressed it back, but that wood used to stick out a bit beyond the sill. It's like that in lots of these old houses."

"And the file's still there, is it?"

"Must be."

"Well, well, accidents will happen. It's too bad you don't know anything about the paper, but it can't be helped. Now one more question—a rather personal one, which I hope you won't mind." Headcorn's manner became even more tactful. "I hear you were dismissed without notice, but that you were given a reference. That's so, isn't it?"

"She couldn't refuse me a character," she muttered. "Not as things was, she couldn't. And so I told her, straight out."

"Suppose you tell me your side of it," encouraged the inspector.

Vera continued, gulping a little. "She knew and I knew me trying on that hat—it was going to be mine anyway when Miss Ro was done with it—hadn't nothing to do with sending me away. O, no, that wasn't the reason! Just so I shouldn't be here when Miss Ro come home from her work. I might 'a' said something. Not that I would, but she couldn't know that. So out I had to get. Wicked cruel it was!"

"And the real reason," said Headcorn, bending slightly nearer. "Can you tell me what it was?"

"What I'd seen," whispered Vera ashamedly. "I'd rather not say."

"I won't press you," said the inspector, and, seeing disappointment registered, changed it to: "That is, you needn't go into detail. Just give me an idea."

"It was my afternoon off," murmured Vera, not averse to yielding up her secret. "Only I had to mend my costume, so I was a bit late starting. Thinking madam had gone out, I had a fancy to see how Miss Ro's blue hat looked on when my hair was done proper—so in I popped. Then I couldn't seem to get a good light on it, that room being north. I opened this door, thinking I'd take a look in the big glass." She dropped her eyes, painfully self-conscious. "How was I to know who was in here?" she continued, barely audible. "Her and the captain. I hadn't heard a sound."

"Maybe you were mistaken," suggested the inspector gently.

"Me mistaken?" she flashed indignantly. "O, no, sir, not me! And besides, if I was, what made her fly at me with a string of names I wouldn't soil my lips by repeating? It was a bit of luck for her me having that hat on my head. She'd got her excuse; but she'd have found another, trust her for that!"

When Vera had gone Headcorn pushed aside the dressing table and pried at the loose-fitting panel. Next, with his ear close, he pressed the wood and listened. Something at the back faintly rattled. He rose, an excited gleam in his ordinarily dull eyes, and, going to the landing, thundered down:

"Potter! Fetch up a screwdriver or a chisel—anything of that sort. A carving knife will do, but be damned quick about it!"

"GOT what you wanted?" asked Mrs. Potter, fingering a rusted nail file.

The inspector did not answer. Squatting amidst dust and splinters, he was poring greedily over the stained sheet of foolscap which, twice folded, had been snugly posed against the inner boards. He read it through twice and examined the three signatures, appended to which was an official stamp.

As he reached the bottom stair the telephone rang. Fiercely he ordered Mrs. Potter to answer it, but when the receiver was handed him and he heard his journalist friend's voice he had his usual control.

"Good," he grunted. "I see"—and after a few terse questions hung up. He then rang the Yard, issued rapid commands, and with the document in his wallet quitted the house.

Subterranean blasphemy broke from his as he hurried by taxi to his office, and at one and the same time his thoughts raced in two separate channels. In the first he was saying that Gavin had got to be found immediately and asking himself how it was to be done. In the second he was envisaging his own endangered prestige.

Yet he had wasted not a moment, neglected no inquiry, however indirect, and if he had committed the fatal error of silence, it had been done with the best of reasons. From first to last he had been working in a thick fog, streamers of which still impeded close vision. Even now, with a crash close upon him—O, he saw that clearly enough!—he could not think how he could have acted to better advantage. Two persons it was his duty to safeguard were being hurried headlong and blindfolded to their doom, and at this late date only miraculous intervention could pull them back.

"The girl, of course, may manage to send that wire."

But could she? Before opportunity came she might be dead. Broadcasting in this case would be worse than useless. One fact only held out a dim hope. What was planned would not take place tonight in the populous city of Salisbury, nor yet—one would imagine—during daylight tomorrow. If, as he believed, darkness was chosen, it promised a brief respite.

The hope, however, was nearly extinguished when by the late afternoon of Tuesday no information concerning Gavin Bellamy-Pryce had come in. It seemed impossible that the archæologist could so genuinly disappear, but there it was; he had contrived it. Rostetter, as it happened, was still in town. The inspector rang up the Albany flat, and, finding the journalist waiting in on the chance of a message, went around to see him.

Tommy was acutely uneasy. That was why he had risked losing his assignment by loitering in London.

"Job or no job," he said shortly, "I can't leave while this scoundrel's on the loose. How far is Wyebridge Junction from Broughton-Elmtrees?"

"By road, twenty-four miles."

"Hum . . . Well, he didn't get back there before they left, whatever he meant to do."

"We don't know if he did mean to get back. See here, is there nothing that happened over the week-end that could give us a lead? I know he called at his father's place on Saturday afternoon, but he saw only the maid and spoke to no one during his walk. Did he receive any messages—wires or letters?"

"One letter, I think," said Tommy, suddenly recalling. "I saw it by the bed; but only the envelope. The inclosure had been burned. O, I looked at the ashes in the grate. They were knocked to a powder."

"But the envelope. What was it like?"

"Good class, typed address, sealed with some cipher or crest. The place name on the postmark was blurred, but it began with 'Le,' and the county ended with—holy snakes!" Tommy leaped up as though a red-hot needle had been jabbed into him. "Wiltshire! Of course it was. What other county abbreviation ends in 'lts'? They're there. He may be, too. Not that it makes sense . . ."

The inspector also had sprung up.

TOMMY had reached the timetable and was already ripping through its pages. He slung the book away in disgust.

"Not in it," he muttered. "We'll have to look on a large map; but is it conceivable he can have followed them on such a remote chance? Getting a letter from Wiltshire doesn't connect up with going there for this purpose. Wait . . . I think I can guess whom the letter was from. I may be all out, but it's one thing I can settle."

He had his hand on the telephone when Headcorn checked him.

"One minute. You mentioned a conversation between Mrs. Bellamy-Pryce and yourself during dinner Sunday evening. What precisely did she say about this tour?"

"She may have dropped the name of some village in connection with one of her addresses. We were both so damned sure that blackguard was asleep——"

"Look at this," Headcorn said. "I found it in Gavin's room."

The typed communication, dated April 3, contained these lines:

> Dear Bellamy-Pryce: In June, weather permitting, we propose opening up the last of our barrows. As I should much value your presense, I take the risk of renewing my invitation. Let me know if you will come, for my place will be let and the accommodation I have arranged is strictly limited. Yours sincerely,
> DOWNSIDE.

It was at the engraved address that Tommy was staring hardest: "Moorland, Ledbrook, Wilts."

"Exactly," muttered Headcorn. "Now make your call."

A brief talk with Lord Downside's secretary elicited the fact that Lord Downside himself was in Aix, but that before leaving he had given the speaker a letter to address and post to Mr. Bellamy-Pryce in Sussex. As no reply had come, there was no way of knowing if Mr. Bellamy-Pryce was accepting an invitation already twice declined.

"But the excavation is going forward, is it?"

"I imagine they'll start work this week, though I can't tell you which day. I only know that arrangements were being made when I was there with Lord Downside last Friday. It was then I posted the letter. What inns are there? O, only the Downside Arms, in the village, which is a mere handful of cottages."

"Would Mr. Bellamy-Pryce be stopping at the inn?"

"Either there or at a temporary hut Lord Downside has had run up near the barrow."

Headcorn had heard every word. Instantly Tommy hung up, he dialed the Yard number and at the answer to his first question stiffened to attention.

"Hold on," he barked. "Let's get those details clear. You say Gavin Bellamy-Pryce hired a car at Wyebridge, and the chauffeur, just returned, says he drove him to a small place in the Wiltshire downs called —what's that?—Lebrook! Yes, I've got it. Left him at a sort of army hut, out of the way, but surrounded by barbed wire entanglements. I know, maneuver stuff."

Tommy by now was clattering down to the court where his two-seater stood. In another moment he was back with his section map, and the two heads bent over the county of Wiltshire. Here it was—Ledbrook—a tiny, dim dot in a lonely waste of downland, remote from anything important. The journalist's face slightly cleared. With an entire district to choose from, was it likely two wanderers would seek out this insignificant village? Not unless there was previous reason —which, of course, one could not know.

"I'm going," Tommy announced. "If they're not there, well, I shall stick close to Gavin—if he hasn't skinned out when I get to this village. God, if I'd had the wit to listen as he must have done! And yet"—he paused midway the room—"I'm still utterly mixed over the workings of this! Surely it's an extraordinary bit of luck for Gavin to have this legitimate reason for getting into the same region? Relatively the same, that is. Wiltshire's a large area."

"Luck!" grunted Headcorn.

Tommy attacked him roundly.

"Inspector, in God's name what have you get up your sleeve? Don't tell me Gavin's a hypnotist, able to put notions into people's heads and steer them where he wants them to go. I'll believe a lot, but not that. What's the answer?"

At this very moment the telephone gave a prolonged peal and the despaired-of message came over the wire. As the operator repeated it the blood in Tommy's veins turned to ice, then to galvanic energy.

"They are in Ledbrook—or will be this evening. Can I make it before they do?"

Hardly a chance, even with a powerful car, the securing of which would lose vital minutes.

"We'll wire back and warn them," he was saying, when a hand like a ton weight clamped down on his shoulder.

"No!" commanded the inspector, suddenly turned into a battering ram. "You can come if you like, but you'll go in my company and do as I say. This is the Yard's affair."

Finds Pasadena Lives Indoors Behind Blinds

By Cousin Eve.

Much water ran under the bridge in Pasadena, but nevertheless one was well amused. For dazzling sunshine also had its days.

But as a matter of record the Frederic Woodwards of the University of Chicago had sloshing rain thirty days out of thirty-five in California, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Meeker found Santa Barbara unusually damp, returning earlier than usual from "Constantia," their greatly admired South African Dutch house.

Pasadena is a handsome town, well architected into splendid houses, set in tropical gardens on smooth, well cared for streets. Beautifully lighted at night one can easily call it a model town, the Newport of the Pacific coast, even if inland. But one never sees humans walking in these streets, nor cats or dogs for that matter. And only occasionally a noble limousine with elderly millionaires passing along. People who go to Pasadena, think they are through with life but they aren't.

Pasadenans have pergolas and marvellous flower gardens, but they sit indoors and draw the Venetian blinds.

In the enchanting suburbs San Rafael, San Marino, Linda Vista, Altadena, and on a high shoulder of the mountain newly built Alta Vista, there is the same indoor life. Driving to a dinner in Alta Vista, there lay all of Los Angeles, Hollywood and Pasadena etched in sparkling diamonds, rubies, and emeralds, but we sat inside by faint candle light with hangings closely drawn.

The extraordinary thing about these beautiful suburbs is that every other house has a "for sale" sign on it. This is true of Beverly Hills and Bel Air, outside of Los Angeles, where the banks are in the real estate business.

Crowning a gorgeous mountain top in this locale is an enormous house built by an adoring husband to surprise his wife who was in Europe. He bought the estate, built the house, and furnished it, then conducted his wife to the new home. This lady was so terrifically enraged at her husband's masterpiece that she left California and has not been back. The house, which looks in the distance like a hotel, is shown as a warning to husbands. It, too, is empty.

One lunches here and there in agreeable places while barging about these hills. I liked enormously Victor Hugo, an Italian place oddly enough, with a very French name. Pink and yellow as to decor, with yellow lether settees, lots of space, and walls frescoed with ilexes of Italy. Waiters with toothy smiles and plenty of guile made one long for bella Napoli.

The Brown Derby also is amusing, opposite the Ambassador in Los Angeles. One eats Mexican dishes out in the open, which reminds me of carissima Marion Claire, our lovely Chicago diva of grand opera. We had a rendezvous for Hollywood in March which failed to click. She had taken a motor tour in Mexico with her husband which landed her, alas, incommunicada in a Hollywood hospital. She had eaten things, poor lamb!

I really was disappointed about not seeing Marion Claire and meeting up with Snow White did not make up for it. This odd little Snow White personality is the rage of the hour on the west coast. The heroine of Walt Disney's "Snow White and the Seven Little Bores," as they call it here, has an incredibly high and pure childlike coloratura.

Whenever one has a spare moment in Pasadena there is always the Huntington, where is a constant round of pleasure, in a society of retired millionaires and Chicago's wealthiest widows. Other sources of supply are Detroit, Louisville, and Minneapolis.

As I came away, the Huntington had a huge dinner-dance, floor show and fashion show, patronized heavily by Pasadena society. It was a very well done party, tables loaded with sweet peas from the gardens, wonderful music, and Hollywood's most ultra fashions paraded by beauties with wonderful figures and smiles. All very stimulating. Near my table in the dusky light, Chicago faces grew. I saw that evening Mrs. Homer Stillwell, Mrs. Edmund G. Hulbert, Mrs. Robert Montgomery, Mrs. Bernard Eckhart, Mrs. Charles Spalding, Mrs. Frank Barbour, Mrs. James Harvey, Mr. and Mrs. George Gaylord and a dozen others.

The floor show was of ballroom dancing and legerdemain, all of which I saw again at the alluring Rendez-Vous at the Biltmore in Los Angeles, and liked again.

Another enormous party at the Huntington which concerned Chicago was Conrad Poppenhusen's Sunday afternoon cocktail-tea in the ballroom, which prefaced his departure for home. In the absence of his wife, the host's venerable, charming mother, Mme. Poppenhusen was doing the honors among the 200 guests. There was an orchestra at this party, tables where guests sat at ease, and many distinguished Evanstonians.

Amelie came to see me off on the train, with an intriguing goodbye gift on the seat of the car beside her. It looked like a huge gold hat box and was tied with brown and beige ribbons.

Amelie said she hadn't brought me a hat, but luscious dates, because, owing to the washed out roads, I hadn't been able to motor up to Palm Springs where the dates grow. Never had I seen so many golden dates before! Pretty soon, when the shining steel train passed out of the wrecked country where Papa Cosmos had gone on one of the worst rampages ever, and orange orchards were blasted, houses smashed and the whole face of the land changed, we glided onto the desert. And then, Arab-like, one ate dates and feasted one's eyes upon the violet and brown of desert sands.

Like the British, I am greatly addicted to the long view, and here were far away cobalt mountains roofed with snow, red earth, purple, beige, and silver in supreme panoply with a foreground of rolling plain. My book, too, was pure enchantment: "Out of Africa" by Baroness Blixen, a latter day Olive Schreiner, who writes with a limpid directness that dazzles and charms. So between Africa and Arizona the hours vanished.

Chicago was radiant with sunshine and spring. One did the kotow as always to the great old town, which, with all its faults, one cherishes. Before the traveling beret was off the phone had rung twice and the chase was on.

Dr. Glenn Frank, it seems, has consented to address an invited gathering on the evening of April 26 at Thorne hall. He is a brilliant and entertaining man, and his subject will be "Political Trends of the Day." The object of this lecture is to raise $1,800 for Passavant hospital, which now that its debts have been happily liquidated is going to have a library. Mrs. Robert Dunham had a small tea Thursday afternoon for the ladies of the committee.

Dr. Glenn Frank moved into an important place in the Republican ranks in January when he took over the duty of formulating the party aims of the future. Mrs. Jacob Baur, Illinois member of the Republican national committee, went up to Madison for the last week-end with Dr. and Mrs. Frank, who have settled in a delightful new house. Of white stone, in a garden of eight acres, it is modern and has a lot of charm. Mrs. Frank is a radiant hostess, and Saturday evening eighteen guests dined in honor of Mrs. Baur.

On Sunday there was a big luncheon for the literary set of Madison and another large dinner Sunday night.

Luncheons and more luncheons. Robert Hall McCormick had a large party last Sunday at the Saddle and Cycle club for Sir George Lenthal and Lady Cheatle of London, who are sojourners among us. Also from London is Lady Muriel Fitzgerald, daughter of the earl of Dunmore, Countess Cardelli's guest. Lady Muriel was one of Mrs. Ralph James' party for tea at the fashion show in the Wedgwood room. A slight, dark woman, she is decidedly intellectual, but with a truly feminine reaction to pretty clothes.

At a luncheon meeting on Friday M. Andre Philip addressed the Council on Foreign Relations on the French new deal. But the speaker said they really hadn't one, for which he thanked heaven. The luncheon meeting was small, owing probably to members having enough new deal at home and not wishing to hear of others. But the great excitement of the day was M. Philip's resemblance to Hitler, which was remarkable, mustache and all. Particularly as the French deputy and eminent professor of finance at Lyon seemed to dislike Herr Hitler and to be extremely bitter about England. England, said he, could never make up her mind. And there was a European saying that England always "lost every battle but the last." How these European allies love one another!

On Monday at luncheon time the Arts club was fairly seething with "Friends of China." Dr. P. C. Chang was to speak. I remembered him from the days of Mei Lan-fang, the actor, when he brought that gifted person out of China. Sitting at the speaker's table with Dr. Chang were Mrs. Harley MacNair and her guest, Baron von Heine Geldern, professor of anthropology at Vienna university, the new Chinese consul general, Mrs. Silas Strawn, and Col. George Langhorne.

Eunice Hale presided so well and looked so young! Who would imagine she is bringing out a daughter in the fall, a rarely beautiful daughter, too; a flowerlike offshoot of the handsome Follansbees and Hales. Dr. Chang, to make a long story short, saw the dove of peace on every horizon.

In the audience were Mr. and Mrs. William Parsons, Dr. and Mrs. Frederic Woodward, Mrs. Albert Hopkins, Mrs. Barrett Wendell, Miss Harriet Stuart, Mrs. Arthur Bissell, Mrs. Mitchell Follansbee, Mrs. William Bush, Miss Carol Bush, Mrs. William S. Monroe, Mrs. Sewell Avery, Mrs. Donald de Golyer.

Mr. and Mrs. Harley MacNair's party Tuesday night in Woodlawn avenue was an exciting one, an opening of a new room. A former coal cellar was presented to the world as a lecture room, richly hung with Chinese brocades and set out with carvings and rare scrolls and paintings. In a corner stood a bright little screen ready for Baron von Heine Geldern's pictures illustrating his talk on Cambodia, Siam, Bali, and Java. In these he showed the fanciful and extraordinary architecture of the far east and its relation to the universe in which we have our being.

The baron is an extremely dark gentleman, very erudite. Nearly every one in the audience had been in the east. The Frederic Woodwards, Dr. and Mrs. William Montgomery McGovern, Mr. and Mrs. F. Cooper Cole, some missionaries from Tibet, Mr. and Mrs. William S. Monroe, Mrs. Dagney Carter, who writes books on China, and Dr. Samuel Harper were among the sixty guests.

Mrs. MacNair, as every one knows, was before her marriage a Wheelock of Boston, and then a charming widow, the widely known Chinese poetess, Florence Ayscough. Born in China and a resident for many years of Shanghai, she has settled in the University of Chicago sector with all of her beautiful collections of Chinese art. Her living room with dark blue enameled ceiling is, I think, one of the most artistic in Chicago. The hostess wore a vivid gown at the party. Of long purple fringes it combined with draperies of Chinese red crêpe and was chic.

Dr. Stevenson Shelter Plans Choral Event

The Sarah Hackett Stevenson memorial will celebrate its forty-fifth anniversary by sponsoring a concert of the Mendelssohn chorus at 3:30 o'clock next Sunday afternoon at the Chicago Woman's club theater, 72 East 11th street. This chorus of sixty voices was organized just one year after Dr. Sarah Hackett Stevenson founded the shelter for homeless women and children at 2412 Prairie avenue.

The public will be given an opportunity to see what the home is accomplishing during Youth week, April 18 to 25, when officers will escort visitors through the building every day between 10 and 4:30 o'clock.

It was in the winter of panic following the World's Fair of 1893 that Dr. Stevenson, first woman admitted to the American Medical association, opened a "women's model lodging house." The Chicago Woman's club and other groups lent support to the institution. Mrs. Potter Palmer subscribed the first $1,000, and Jane Addams was placed in charge.

Some forty clubs now contribute to the shelter, which has "help first—investigate afterward" as its motto. Mrs. Henry A. Allen is president and Mrs. E. J. Brasseur, Miss Mary H. Burris, Col. William Edens, Erwin Seago, and William R. Uhlemann also are officers.

The April meeting of the advisory board of the memorial will be held at 10:30 o'clock Thursday at the home.

Two other attractive forthcoming musical events are the annual spring party of the Chicago Woman's Aid on Tuesday afternoon and the spring musical of the Chicago Woman's club on Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Robert M. Schiller, chairman of the program committee for the former organization, will present Beverley Lane, 19 year old coloratura soprano who made her debut with the Chicago City Opera company in "Rigoletto," with Lawrence Tibbett last season. Reinhardt Elster, harpist, also will appear on this program, and Alexander Aster, pianist, will accompany Miss Lane. Tea will follow the concert.

Still another musical and tea will be arranged at a meeting of the woman's board of the Salvation Army at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning at the Opportunity shop run by the board at 1240 North Clark street. The event will take place Thursday, April 14, at the L. L. Valentine home, 1448 Lake Shore drive. Mrs. William S. Monroe is president of the board.

Another type of benefit, a card party, will be planned at a meeting of trustees of La Rabida Jackson Park sanitarium tomorrow at the home of Mrs. Harry Culver, 4950 Chicago Beach drive. This party, an annual event, will be held May 3 at the Palmer house.

The auxiliary of the De Paul Settlement and Day Nursery will hold a rummage sale all day Saturday adjacent to the nursery at 2155 North Halsted street. Proceeds will be used to help the sisters care for more than 100 children who are left in their charge by employed mothers every day.

Mrs. John A. Donahue, president of the auxiliary, is being assisted with arrangements by Mrs. Edward R. Diederich, Mrs. Fred McGuire, and several other members, who will be on duty from 8:30 to 6:30 o'clock the day of the sale.

The annual rummage sale of Kappa Zeta Phi sorority will be held Saturday, beginning at 7 o'clock in the morning, at 2521 West Lake street. New members will be initiated at a bridge party and tea at 2 o'clock today at the Drake hotel. Miss Violet Curto is grand president.

Novel Miniatures Bringing Artist Royal Commissions

An unknown English artist is piling up royal commissions with less fuss than most members of the Royal academy.

LONDON

He is Charles R. Gunner of Egham, Surrey, and his specialty is miniatures, not miniatures such as one naturally thinks of, but those which are only three-sixteenths of an inch square.

He has done one of Princess Elizabeth, which is being set in a ring for the queen, and recently he received a royal commission to paint a miniature of all three of the Belgian royal children to be set in a ring for King Leopold.

For the last three months Mr. Gunner has been working on a book, three-sixteenths of an inch square, dealing with the history of the coronation. There are 100 pages of writing with 500 words to the page, and the book includes twenty portraits of the royal family. It is finished in red morocco and has been sold to Frank Salisbury, painter of historical pictures.

Society Aiding School Pupils to End Season

By Betty Browning.

Thirty thousand children have been kept in school by the School Children's Aid society during the year that will close formally Saturday with the organization's fifty-first annual meeting and breakfast at the Chicago Woman's club, 72 East 11th street.

William H. Johnson, superintendent of schools, with whom the society coöperates, will be the principal speaker at the breakfast. Two high school boy and girl singers also will appear on the program.

Since Mrs. Murray F. Tuley and several other women first took steps in 1887 to provide clothing for pupils who otherwise could not remain in school, the organization's work has expanded year by year with the growth of the city.

At first discarded clothing was collected, mended, and redistributed, but now only new clothing is provided as being better economy in the long run. The annual Thanksgiving offering of the public school children, which totaled $90,237 last year, is turned over to the society. The Chicago Woman's club, which has contributed to the work from the start, recently gave $150 from the Ella Flagg Young fund for the purchase of shoes, and there is a number of other coöperating clubs. The Association of Commerce subscriptions investigating committee endorses the society.

Each request filled by the organization comes from a school principal. Duplication is avoided by consultation with other agencies through the Social Service exchange. Members working as volunteers purchase materials and shoes, cut and assemble dresses to be completed by more than 200 sewing groups, and aid in distributing the garments. Mrs. George A. McCorkle, who has headed the school children's aid committee of the Chicago Woman's club for fifteen years, is president of the society.

The first district of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs will hold its annual meeting and luncheon tomorrow in the Louis XVI. room of the Hotel Sherman. Officers will be nominated and elected at a morning session beginning at 10 o'clock. Following luncheon there will be an address and a musical program by Mrs. Elsie Soderstram-Kensting, operatic contralto, and the Braille orchestra.

Mrs. Marion H. Biel, president, will conduct the meeting. Mrs. George W. Plummer and Mrs. Adolph G. Hoffman, respectively parliamentarian and music chairman of the Illinois federation, will be special guests. The Chicago Federation of Women High School Teachers, the Illinois Colony club, the Independent German-American Woman's club, the Nelly Kinzie Woman's club, and the Southern Wcman's Club of Chicago will be hostesses.

Another interesting luncheon of the week will be that of the Woman's auxiliary to the Chicago Medical society, at 12:30 o'clock Wednesday at the Chicago Woman's club. Dr. Robert Hays, president elect of the Chicago Medical society, will speak briefly on "Recent Trends in Medicine," and Rabbi Joshua L. Liebman of K. A. M. temple will discuss "The Citadel" and "Madame Curie." New officers will be elected. Mrs. Charles Segal, president elect, is in charge of the program.

In recognition of her service to the club as president and for several previous years, the Andoka Philanthropic club will give a luncheon and card party for Mrs. Frank L. Beadell Friday at the Chicagoan hotel. A reception at noon will precede the luncheon. Mrs. Joe C. Fuller, first vice president, is in charge.

"Where Is the New Plan Now?" will be the topic of Mortimer J. Adler, associate professor of the philosophy of law at the University of Chicago, at the annual luncheon meeting of the Chicago Alumnæ club Saturday at the Chicago College club, 196 East Delaware place. Prof. Adler has been associated with President Hutchins since soon after the latter came to the university in 1928. Mrs. George N. Simpson heads the club.

The Woman's Progressive Club of Chicago will have Dr. George L. Scherger, pastor of St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church, as principal speaker at a combined spring luncheon, birthday party, and card party at 12:30 o'clock Tuesday at the Medinah club. There will be door and table prizes. Mrs. Biel and Dr. Kathryn Swartz, former president of the club, will be guests. Mrs. Gustav A. J. Meyer is retiring president.

The De Paul Academy Mothers' club will give a luncheon and card party Thursday noon at the Milk foundation, 75 East Wacker drive. That evening the organization will nominate officers at a business meeting at 2235 North Sheffield avenue.

The Protestant Women's Service club will hear a talk on "Life's Symbols: Whipped Cream and Realities," by Frieda Peyche, following luncheon at 12:30 o'clock Wednesday in the Wedgewood room of Marshall Field & Co.

Mrs. Kathryn S. Lewis will speak on "Travels About the Continent and the Mediterranean" at a luncheon of the Pilgrim colony, National Society of New England Women, at 12:30 o'clock Thursday at the Blackstone hotel. The Sylvan trio will give a musical program.

A number of club leaders will be guests at the 15th annual spring luncheon of the Chicago Woman's Ideal club at 12:30 o'clock Thursday in the Crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel. William Saltiel, lecturer and traveler, and Louisa Hoe, soprano winner of THE TRIBUNE's 1937 Chicagoland Music Festival, will give a program.

Special guests will be Mrs. John Van Wakeman, president of the Cook County Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Walter H. Hermsdorf, president of the Chicago and Cook County Federation of Woman's Organizations; Mrs. Biel; Mrs. George Watson, president of the Outdoor Art league, and Mrs. Frank M. Pan-American League Hears Mrs. J. D. Young

By Clarissa Greene.

MIAMI, FLA. A generous sprinkling of names of socially prominent women from the Chicago area are included in the long list of those who find time for serious interest in building a lasting friendship between countries of the western hemisphere.

Mrs. J. D. Young of Chicago's Windemere hotel was enthusiastically applauded last Tuesday when she was introduced at a Pan-American league luncheon at the International airport here and gave a report of her stewardship as director of the central western area, where branch leagues have been established at Chicago, in Wisconsin, and Iowa.

Mrs. Young had the pleasure of seeing the national charter presented here to the Chicago branch, with Mrs. William Culbertson, president, accepting it from the International president, Mrs. Clark D. Stearns of Miami. Mrs. Hazel Manville of the Evanston hotel is vice president.

Many Chicagoans will remain in Miami for the annual Pan-American week celebration beginning Thursday when pomp, pageantry, parades, and banquets attended by Latin American diplomats, join visitors and compatriots in Miami to witness the colorful and authentically costumed groups which make up the parades.

Dr. Mary Gladys Ogilvie of Chicago, New York, and Paris was among several from the Chicago territory who returned this week from a cruise to the West Indies when Miami's Home Makers club took an art exhibit to Port Au Prince, Haiti, Kingston, Jamaica, and Havana. The art exhibit was viewed in each port by officials and their wives and club members from leading organizations.

Hundreds from Chicago who have spent the winter season in Miami have visited nearby foreign ports. Mrs. C. R. Dodge of Chicago who went to Jamaica for a short stay, sent back to Miami for her golf clubs and is prolonging her visit.

Mrs. Eugene F. McDonald and small daughter are enjoying a quiet sojourn on the Mizpah anchored at the Causeway dock in Biscayne bay after a cruise of more than 4,500 miles. Commander McDonald is now in New York. Dr. and Mrs. Keeler, guests on the cruise, returned to Chicago soon after the yacht dropped anchor in the harbor here. Mrs. McDonald was among twenty guests entertained at luncheon at the Bath club Wednesday when Mrs. Fred Zimmerman was hostess. Other guests from the Chicago area included Mrs. Charles McCulloch of Chicago and Mrs. Harold Clark of Highwood.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Grady of Decatur entertained in the Mediterranean room of the Pancoast hotel with a dinner party honoring F. Morris Sayre, Montclair, and Linus C. Coggan of Englewood, N. J., both of whom are on a flight to Santo Domingo. They will return Tuesday when Mrs. Sayre, motoring from Montclair, will join Mr. Sayre for an extended stay at the ocean front Pancoast. The Sayers, formerly of La Grange, are well known in Chicago. Mrs. Grady declares herself house minded, which announcement pleases a wide circle of friends among residents and visitors.

The tropically designed and richly appointed two story house recently built for Benjamin T. Olsen Jr. of Chicago is on Alton road at 51st street. A marble floor in the living room, terrazo floor in dining room and hall, with a tile floor for the dining porch and parquet floors in bedrooms are among interesting features.

Mrs. Harold J. McKee of Chicago left Tuesday after a few days at the Miami Beach house of the Benjamin T. Gales. Mrs. McKee will return to Chicago after a short visit at Gaymont, the country home of Mrs. Ewell Gay, near Atlanta.

English Cricket Club Has Longest Candidate List

LONDON The Middlesex Cricket club, popularly known as the M. C. C., can claim to have the longest waiting list of any club in the world. Today it stands at about 10,000. Men whose names were put up as candidates in 1911 now are being voted on for membership. The normal waiting time is 30 to 40 years.

A good cricketer can, however, become a playing member in a shorter time. Even then he sometimes has to wait so long that his cricket has gone downhill.

Letters Lead Art Critic to Put Up Bars

By Eleanor Jewett.

I am becoming extremely suspicious of letters. Last year a certain Adrian Troy acquired a little publicity with a letter plus a picture that should, on its merits, have had none. This year a painter complained by letter that his marine was hung upside down in the no jury show and he seemed so vastly disturbed that to comfort him we printed his lament. In answer comes an extremely nice note from Julia Thecla.

"The officers of the no jury had no complaint from the artist of 'Rolling Wave' and it was news to use when we read your column Sunday. Today we reversed the picture and noticed that there was no signature, and the name, etc., on the back letter one-half inch high indicated that the way we hung it was correct. However, we telephoned Mr. Nichols, who was in charge of the gallery, and he says Mr. Kramer [the artist] did come in on the opening day and they took the picture down, but both he and Mr. Kramer decided it looked better that way and it was rehung upside down. Mr. Kramer went away laughing.

"We think that for such obvious adolescent tricks the artist should be turned upside down!"

I agree with Miss Thecla.

From Mr. Nichols came another letter, far different in kind than that of Miss Thecla. He thunders at the feeble criticism we leveled at the show, and concludes, after denying Mr. Kramer's charges, with the understatement: "Believe me, your art page annoys me greatly!" We would say from his letter that it did more than annoy; that it infuriated.

So being warned by these two experiences, we serve warning that few or no letters, especially those casting aspersions or throwing ridicule, will be permitted entrance in this column from now on.

However, letters relative to actual experiences of the writer will not be thrown aside carelessly, and of this type is the note recently received from Carl Hoerman, one of our outstanding painters of landscape. Mr. and Mrs. Hoerman have been on a sketching trip and seem to have been through fire, flood and famine.

"I guess it all started because we began with Death Valley. My car was up for greasing and some one accidentally discovered two bad breaks in two tires, ready to blow. We had explored with them the north end of the valley over sharp rock and lava and had driven since over the precipitous roads out of the valley by way of glorious Augerberry Point. Missed, perhaps, a glorious funeral!

"Deserts, then the orange belt of California. Proverbially unusual, California, we decided, was a bit too damp. So we left our camp. A few hours later the Santa Ana river submerged that place in the middle of the night. We have heard since that most of the seventeen dead in that community were motorists trying to escape with their cars instead of climbing trees. We found, and took, the only exit eastward. All we saw were the muddy torrents in the desert at Palm Springs, cars turning over and sinking, and a bloody corpse on the road, as a result of 'damp' pavement.

"Westward, on the Orizaba road, we drove toward Mexico City. Here Neptune could not catch us, but ahead it looked like Prometheus holding a torch. The pine forest, 10,000 feet high, on the shoulder of snow-capped Iztaccihuatl, looming magnificently above, was on fire. Whipped by a wind, the flames roared toward our road. Century old pines flared like matches and were no more. A rattle like that of machine guns filled the air. Had I worked, sketching, half an hour longer I doubt if we could have escaped. The fire front was a mile or more wide and was racing toward our only road. . . ."

With this thrilling winter safely behind them, Mr. and Mrs. Hoerman are returning to Saugatuck, where they now live. Mr. Hoerman is a member of the Chicago Galleries association and his one man show was one of the brilliant early events last fall.

The third annual spring art exhibit sponsored by the Northwest Art league opens today with a formal reception this afternoon at the Edgewater Beach hotel. Mrs. Robert Kilbert is director of exhibits.

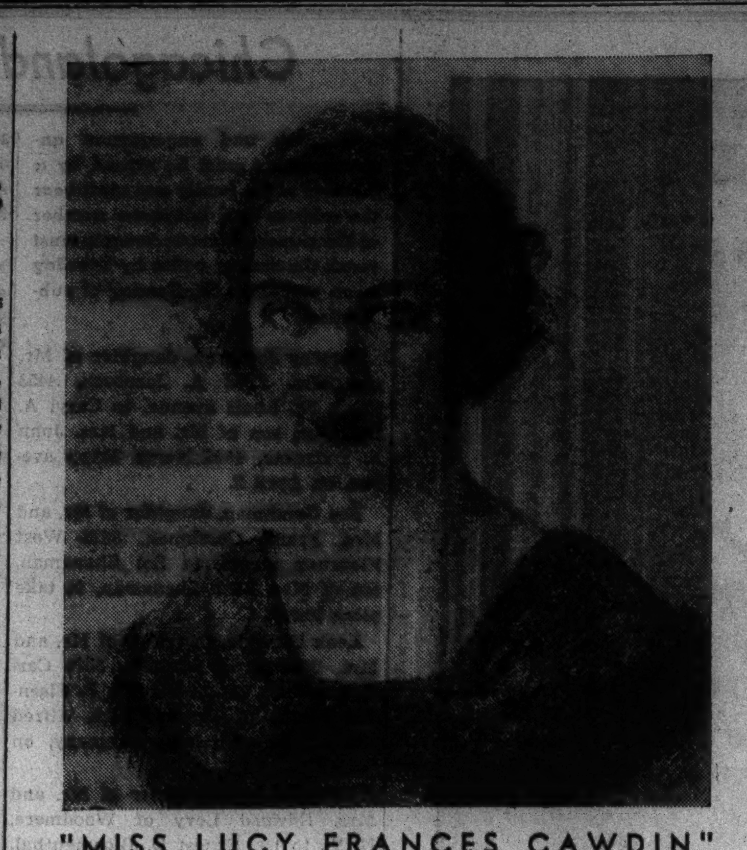
Corydon Snyder is busy with his portrait making at the Edgewater Beach hotel. His exhibits and sketching usually start the first of June, but this season he chose March 1 for his opening date.

The truly delightful group of portraits in water color and pastel by Helen Beatrice Slutz will continue in the Paul Theobald gallery, 104 South Michigan avenue, through April 9.

Nine K. Griffin, whose water colors are winning her an enviable reputation, is showing in several juried shows through the east. Her "The Madonna" has been seen in the Corcoran gallery, Washington; "Pink Gladiolas," an oil, in the Springfield Academy of Fine Arts, Springfield, Mass.; "Tiensville," an oil, Connecticut Academy of Fine Arts, Hartford, Conn.; "North Sheridan Road," National Academy of Design, New York City; and Mrs. Griffin has just received word that she has been elected an exhibiting member of the National Association of Women Painters and Sculptors, all of which is most gratifying to those who believe our Chicago artists stand second to none in contemporary American art.

The exhibition of paintings, drawings, and sculpture by the janitors of the Art institute school has become an annual affair. This spring the exhibit of their work will be held from April 16 to May 1 in the school lobby. These "janitors" are not the usual run of janitors. We understand many of them are students working their way through the art school and janitoring as the best way of keeping solvent.

The annual water color show by artist members of the Palette and Chisel Academy of the Fine Arts, 1012 North Dearborn street, will continue to April 30. It is an amazingly brilliant show, with more pleasurable pictures to the square inch than one can well imagine. Arnold Turtle, Holger Jensen, James Topping, Anthony Buchta, and J. Jeffery Grant are among those painters whose pictures arouse the collector's instinct! One hates to go home and leave them behind.



"MISS LUCY FRANCES CAWDIN"

This charming pastel portrait by Helen Beatrice Slutz is but one of a group of attractive portraits which make up (with the help of a few flower studies) the one man show of Miss Slutz's work in the Paul Theobald gallery, 104 South Michigan avenue.

APRIL TRICKS

By Eleanor Jewett.

I saw a bit of blue beside a tree
And thought a scrap of sky had carelessly
Fallen to catch in the young April grass
And tease whomever there might chance to pass.
I stopped to marvel at the bit of sky
And saw the marvel was repeated by
A thousand other little azure flowers—
The sky, indeed, had, in the guise of showers
Splashed all the wood—and then I found the sun,
Not by the April sky to be outdone,
Had similarly dropped its finest gold
In daffodils for you and me to hold!

Season Takes Longer Lease at Palm Beach

By Helen Van Hoy Smith.

PALM BEACH, FLA.

The Palm Beach season, lapping over into April, sees this resort active, gay, and gorgeous. Time was when the Washington birthday ball marked the end of everything. But that was back in the days of the old Royal Poinciana hotel, which sprawled its yellow frame bulk over several city blocks, sprouting windows, galleries, cupolas, and all the dear, delightful horrors of gay '90s architecture.

The Everglades club held another Tombola luncheon this week after all, with more than 400 attending. Prominent Chicagoans there included Mrs. George Alexander McKinlock, who entertained fourteen; Mrs. John A. Chapman, and Mrs. Freeman Hinckley. The last seasonal event at this popular rendezvous was the dinner-dance on Thursday night, which was attended by practically everybody. Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Henderson had an interesting party, the guests including Mrs. Charles Harrington Chadwick of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Hadden of New York, Joseph Higgins of Washington, D. C., Mrs. "Kim" Moran, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Thomas of Minneapolis, and Prince Mikhail Goundoroff.

Chicago's Mrs. Chadwick also entertained at one of her characteristically charming luncheons during the week, in compliment to Mrs. Arthur Small of Chicago. Mrs. Small also was guest of honor at a large tea during the week.

Mrs. Dan Hanna of Cleveland gave a luncheon Thursday at the Beach club, having Mrs. Ernest R. Graham and Miss Edna Kellogg of Chicago among her guests. Mr. and Mrs. William A. Yager, who spent the season at the Palm Beach Biltmore, left on Wednesday for Chicago.

Otis Kearny of Lake Forest is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. John Chapman in Pendleton avenue.

Mrs. Frank Osgood Butler of Chicago and Mrs. Chester Williams entertained a dozen friends with an "April Fool" party Friday night. They were invited to wear informal attire and to bring life preservers, and were taken by motor to a place on the Hillsborough river, where they embarked in a small boat for a small island, "Cap's Place," where a delectable dinner was served.

• • •

Mr. and Mrs. George Albert Eddy of Elgin gave a cocktail party at their Sea Spray avenue villa, having among those present Mr. and Mrs. Donald McMurray, Mr. and Mrs. Harrigan Ford, and their guests, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Rinehimer of Elgin, also Albert Price and son, Robert Price, of Elgin.

Mrs. John T. Pirie Jr. and two children, and her father, Franklin P. Smith, and Hoyt Smith arrived on Tuesday from Chicago and are at Il Sogno, their ocean front villa.

The Everglades club will be open as a hotel until April 15. The Palm Beach Biltmore closed its ornate Spanish doors after breakfast Thursday morning. The final dinner-dance was held at the Whitehall Wednesday, the hotel closing on Thursday.

Mrs. Charles H. Chadwick attended the dinner-dance given by Mrs. Plankinton Plaut of New York at her villa in compliment to Secretary of War and Mrs. Harry Woodring, Mr. and Mrs. Duke Schoop, and Capt. William Richards of Washington. Guests, who included many of the interesting English set and also Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury, Paulette Goddard, and the Errol Flynns [Lili Damita].

When Chicago Was Young:

Suzanne Farlin and George Henry High Have Brilliant Wedding

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend, Julia Boyd of New York.

June 19, 1889.

Dear Julia: We seem to be in a social whirl here in Chicago this week. Will and I don't attend everything, of course, since we are getting to be the "older generation," but Sandy and Martha take in the events we aren't invited to, so we hear about these.

Mrs. Harry Gordon Selfridge [Rosalie Buckingham].

Weddings bring out all ages and we four went to the marriage of Miss Suzanne Farlin to George Henry High, celebrated last evening in the Fourth Presbyterian church, almost at our door. The bride is very attractive, and we are fond of her, as well as of Mr. High, so we didn't want to miss it.

It was a lovely affair, and a regular crush, for 2,500 invitations were issued. The bridesmaids were unusually lovely girls. I didn't know all of them, but recognized in the group some acquaintances. Winifred Otis, Bessie Ross [a cousin of the bride], Grace Meadowcroft, and Miss Gillette. They all wore creamy tulle gowns, were crowned with wreaths of roses [a new and pretty conceit], and carried bouquets of roses.

The bridal gown was of exquisite point lace, festooned in orange blossoms, and the bride's golden hair caught the light, as she passed beneath the great gas chandeliers going down the aile. Following their daughter to the altar came Mr. and Mrs. Farlin, the latter attired in blue and silver brocade, with a magnificent draped front of point lace. Mrs. Farlin and her sister, Mrs. Joseph P. Ross, both have wonderful laces and, although I'm not a great judge of such things, I imagine this was very valuable.

Assisting Dr. Stryker, pastor of the Fourth church, was the now venerable Dr. Robert W. Patterson, pastor for many years of the Second Presbyterian church, in which I was brought up. How many brides he has blessed!

At the Farlin home, 467 North State street, there was a smaller group to be presented to the newly married couple, and we felt quite flattered at being invited. The presents were simply magnificent. Mr. Farlin gave them a completely furnished house on Lake Shore drive. The Highs' present was a beautiful silver service.

Sandy and Martha were guests this week at an unusual party given by Mr. and Mrs. Frank R. Chandler, our Rush street neighbors. They invited a number of the young married set to take an excursion to Hyde Park, which is about to become a part of Chicago. They took the Illinois Central out to 53d street, where park phaetons met the party for a drive around the south parks. At the end of the drive an elegant dinner was served at the café of Rosalie villa.

The Carter H. Harrisons, F. H. Winstons, John G. Shortall, Harry Selfridge, Miss Quan, Miss Emory, and Miss Rosalie Buckingham were among the guests. Martha says that young Mr. Selfridge, who holds quite an important position with Marshall Field's store, seemed devoted to Rosalie Buckingham, who is a sister of Mrs. Chandler. She is a charming girl and it would be a good match for both.

Will says Mr. Field spoke to him recently about Harry Selfridge, saying he has a great aptitude for business and he thinks he will go far.

The Buckinghams have a large fortune, and this Hyde Park property must be valuable. Frank Chandler has subdivided it for his mother-in-law, Mrs. Buckingham, and the name Rosalie court has been given to a street, in compliment to Rosalie Buckingham.

I like the idea of giving names of Chicagoans to our streets. It is a part of the romance of the building of our city. The names of many of the Hyde Park streets are the same as those in the downtown district, and as Washington, Madison, Monroe, Jefferson, and so on. This may be confusing when Hyde Park is a part of Chicago.

And now I must close and go to a woman's club meeting.

Much love,
MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

The Elizabeth Kirkland foundation will present a lecture at the Chicago Historical society, Saturday, April 2, at 3 p. m. The speaker will be Baron Robert von Heine-Geldern of Vienna, a notable student of ancient history, who will discuss the Aryam Migration to India. The committee in charge consists of L. L. McArthur, Dr. William H. Johnson, Kenneth Horan, James Weber Linn, and Prof. James T. Hatfield.

Elizabeth Kirkland was one of the foremost educators of Chicago, establishing in 1872 a young woman's school, attended by many of the important families of the day. She was an aunt of Miss Carolyn Kirkland [Madame X. of The Tribune] and of Mrs. Victor Sanborn.

The lectures are free and, as the foundation is endowed, no funds are solicited.

Art Notes

The seventeenth annual art exhibition of the works of north shore artists at the Woman's club in Evanston will continue through April 5.

The two prize winning canvases at the first biennial exhibition of contemporary American paintings, which opened March 12 at the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts, Richmond, Va., are "The Peach Jacket" by Eugene Speicher and "The Desert Flower" by Henry Lee McFee, both well known New York painters. One hundred and eighty-three canvases were selected for this show from an entry of 1,551 paintings. The exhibit will continue to April 24.

The All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts is sponsoring its third annual water color at the Stevens hotel to April 23, a most attractive exhibition which no one should miss.

M. I. T. Co-Eds Beat Prejudices, Widen Campus Activities

Although the co-eds comprise less than 2 per cent of the student body at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, they are taking a vigorous part in the extra-curricular activities.

There are fifty-four girls enrolled in the various courses this year. Although the co-ed total is slowly rising each year, no one expects the ratio to change appreciably during the next decade.

The general prejudice long held by the men students lately has shown distinct signs of diminishing. For the first time in the history of the institute a girl was elected this year to the freshman council. She is 15 year old Leona Norman of Milton and she represents more than thirty men.

Jewish Society Plans Annual Spring Benefit

Junior and senior members of the Jewish Consumptive Relief society of Chicago are combining forces to make their annual dinner-dance Sunday, April 24, at the Hotel Stevens one of the largest and most attractive of the spring benefits.

Since its founding in 1904, with Mrs. Daria Rubin as first president, the organization has given increasing help to tubercular patients, until now from 4,500 to 5,000 are aided annually.

An occupational therapy shop at the Winfield sanitarium at Winfield, Ill., was built and is maintained by the society, which also supports a recreation preventorium for 38 children there. Members visit patients at Oak Forest and the Municipal sanitarium and give parties for them several times a year. Several hundred children who have been exposed to tuberculosis are sent annually to summer camps for periods ranging from two weeks to an entire season.

Plans for the dinner-dance will be elaborated at a keno brunch Wednesday noon at the Congress hotel. Miss Sara Braun is general chairman of the party. Mrs. Benjamin Rueckberg is president of the senior group and Mrs. Louis L. Meitus of the junior group. Mrs. William S. Lipman heads the junior committee for the benefit.

This evening the Chicago Home for Jewish Children at Denver, Colo., will hold its annual dinner-dance in the gold room of the Congress hotel. Proceeds of the party will help make up the Chicago quota for the building fund whereby additional buildings will be erected. For 30 years the home has cared for the children of destitute tuberculous parents.

Mrs. Abbie Shoen and Mrs. Samuel Heller are general chairmen of the benefit, with Judge and Mrs. Samuel Heller heading the advisory board. Mrs. Meyer Zimbler and Mrs. William Koelle are program chairmen. Mrs. Maurice S. Levy is president of the division.

Also on today's calendar is a fashion show and tea the B. M. Z. Junior auxiliary will give at 1:30 o'clock at the Medinah club. The Hospital Service Aid will hold a card party and dance at the Skyline Athletic club, with H. D. Cohen in charge, and the Evelyn G. Sperry Aid club will hold a chop suey supper and card party at Humboldt Boulevard temple, 1908 Humboldt boulevard.

All blind persons of the city are being invited by the Blind Service association to a party Tuesday evening at the Industrial Home for the Blind, 1900 Marshall boulevard. There will be a musical and dramatic program, with a prize for each guest. Mrs. Gottfried D. Bernstein is president.

Funds to buy milk for underprivileged children will be raised through an earning fund party to be given by Infants' Aid at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday at the Medinah club. This 24 year old organization has some 700 members, headed by Mrs. Isadore S. Stein. Mrs. Joseph M. Kraus, Mrs. J. L. Bloom, Mrs. J. Van Buren, and Mrs. William Gordon are in charge of the benefit.

Lawyers Offering Speech Service to Civic Groups

Young lawyers are offering their services without charge as speakers on topics such as the American system of government and the constitution. The Junior Bar conference of the American Bar association, composed of lawyers under 36 years of age, has launched a nation-wide nonpartisan speaking campaign on the problems of American citizenship, and is supplying speakers to civic organizations and other clubs.

Willett N. Gorham, 1 North La Salle street, as Illinois director of public information, is in charge of the speakers' bureau for the Chicago area. More than 100 members of the bar have signified their willingness to speak. Interested organizations may arrange for a speaker through Mr. Gorham or William A. McSwain, chairman of the Junior Bar conference of Illinois.

The campaign will close with a celebration over a nation-wide radio hookup on June 21, the anniversary of New Hampshire's adoption of the constitution. This event made possible the establishment of the federal government.

Alfresco Lunch Is Spring Treat on West Coast

By Ruth Billheimer.

PASADENA, CAL. Saturdays during March and April are circled importantly on Pasadena society's calendar as a time to give winter visitors the treat of an alfresco luncheon. The weekly series is given each spring at the Huntington hotel and yesterday's, third of the season, followed a Hawaiian motif.

The big, turquoise swimming pool in the upper end of the sunken gardens is the setting and tables are arranged about its edge. Next Saturday, when the annual fashion luncheon is held there, a promenade will be stretched across the length of the pool and girls in play clothes will pedal over it on bicycles.

Two Chicagoans, Mrs. Charles H. Bosworth and her daughter, Mrs. Gordon L. Padley, now of London, shared honors with Maj. and Mrs. Ral Parr of Baltimore at last Saturday's pool luncheon. Forty guests were included by their hosts who were Mrs. Harry Hartman Davis, formerly of Baltimore; Mrs. Lewis W. Southgate of Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Harry T. Among the new members to be received Wednesday are Miss Mary Rath, daughter of the W. F. Raths, former Chicagoans, and Miss Helen La Chance, also formerly of that city.

Society's biggest event of this week-end was the marriage yesterday of Miss Mollie Hooper to Henry Boles Belden, son of the James Jerome Beldens of Scranton, Pa., and Montecito. The former Miss Hooper is a descendant of Samuel Adams and the daughter of the George Kenard Hoopers of Pasadena.

The couple is honeymooning in Mexico and will reside in Boulder City, Nev.

Retired Woman Merchant Defends Youth of Today

Observing her 83d birthday anniversary, Mrs. Lydia F. Puzzle for Historians.

On the great Arch of Augustus at Rimini, Italy, is carved the date "B. C. 271." The only question is, how did the men of that time know that the birth of Christ would occur in exactly 271 years?

For the Sake of Health, Supply Moisture in Air

Highly heated indoor air in winter is ravenous for moisture, and to keep rooms healthful we must add to its humidity. Somehow, some way, this should be done or thirsty air will steal moisture from everything it encompasses, including our noses, throats, and skin.

The nose was the first known "air conditioner," and it works hard to filter and moisten the air we breathe. But it can't do everything. There's a limit to its capacity. There's a rather wide variety of humidifying units and equipment available, and it's always possible, if one has no unit of any sort, to keep a tea kettle steaming on the stove for a few hours each day. That will help a little, at least!

Midnight Sun One of World's Perfect Shows

By Mason Warner.

ABISKO, Lapland, Sweden.—Experienced theatrical managers and dramatic critics agree that the success of a dramatic production depends as much upon the audience as it does upon the star performer. Evidence to support this axiom of the show business can be found at Abisko from the middle of May through the second week of July, with the sun shining bright, clear, and high above the horizon at midnight.

As the traveler goes north the days lengthen. Late twilight and early dawns approach each other so gradually that when they do merge and night completely fails to fall and daylight becomes continuous for weeks, the sojourner in the far north has become so accustomed to the midnight sun he accepts it in a matter of fact manner. The novelty has worn off.

At Abisko he is brought back to realization of the strangeness of one of nature's most prodigious spectacles. Here everything is provided for a successful production. Even the scenery is special, for the snow covered mountains reflect the sun's rays back into the clouds in gorgeous hues, in brilliant support of the chief player in the marvelous show. The blowing winds sound muted, and the tinkling waterfalls muffed as their eerie music pervades the air.

And yet it is the audience [or the assembly of spectators, if you wish to be meticulous] that contribute most to making the view of the Midnight Sun at Abisko an impressive and memorable experience.

I was in my room writing at the end of the day of my arrival when I looked at my watch and was startled to see the hands pointing to 11:55. Glancing out of the window, I beheld the sightseers gathered in groups on the grounds in front of the tourist station.

There forty or fifty men, women, and children, all with eyes to the west, watching the sun, and many with watch in hand, carefully noting the time in anticipation of the exact instant of midnight. I hurried to join them and in my haste neglected to fetch my topcoat, but I did not need it as the thermometer registered 10 degrees Centigrade, or about 50 degrees Fahrenheit. Other tourists were clad as if in Chicago on a cool evening in early October.

The midnight sun over Lake Torne Trask.

Scattered groups of observers walked back and forth awaiting the hour of 12, but all looked toward the west, over the mountains at the head of Torne Trask lake. There the sun was shining brilliantly, its lower rim just over the peak of a mountain. It sent beams of glistening light to the left, to the right, upward. The fleecy clouds around the circling horizon were shining with myriads of direct and reflected rays in gorgeous colors.

At 12 o'clock the sun was a gleaming, dazzling, glorious mass of white flame behind floating fairy veils of mists.

There were mountains all around us—snow topped, green on the low southern slopes, and white on the northern. There were yellow, pink, and lavender reflections on far flung clouds, varying in color from silver white to steel blue, with a copper lining showing now and then at the edges.

There was a strange feeling in the air. The groups conversed in hushed voices. It was not weird nor uncanny. How could it be with the sun shining so brightly? Shining there—in the west—in the first hour of the morning. Everything seemed natural, but everything was unusual, extraordinary. The even tenor of living was jolted.

That Abisko audience made the Midnight Sun a splendid success. It was sympathetic, appreciative, and determined to savor the utmost beauty of the magnificent show. Some even took photographs of the scenic splendor, pointing cameras directly at the sun—at midnight!

No photograph can reproduce the cloud effects of the spectacle. Let your imagination substitute all the prismatic colors of the rainbow, sharpened and emphasized, for the dark and somber shades in the photograph accompanying this article and you may get some idea of the real picture. Remember that the clouds range in color from deep purple to bright vermilion.

BEAUTY AMID THE RUINS.

Chicago, March 28.—To the Travel Editor: Giving some information asked by one of your readers recently:

This party is in the same quandary as I was prior to leaving for South America last year. I could get no late books on that continent except two written as viewed from airplanes and another which treated almost wholly of Rio de Janeiro and the views of Bolivia, while I wanted to learn something of the west coast, interior, and east coast. I found out after I got there that the books relative to South America are printed in England and can be obtained in the English book stores down there.

I did not take the Cuzco-Lake Titicaca-La Paz excursions, but talked with several who did, with the following results:

The traces of the Incas in Cuzco and all Peru are all of one kind. They are walls—no statue, no painting, no remains of a complete roofed building—nothing but ruins. Everything with the old Inca religion had to perish. The Spanish invaders saw to that. Cuzco's elevation is about 12,000 feet, and that is all right for those who have good lungs and strong hearts. The place is awfully dirty and smelly, but there is not much disease. No one thinks of lighting fires for warmth. For cooking the natives use a woody root plant which soon burns out. They don't feel the cold, but the white people shiver and put on all the clothes they have.

Lake Titicaca is the highest and most beautiful navigable lake in the world. You take a train at Arequipa, making connections with a steamer that lands you on the Bolivia side. There are plenty of Inca ruins and Indian villages. A three and a half hour train ride lands you in La Paz, built in a hollow. All the streets are steep and very roughly paved. There are lots of wierd Indians in bright colored dresses, and lots of llamas gently wending their way. It's a fascinating city, but has no beauty. You can make train connections to Arica from here, but there is only one train a week. We had planned to take the Inca trip, but realizing the hardships we decided to see the ruins on the west coast.

At Salaverry, Peru, we saw the museum of the Larco Herrera brothers, who also have contributed much to the museum at Lima. Their private collection on their hacienda is the finest of its kind in the world.

Chan-Chan is the largest of the "dead cities" found on the west coast. It originally covered eleven square miles. Although built of adobe, the city endured for centuries. Even after the treasure seekers had done their shameful work, the walls still stood. Rains and earthquakes of the 17th and 18th centuries began to wash away the city, and in 1925 a torrent of rain reduced it to its present state.

By all means go to Chile. To me it is the most progressive country in South America. Its shores are washed by the Humboldt current. Its proximity to the antarctic circle, and its snow-capped Andes give it a wonderful climate.

The Chilean lakes are beautiful and you see the Andes in all their splendor, but you can't visit the lakes in July or August [their winter]. They have heavy snows. We were there in August and it was plenty cold.

I'd suggest flying anywhere on the continent except Chile.

Now for final word: All we hear of South America republics is about revolutions, but they have a most interesting history. How many North Americans know of San Martini, the George Washington of South America, who was educated in Spain and headed the revolution of 1810 that broke the last link of the Spanish rule in Peru, Chile, and Bolivia, and of O'Higgins, the son of an Irish emigrant, and of Cochrane, a Scotchman, but English admiral, who assisted San Martini in this work? I didn't, and my favorite reading has always been history.

This is a long letter, but how I would have appreciated some advance information on South America had it been possible!

DELIA F. SWEETEN.

EASTERTIDE GREETINGS.

Cahone, Colo., March 27.—To the Travel Editor: Some time ago you published my letter, telling how the shower of postcards and greetings had been such a welcome relief to one who is more or less isolated from the world. Now I have one more request:

A neighbor of mine, living two miles down the canyon, never gets away from her ranch, and hardly ever sees any people. She gets lonesome and would like to receive cards and letters. Your readers sent more than a hundred greetings to me over the Christmas holidays. Would they be kind enough to do the same thing for her at Eastertime? She and her husband run a goat ranch and their house and other buildings are of logs. They have no children. It would do my old Irish heart good to see her get some mail. Her name and address is Mrs. Daisy Russell, Ackmen, Colo.

Your readers are doing a wonderful work in sending cheer to others. I hope every one appreciates it as much as I do. God bless the travelers!

PEGGY MILLS.

MAIL FOR SHUT-INS.

Bloomington, Ill., March 26.—To the Travel Editor: Will you please place the name of Bill Garr, 1408 South East street, Bloomington, in your "Voice of the Traveler" column? He has recently undergone two operations, as he suffered from infantile paralysis when he was 6 years old and has spent much time in hospitals. He would be so grateful for postcards or folders from travelers, or letters from any one who cares to write to shut-ins. Won't some one help cheer up Bill Garr?

A NURSE.

Hines, Ill., March 30.—To the Travel Editor: I have been a patient here for several years, due to a nervous breakdown. Will you kindly ask your readers to send me foreign stamps that, being duplicates in their collections, they no longer have any use for? I get a great deal of pleasure out of what few stamps I have, and any additions would mean continued happiness for a shut-in. My address is Ward G-3, Edward Hines Jr. hospital.

EUGENE DE MENT.

Chicago, March 27.—To the Travel Editor: Edward Papenfus of 4452 South Albany avenue, Chicago, is an invalid due to infantile paralysis. Kindly place his name on your list to receive mail from travelers.

A FRIEND.

Chicago, April 1.—To the Travel Editor: My brother-in-law, Herman Friesenhahn, of 2724 South Wells street, Chicago, has been laid up with heart trouble since July, 1935, and cannot leave the house. As he had always been an very active man he feels lonesome now. He would appreciate very much hearing from people regarding their travel experiences.

FRED SCHUG.

Chilton, Wis., March 29.—To the Travel Editor: My mother has been a shut-in for years and I wonder if you would be kind enough to put her on the list for mail from your readers. My sister and I feel this would be doing her a great service, as it would help to relieve the monotony of her existence. She would love to get cards or letters. Her name and address is Mrs. Milton Jones, 75 West Main street, Chilton, Wis.

New Bridges for Thousand Islands

The new Thousand Islands International bridge project, to span the St. Lawrence river and Thousand Islands with 8½ miles of new roadways and five graceful bridges, will afford the tourist a new view of this interesting scenic area when the project is complete this fall.

Built under the direction of the Thousand Islands Bridge authority, this $3,000,000 project was started on May 1, 1937, and follows closely the original trail of the Mohawks immortalized by James Fenimore Cooper.

More or Less Personal

Treasure Island, site of the Golden Gate International exposition at San Francisco, will be thrown open to the public today, and will remain open for previews until the opening day, Feb. 18, 1939. Visitors will see numerous exhibition palaces and other major structures complete as to exterior trim and ready for plastering. Among these are the Administration building, two main exhibit palaces, the 400-foot Tower of the Sun, Vacationland, Palaces of Electricity and Communications, Court of the Moon, Court of the Seven Seas, Court of Reflections and Court of Flowers. Today also will see launching of the $1,500,000 planting activities. A 28 ton California oak tree, 30 feet high, has been transferred from the Golden Gate park. It grew from an acorn planted in 1893. More than 3,000 trees will be placed on the island, along with tens of thousands of shrubs and millions of flowers.

A group of golfers will leave Chicago April 21 for Hot Springs, via the Alton-Missouri Pacific routes, to participate in an amateur tournament. The party will stay at the Eastman hotel, and the trip will be run on the all-expense plan.

"From South Carolina to the Potomac" is the subject of Dudley Crafts Watson's travel talk at the Old Heidelberg inn next Thursday afternoon. Colored films of Sweden, Norway, and Denmark are to be shown at the Medinah club at 4 p. m. today.

James F. Nolan, general western agent of the French Line, was decorated with the Merite Maritime last Wednesday by René Weiller, French consul in Chicago. The decoration was conferred in recognition of Mr. Nolan's efforts in the promotion of tourism and travel, as well as for his achievement in promoting good will between the United States and France. The ceremony was attended by a large group of travel officials. Mr. Nolan has represented the French Line since 1923, when he left his post of private secretary to the assistant secretary of labor in Washington. He has been in Chicago since 1933.

The railroads operating between Chicago and Louisville are planning special excursions to the 64th annual Kentucky Derby, to be run Saturday, May 7.

Lynn Carr, formerly with the Chicago and Southern Air Lines, has transferred to the Chicago office of Braniff Airways.

The Bons Vivants, Chicago society of steamship and travel agents, will have dinner at Gus' restaurant, 420 North Dearborn street, tomorrow evening.

Air Conditioned Buses Ready for Western Service

Before the end of this month the Santa Fe Trailways will have a fleet of fifty air conditioned buses in operation between Chicago and California. Additional deliveries will be made later on for service in other areas. The new fleet was built at a cost of nearly a million dollars.

"While we have had this step under consideration for some time," A. E. Greenleaf vice president in charge of trafic, said last week, "it was not until recently that the engineers overcame all the problems involved. The air conditioning and cooling system not only completely controls the temperature of the air, both summer and winter, but washes, filters, and forces a change of air throughout the bus every three minutes. In order to achieve this, each bus is insulated against heat and cold as well as against vibration and noise. The unit is entirely separate from the regular motor."

Mr. Greenleaf said greater room, along with new features for passenger comfort, have been incorporated in the new design. The seats are wider than before, their backs are adjustable to four positions, and the distance between them has been increased to 35 inches. The body of the car is built of high strength aluminum and steel alloys, and safety glass is used throughout.

Barnyards in Paris.

Paris is one of the greatest cities in the world, but within its city limits can be found eighteen farms producing milk, butter, and eggs, and equipped with stables and barnyards.

GOING SOMEWHERE?

The German government is making it easier for Americans to drive their own cars in Germany now. At all frontier customs bureaus entry permits are being issued for periods of from one to two months' duration at a cost of only 2.50 marks. Motorists need no longer pay $25 for a driving license in Germany, nor leave a deposit of $50 in this country. The 2.50 marks is the only payment required provided the stay of the visitor does not exceed two months.

The Chicago and North Western and Union Pacific railways are operating streamliners on a dual service of 39 hours and 45 minutes between Chicago and Los Angeles. The two trains are the City of Los Angeles—the original one of that name and a new one of seventeen cars. Departure from Chicago is at 6:15 p. m., with arrival in Los Angeles at 8 a. m.; from Los Angeles at 6:30 p. m., with arrival here at 12:15 p. m.

For the first time in its history the Ile de France will make a trip to the West Indies April 15 on a nine day triangular cruise to Havana, Nassau, and Bermuda. April is the loveliest month of the year in Bermuda, for all the Easter lilies for which the island is famous are in bloom at this time.

French Lick Springs' seasonal activities are getting into full swing this week-end with more than 500 golf fans—the majority of them from Chicago—taking part in the seventh annual midwest amateur tournament.

John Schlegel, Chicago district trafic manager of Pan-American Airways, relates that, beginning next Thursday, his line will have four weekly departures from New York to Bermuda, in addition to the two weekly departures from Baltimore. The giant clippers and flying boats, carrying up to twenty-eight passengers each, make it possible for Chicagoans to reach Bermuda in less than a day.

Three of the most distinguished Austrian summer schools, the Mozarteum academy at Salzburg and the Castle Cumberland and Traunsee schools at Gmunden have issued their summer schedules. The Salzburg school will open on July 11 with a faculty including Bruno Walter, Dr. Paumgartner, Harald Kreutzburg, and Emil Pirchan, as well as other experts of world renown. Miss Artiss De Volt of Boston and Miss Elizabeth Grimball of New York will both conduct American seminars there. The Cumberland Castle school, which provides liberal art subjects for international students, will open on June 20. The Castle of Traunsee will begin on the same date.

Many interesting gardens will be open to the public during the first annual Garden Club Tour in North Carolina, which will be held April 9 to 23. Local clubs in every section of the state will coöperate in observing a Garden fortnight. The tour will be routed to include many historical landmarks. Mrs. R. L. McMillan and Mrs. C. A. Gosney, Raleigh, N. C., are in charge of information about the tour.

One of the newest and most interesting suggestions made to tourists with literary appetites is the "Tour de France Litteraire" covering all the sections of France that have been important in the development of French literature. There are, for instance, the Jules Verne museum; Cuverville, André Gide's country; the Pays de Caux, described by de Maupassant; Honfleur, where Baudelaire conceived "Fleurs du Mal"; the inn where Des Grieux met Manon; the Rouen country where Corneille and Flaubert found their inspiration, and where André Maurois writes today; the Guyenne at Bördeaux, which boasts of the four great M's—Montaigne, Montesquieu, Mendes, and Mauriac; the Brittany coast between Coutances and St. Malo, called the "booksellers' coast" because it has produced so many of the prominent Parisian book dealers. . . . All these Parisian book dealers.

When the Empress of Australia returns from her Easter cruise to Kingston and Havana and sails for her home port, Southampton, April 24, passengers will have two days at historic Quebec and an interesting trip along the St. Lawrence. The trip between New York and Quebec may also be booked.

Miniature Paradise.

Liechtenstein, the tiny country tucked between Switzerland and Austria, has no poverty, no unemployment, no idle rich, little crime, low taxes, and all its armaments are in a museum.

"Piano" Tinkles in Dark Cave

KINGSTON, Jamaica, B. W. I.—A "piano" tinkles deep down in the Dry Harbour caves on the north shore of Jamaica. This "piano" is a series of stalactites which, when struck, give out notes resembling those of tubular bells.

The caves are at Hopewell, between Runaway bay and Dry Harbour. They resemble closely the Roman catacombs or an early Gothic crypt and are also famous for their picturesque mineral incrustations. Shimmering shafts of light from above cut through the weird darkness.

Bargains in Travel Await Tourist Now

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—Bargain opportunities in European travel are occupying the attention of many a prospective tourist these days. Despite international discord prospective vacationists are not overlooking the fact that highly favorable rates of exchange and liberal concessions on hotel and railway accommodations will give the American dollar added value abroad this summer.

With the French franc at the lowest level in years, travel experts are predicting a rush of tourists to France within the next few months. One seasoned observer, pointing out that the franc was selling at around thirty to the dollar recently, expressed the opinion that France should do a "land office business" in American tourists.

Special reductions on travel within France are expected to operate further to the American tourist's advantage. A bill now before the French chamber of deputies would provide a substantial cut on rail tickets.

Those most familiar with travel developments abroad point out that no European country offers greater economies to American travelers today than Italy. Tourist lire, purchasable outside Italy with American dollars, bring the daily rate at Italy's "de luxe" hotels—including meals, tips and tourist tax—down to less than $5.

Both Italy and Germany provide drastic reductions on rail rates. In Italy the savings range from 50 to 70 per cent of the stated cost of rail travel, depending on the length of stay in the country and the number of persons traveling together.

Tourists in Germany who buy border-to-border rail tickets before entering the country will realize savings of 60 per cent on scheduled charges this year. This reduction brings the cost of rail travel in Germany down to approximately a cent a mile in first class coaches, according to New York representatives of the German National railways. Savings of from 25 to 60 per cent, according to spokesmen for the German Reich, may also be effected, through the purchase of "travel marks" or hotel accommodations and entertainment features.

Since Switzerland left the gold standard, travel experts point out, visitors to that perennially popular country have found living costs lower. Switzerland is among European countries which levy no visa charges on American tourists. Others are Belgium, Holland, Italy, and the Scandinavian countries.

Despite the fact that Great Britain offers no special inducements in the way of hotel or rail reductions, her popularity with tourists from this side of the Atlantic, according to travel authorities, shows no signs of diminishing.

Thousands Feel Urge to Travel

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—Last year about 373,650 persons sailed from American and Canadian ports for Europe. Of these 153,301 were third class passengers. It is estimated that some 20,000 Americans were drawn to England in May by the coronation. About 200,000 visited France, most of them to see the Paris exposition, and hundreds to participate in the American Legion pilgrimage.

In the peak year for American travel to Europe, 1930, there were 618,478 sailings.

DETOUR

By FREDERIC BABCOCK

SANTIAGO, Chile.—[Special.]—Autumn is settling over this region, just as spring is bursting over the regions north of the equator, and that means that the bougainvillæa, the wild jasmine, and the hibiscus soon will be fading from the picture. . . . Right now, however, the picture is one of almost unbelievable splendor. . . . This part of the "shoe lace republic"—so-called because of its elongated shape—appears to be one vast garden, with a semi-circle of Andean peaks providing the background.

● You reach Chile via the Bay of Valparaiso, and for a moment you think you're sailing into the Bay of Naples. . . . You change your mind when you see a city built on two levels. . . . Elevators carry you from one level to the other, but you have more fun, and see more, by taking to the crooked, winding streets. . . . Valparaiso is a city of sharp curves, double deck street cars, narrow roads, cactus covered hills, and abrupt rock walls. . . . Passage through it is made even more difficult by the fact that burros are used for trucks and that dogs do their sleeping in the middle of the street.

● But nearby is Viña del Mar, approached on a marine drive cut out of solid rock. . . . Viña is the rallying point of the aristocrats from all over the west coast of South America. . . . They go there to get their sun tan, and to lose their pesos at the roulette tables, and to build homes and surround them with flame trees and royal palms. . . . The Humboldt current keeps the water cool, and the combined effect is a resort that can hold its own with almost any rival in Europe or North America.

● The 116 mile journey from Valparaiso to Santiago is by electrical railway, over a line that has to go through all sorts of contortions to achieve the lofty elevation. . . . It is one of the world's finest and fastest trips—and the cost is seven-eighths of a cent a mile. . . . The route leads through vineyards, farms, and ranches, along with some barren wastes. . . . The countryside is not nearly so arid as that of Peru, but, even so, most of it has to be irrigated. . . . Canals leading from the mountain streams turn the trick.

● Santiago, fourth largest city in South America, is distinguished from other mountain cities by its three scenic effects of extraordinary beauty. . . . Its Avenida de las Delicias is 325 feet wide and more than three miles long, giving the effect more of a huge park than a street. . . . Its Santa Lucia hill, rising 400 feet in the center of the city, and its 980 foot Cerro San Cristobal, capped by a colossal statue of the Virgin Mary, provide just about the final word as vantage points from which to see the collection of boulevards, public buildings, gardens, and snow crested mountains. . . . They tell us that the view of Rio—for which we're bound—from Sugar Loaf mountain or Corcovado is the final word. . . . Maybe so, but we're waiting to be convinced.

● One of the least developed of the world's land areas, the west coast is potentially one of the richest. . . . It boasts of gold, precious stones, copper, oil, and nitrates, but only the last named are being used to their full extent. . . . Nothing is grown on huge tracts suitable for cultivation. . . . On other tracts Indians are still wielding wooden spades and doing everything by hand. . . . Chile, stretching for 2,600 miles along the coast, offers the contrast of sun scorched deserts in the north and rain soaked forests and great glaciers in the south. . . . Some day it will wake up to its possibilities.

● Inland, the Chilean lake district provides still another picture. . . . The lakes, lying among the lower Andes, culminate in Llanquihue [pronounced Yankee-way], with an area of more than 300 square miles. . . . A tour of the district by motor and lake steamer gives one the impression of being in Switzerland, with these differences: Switzerland is an ancient, settled country, in the heart of an overpopulated continent, and has been the playground of millions for many years; Chile is just beginning to attract the sightseers and sportsmen. Switzerland has sheer grandeur; Chile's chief drawing card is more along the line of the exquisite. Its lakes are Alpine in conformation, its small hotels are somewhat in the Swiss chalet style, and everywhere are steep cliffs overhanging the crystal waters. . . . When the world becomes aware of the beauty of this far off land, it will swarm over the lakes and mountains—and the Chilean lakes no longer will be unspoiled.

Nuns Guard Flame.

QUEBEC.—Nuns of the Ursuline Convent in Quebec, one of the most ancient cloisters in this French-Canadian capital, guard a flame that has been burning steadily since 1717. Lighted in that year by a young French girl, Marie Madeleine de Repentigny, when she entered the convent upon the death of her fiancé, the flame has been tended by the nuns since her death.

Bermuda Basks in Springtime Floral Display

Gateways and walls are treated in a striking fashion in Bermuda. The householder covers the limestone of his house with whitewash, and in similar style his walls and gateway. Or he may tint house, walls and gate with pastel pink, blue, and green. Over the gateways and garden walls are trained honey-suckle vines, lush mantles of English ivy, trumpet vine and bougainvillea. Unusual color combinations are frequently used in wall and gate tinting and in floral painting. Pink geraniums may be planted beside a gate of salmon shade, or double poinsettia, hibiscus and crêpe myrtle used against a dead white background wall and gate.

At this time of year many of the Bermuda gardens will be covered with the long serpentine vines of the night-blooming cereus. The rare plant, a member of the cactus family, does not bloom until summer. Then it is a delightful Bermuda custom for parties to assemble to watch the unfolding of the nocturnal cereus. The petals of the plant begin to unfold slowly at dusk.

The Canaries formerly were known as the Fortunate Islands, "home of the blessed," and were familiar to the ancient Phœnicians. Teneriffe is the one usually visited by the tourist. Its famous peak of the same name is a sight wonderful to behold. More than 12,000 feet high and visible far at sea, it is the world's tallest mountain rising directly from the sea. At its foot lies Santa Cruz, chief city and capital of Teneriffe.

Mandel's is famous for quality floor coverings. We don't usually go in for seconds or sub-standards. We wouldn't have considered this lot except for these reasons. First, the mill is recognized as one of the finest in America—with extremely high inspection standards. A mill that terms many carpets "seconds" when other mills pass them as perfect. Second, this broadloom has been rigidly inspected by our own buyers. Third, the price is irresistibly low.

Why are these carpets "irregulars"? Because of tiny variations in color shading, or wire marks . . . the technical term meaning slight variations in height of pile. There is nothing in the weave that will affect their wearing quality or good looks. If you're moving or re-decorating, now is the time to buy.

Andrea Leeds' work in "Stage Door" marked her as a true artist.

Typical of supporting players whose superb performances frequently have stolen scenes from featured stars is June Lang, pictured in the portrait at the left. Her outstanding years in the movies began in 1934, and since that time she has appeared in numerous and varied rôles. In "The Road to Glory" she had the sole feminine rôle, opposite Warner Baxter, Fredric March, and Lionel Barrymore. She was born in Minneapolis and began her career as a dancer. She's 5 feet 3½ inches tall and weighs 104 pounds.

A Salute to the Scene Stealers!

By ED SULLIVAN

Hollywood, Cal.

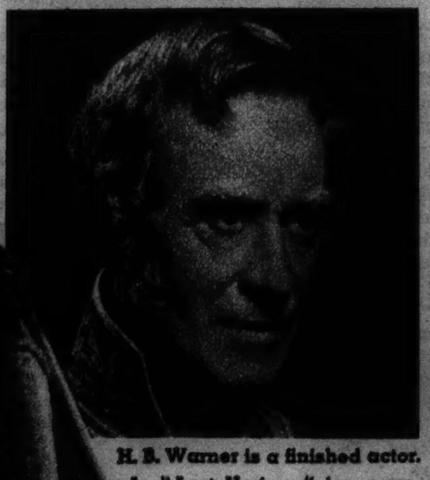
THE Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, when it recently awarded the Academy prize for the best picture of the year and the best performances of the year, also took occasion to award two other prizes for the most helpful performances on the part of supporting players. Thus did the Academy dramatize the old adage that a chain is as strong as its weakest link. Hollywood not only must have its stars, but it has been demonstrated forcibly that the star must look to other members of the cast for support.

● So this story is a story of the supporting players of Hollywood, whose work was so vitally helpful that 15,000 voting members of the Academy took cognizance of it. This year there were ten supporting players who reached what might be described best as the finals of the Academy tourney. Only two were honored officially and went to the dais to receive their awards, but the time will come when this system is enlarged upon and statuettes will be awarded to all of them.

● No truly great picture ever has emerged from the cinema mills of the west coast which offered only ONE great performance to recommend it to the favor of movie fans. A solo performance by a star is not enough.

● "The Awful Truth" had scintillating performances on the part of Irene Dunne and Cary Grant, but it had also the magnificent support of Ralph Bellamy. "Stage Door" offered brilliant gems in the performance of Katharine Hepburn and Ginger Rogers, but there were magnificent contribu- (Continued on page two.)

At left: Alice Brady, as Mrs. O'Leary in "In Old Chicago," provided a sizable proportion of the play's fine acting.



H. B. Warner is a finished actor. In "Lost Horizon," for example, he did not star, but gave effective support to Ronald Colman.

Anne Shirley's performance as Laurel in "Stella Dallas" was a remarkable example of supporting artistry.

At right: Among Thomas Mitchell's fine supporting roles was that in which he appeared in "Hurricane."

Stars Fear Them as Much as They Need Them

tions made by Andrea Leeds and Phyllis Kennedy, who played the part of the boarding house slavey. In the "Life of Emile Zola" you had Muni, of course, but the thing that gave shading and contrast to Muni's portrait was that performance by Schildkraut as Dreyfus. "In Old Chicago" starred Tyrone Power and Alice Faye, but what would they have meant without Alice Brady and Don Ameche? "Hurricane" became believable because of Thomas Mitchell's portrayal of the doctor, and that the Academy failed to honor also Raymond Massey is one of those unfortunate oversights that can be blamed on limits of time and space and numbers. H. B. Warner did not star in "Lost Horizon," but there is no doubt that without Warner, Ronald Colman would have lost in effectiveness and credibility. So it is with Anne Shirley, Claire Trevor, Dame May Whitty, Roland Young, June Lang, and others who added luster by rounding out a central portrait.

RALPH BELLAMY

In the silent days a Pearl White or a Theda Bara or a Wallace Reid or a Rudolph Valentino were sufficient to carry a picture. The advent of talking pictures marked an advance in the literacy of the moving pictures, and as the I. Q. of Hollywood moved up in decimal points the barons of film imported the great dramatists of the world. The greater writers brought rounded stories and rounded plots that depended not upon ONE characterization, but upon many characterizations. That was a happy day for the players who never might become stars because of physical limitations, but who, cast in a supporting rôle, could turn in a bit of make-believe that was enthralling and absorbing in its completeness.

As the discrimination of movie fans was enlarged and sharpened they turned more and more from the star of the piece to comment upon the excellence of a minor principal. As appreciation developed and was manifest in fan mail, the supporting players took on new dignity. In "Sadie Thompson" a minor principal played a drunk scene so brilliantly that a star was born in the person of Edward Arnold. In "100 Men and a Girl" a taxicab driver, allotted only a few minutes on the screen, occupied himself so aptly that his performance caused hats to be tossed in the air. His name, you remember, was Frank Jenks. In "Mannequin" Joan Crawford was the star, but what about Elizabeth Risdon, whose celluloid etching of the dishwashing, patient mother added strength and believability to la Crawford as the daughter?

John Barrymore's interpretation of the drink-maddened lawyer in "True Confession" added shadow and form to the picture. Here he is with Una Merkel in a scene from the picture.

It is worth while to note, however, that while the rest of the country acclaims the supporting player, the Hollywood stars take a different slant on the entire matter. In Hollywood the supporting player is known in the professional ranks as a "scene stealer." The Academy may reward a supporting player, but the stars look upon him suspiciously, for many a star has learned to his or her sorrow that the supporting player of today is the star of tomorrow. So the star calls them scene stealers and attributes grand larceny to their every move on the screen. More than one star, having seen the rushes of a picture (the daily grist of the celluloid mill), has rushed to the head of the studio and demanded that certain scenes be deleted or reshot because in those scenes a supporting player, either through talent or camera tricks, has usurped the dominance and authority of the star.

The Hollywood gag, now trite, about "the face on the cutting room floor," was no gag or joke to the supporting players. Too often had they found themselves scissored out of a picture in which they had only sinned by performing too well. Stars, protecting themselves against the day of release, watch every member of the cast with hawk-like eyes to see that they are not photographed too glamorously, that they are not given choice lines, that they are not given scenes that are "fat" in dialog content.

You can sympathize with the star, while indicting the methods used, because this is a dog-eat-dog business, to put it in its most unsavory light. The star, once he or she is on top, knows from the experience of others that it's a short life and not always a merry one. So they protect themselves by a twenty-four-hour-a-day guard against those supporting players who are smart enough to steal the picture.

No star ever feels entirely comfortable when Frank Morgan is in a picture. Morgan, wise in the ways of the stage and screen, can steal a scene as easily as you can say Jack Robinson. Gregory Ratoff, Beulah Bondi, Etienne Girardot, Leo Carrillo, Allen Jenkins, Walter Brennan, and Akim Tamiroff are a few others so expert that they can pull attention away from the star of a piece and focus it upon themselves. Recall Brennan as Swan Bostrom, the Swede timber boss, in "Come and Get It"? Recall Tamiroff in "Buccaneers"? Most amusing to Hollywood was that moment in "Buccaneers" when Brennan and Tamiroff were thrown together in the same scene. Here were two of the most accomplished scene stealers in the business directly at grips, and on the night of the preview the entire Hollywood audience leaned forward in its seats to see which one of them would come off the winner. It was a draw right up to the last seconds of the scene they were playing, but Brennan, chewing tobacco, suddenly bethought himself to make believe that he was going to squirt tobacco juice in Tamiroff's face. Tamiroff for once could not top another player and so retired with great dignity from camera range. Brennan, according to the Hollywood referees, had earned the decision by a shade.

In "Life Begins at College" the Ritz brothers were starred, but it was Supporting Player Nat Pendleton, as the bewildered Indian student, who almost stole the picture. Because of their numbers the Ritz brothers are almost immune to the scene-stealing threats of supporting players, so Pendleton's feat takes on added importance.

In "The Garden of Allah" the glamorous Marlene Dietrich was outplayed by an unknown youngster, Alan Marshall. In "A Star Is Born" astute Fredric March and film-wise Janet Gaynor had all they could do to stand off Lionel Stander as the press agent. The late Ted Healy, because of his instinct for stagecraft, had stars tearing out their hair. In every scene the brilliant Healy would do something with hands or face to pull the audience attention to him.

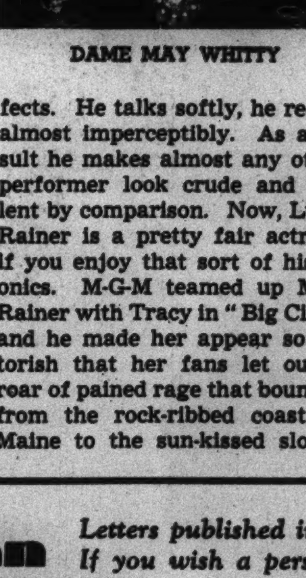
Spencer Tracy is one of the few Hollywood stars who do not fear supporting players. The reason is that Tracy depends upon a low key for his effects. He talks softly, he reacts almost imperceptibly. As a result he makes almost any other performer look crude and violent by comparison. Now, Luise Rainer is a pretty fair actress, if you enjoy that sort of histrionics. M-G-M teamed up Miss Rainer with Tracy in "Big City," and he made her appear so actorish that her fans let out a roar of pained rage that bounced from the rock-ribbed coast of Maine to the sun-kissed slopes of California. Tracy, underplaying, made her seem hysterical. If you don't believe that Joan Crawford is a mighty darn good actress, see her in "Mannequin" with Tracy and note how well she measures up to him, for there are few in the business who can play opposite him without dire results.



DAME MAY WHITTY

Some supporting players become scene stealers without a deliberate plan of larceny in mind. For instance, in "Conquest" the veteran Maria Ouspenskaya, product of years on the legitimate stage, had nothing but the kindliest feelings toward Greta Garbo and Charles Boyer, the stars. To the veteran Maria this was just another picture, rendered more interesting than most, perhaps, by the presence of Garbo, but still just another chore of make-believe. Yet without any intention on her part, and solely due to the veteran's consummate artistry, she stole a scene from Boyer and Garbo as casually as you'd light a match. It was in the scene where Boyer, as Napoleon, comes to visit Garbo, with whom he is smitten. Mme. Ouspenskaya, thus thrown into a scene with Boyer and Garbo, delivered her lines over the card table so magnificently and enacted the "business" of the scene so brilliantly that the audience had eyes for nobody else.

These veterans cannot be described as scene stealers. They are in the truest sense of the word supporting players, giving noble support to the stars. John Barrymore, for instance, as the drink-maddened lawyer in "True Confession," leering at Carole Lombard, brought a psychopathic quality to the picture that added shadow and form to the entire document.

In "Tovarich" Basil Rathbone, in the dinner table sequence, as the commissar, stole the scene simply by the intense quality of his voice. Everybody else in the picture was shrill and high-pitched. Rathbone's delivery was a change in pace, and people went out of the theater with an indelible impression of his expert restraint.

CLAIRE TREVOR

ROLAND YOUNG

In "Wells Fargo" there were two grand supporting performances on the part of Bob Burns and Barney Siegal, who played the "ugh-ugh" Indian brave. Siegal's performance was all the more interesting because he never said a word, but the critics raved over what he did and the manner in which he did it, proving that silence can be golden even on a silver celluloid sheet.

Inevitable it was that the Academy would take cognizance of the part that the supporting players play in the success of the pictures that are sent out of this town in an endless stream. Producers of pictures and exhibitors already had taken notice, because your movie fan is alert and responsive to every gem of acting. Long before the Academy decided to award prizes to the supporting players, movie fans had awarded their own prizes, in the most practical fashion. They told theater managers that such-and-such a player was great in a minor rôle. The theater manager passed the word along to Hollywood, and minor players were startled suddenly by increases in salary and long-term contracts that seemed to descend from the clouds without rime or reason.

Hollywood will tell you that the expert supporting player occupies a unique and advantageous niche in the industry. For this reason: The star gets a huge salary and must earn it back by drawing people into theaters. Once the star fails to serve as a box office magnet, he will be dismissed summarily. But the supporting player, getting a big salary but not an exorbitant one, can go along year after year making a grand living without any obligation. The supporting player is never blamed if a picture flops, and by virtue of his limited appearance on the screen the percentage is all in his favor to click. The star, on the screen most of the time, is exposed constantly to criticism and must justify his salary.

The most contented folk out here are the supporting players. They support the stars, but the industry supports them right nobly, and now even the Academy has minted silver statuettes in token of the industry's loving and grateful regard. It's nice work if you can get it.

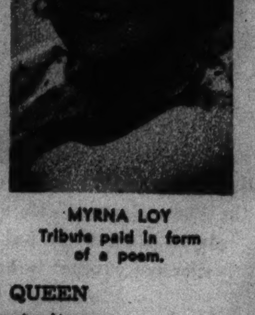
Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Miss Tinée: I have long enjoyed your criticism of pictures, which very often determines whether or not I shall see certain ones.

I hope, Miss Tinée, you won't be too critical of the verse which I am inclosing and offering to you merely as a contribution to your column.

Writing verses is a hobby of mine, and this one was inspired by Myrna Loy.

Truly yours,
MRS. M. C. HANN.



MYRNA LOY
Tribute paid in form of a poem.

THE QUEEN

Like a lovely portrait rare—
Smiling, charming, gracious, fair,
She flashes on the silver screen,
Our choice for this year's queen!

With a rhythm sure and free
She wields her finished artistry
Into a symphony of grace
To suit the most capricious taste!

May she reign long and proud,
And on her brow no cloud
Disturb the quiet poise serene
Of our choice for this year's queen!

Editor's note: Such a nice tribute! I am sure Miss Loy would be thrilled!

Dear Miss Tinée: Will you please give me the cast of actors in the picture "Ladies in Love"? Thank you.

Dear Miss Tinée: So Louise Young is carrying the torch for Nelson Eddy. Well, well! If Louise will compare her heart throb with some of the other male actors, such as Gable, Raft, March, and Robinson, she will understand why Eddy is not an actor, but a singer. The studios know that and, as they are in the business for the profit that can be acquired from their productions, do not cast Eddy in any production that requires real acting ability.

Now, Louise, do not misunderstand me. I thoroughly enjoy Nelson Eddy as a singer and go to see his pictures, but could get just as much pleasure from them even if I were blind.

Compare Eddy with some of the other stars and watch his facial expressions and you will see he has a DEAD pan and does not express any feeling at all.

No, Louise, Nelson Eddy is definitly not an actor—but a singer. Very truly yours,

J. ARTHUR LEWIS.

Editor's note: Well, Louise?

Dear Miss Tinée: After I started getting acquainted and enjoying Fred MacMurray's acting, they had him grow a mustache. The same goes with Don Ameche. I liked him much better without it. I suppose if you printed this, letters would be coming in telling how they disagree with me. Well, anyway, we all have different tastes.

FRED MacMURRAY
Before he was given a mustache.

Much obliged.

JUST ANOTHER FAN OF YOURS.

Editor's note: Evidently you don't hold with the Kipling heroine who said that to kiss a man without a mustache is like eating an egg without salt. As for the picture—here's Freddy in bareface.

Dear Miss Tinée: I have read Norbert Kruby's letter and found it very interesting as well as revealing. Interesting because I feel exactly as he does about the unpardonable negligence on the part of the movie critics not to place the motion picture "Night Must Fall" among the ten best of last year. Revealing because it frankly accuses the critics of "politics," of showing favoritism to some picture which if adjudged correctly would fall short of artistic standard. I agree with Mr. Kruby in saying that it was one of the finest pictures ever to be produced, and then to have it overlooked is nothing short of criminal! Sincerely,

RAMON SIBILSKI.

Dear Miss Tinée: Is it possible there are two Lois Januarys in the movies? About a year or so ago I saw a picture called "The Pace That Kills," featuring Lois January. Tonight I went to the movies and saw "Courage of the West," and a Lois January was in the cast. She was not at all like the girl I saw in the first picture.

Could you give me a little information concerning this girl? Sincerely yours,

HELEN E. HILBERT.

Editor's note: I imagine there is only one. Miss January's real name is Laura Lois January. She was born in Fort Worth, Tex., Oct. 5, 1913. She's 5 feet 4 inches tall and has dark brown hair and blue-gray eyes. Educated Marlborough School for Girls in Los Angeles. She was a dancer before going into pictures.

From Swenie to Sedans

Doughty Smoke Eater's Tradition Carries On in a Streamlined Age

By WILL O'NEIL

SWENIE was a fire-fighting fool!

The old Empire warehouse, in Jackson street near the river, was a roaring mass of flame. Alarm after alarm was sounded to bring out the fire fighters. Straining horses dragged smoking steam pumpers to the fire, with hose carts trailing after. Hook and ladder wagons with gongs clanging raced to the scene. Then up came Swenie.

"Boys, here's something we've got to get at from the inside," he shouted.

His buggy had stopped directly in front of a huge iron door. Two companies of firemen swung open the doors and followed Swenie in, dragging their hose lines after them.

"Water, give her water!" Swenie shouted.

For a moment the hoses spouted heavy streams and then the water stopped. The wind had swung the iron door shut. Swenie and his men were trapped. The heat was unbearable and the fire was getting worse. Swenie's men despaired.

"The men gave themselves up for lost," says a narrator of that day.

"Outside (Chief) Musham and a hundred men were battering against the door with a huge wooden ram. Every one thought they would find Swenie and his men dead when they did succeed in battering down the door."

When the door swung shut Swenie sat down and went over the warehouse in his memory. Two years before he had gone through it on an inspection trip. Suddenly he gave a shout that aroused his despairing men. He remembered a small opening into an alley that might let them out.

Through a corner of the flames Swenie led his men. All of them had suffered severe burns by the time they reached safety, but no one was fatally hurt. Swenie's whiskers were gone and part of his uniform was burned away. At the iron door Musham and his men were still using the battering ram when Swenie came around.

"Ease up, Bill, we're all safe," Swenie said. Then, as a score of voices thanked God, Swenie turned and yelled:

"And they turned in and actually saved half the old warehouse," the writer relates.

Of such stuff was Denis J. Swenie, fire fighter for most of his 70 years and chief of the Chicago fire department for 22 years. When he retired on June 1, 1901, he had served the early volunteer companies and the reorganized department for 52 years. He became chief of the fire department in 1879, 21 years after the department was changed from one made up of volunteer companies to the present status of paid, full time firemen.

It is said that the only things that mattered to Swenie were the fire department and his wife. He was a strict disciplinarian, but one who always watched the welfare of his men. Although he died nine years before the motorization of the department was begun in 1912, Chief Swenie probably would have liked the new streamlined equipment just going into service in Chicago, if only because it affords a protection that firemen have never known before.

Chicago's new streamlined engines (pumpers) and tractors for hook and ladder trucks not only look fast but are fast. The pumpers have been driven at speeds of over seventy miles an hour, but it is doubtful that they will ever be driven much faster than 35 miles an hour in actual service. The fire department is more interested in saving people than in killing them.

Five of the new pumpers have been delivered to the Chicago department by the Mack Truck company, and a sixth one, practically identical with those already on hand, is now being built by Peter Pirsch & Sons. The six tractors built by the White Truck company are being prepared for service in the department's shops.

As will be noted in the illustrations on this page, these are the first Chicago fire engines with cabs for all or part of the men. Until the present equipment was purchased—and until recent months throughout the country—firemen were supposed to ride out in the open and like it. That a raw, cold wind might bite into soaked clothing on the ride home from a fire didn't matter. When the first closed cars were purchased for the officers of the Chicago department there were shouts of rage from many of those hardy men. Now they all ride in closed cars.

The new Chicago equipment is the brain child—or children—of Anthony J. Mullaney, chief deputy fire marshal, and James Gleason, the department engineer. They considered new equipment purchased by other cities, sifted out the bad features, and worked out designs that they believe have resulted in the finest fire engines on earth. Most of their attention centered on the pumpers.

New York City has some new engines (pumpers) that have a cab accommodating the driver and company officer. The men still ride the running boards, and equipment still hangs on the sides of the trucks.

"The New York outfit looks like a Christmas tree, and there is no protection for the men," Mullaney and Gleason decided.

Detroit and cities on the west coast have purchased pumpers with a van type construction. The rear end of the body is open. The men ride in one side of the truck; hose and other equipment is stored in the other half of the van.

"Looks like a pie wagon," snorted the two Chicago experts. "If they have a wreck the men will be buried under the hose. Won't be warm, because the back end is open. Hose freezes up after being used at a fire in cold weather, and they'll never be able to get it back inside."

The pumper built for the Chicago department was the result of these and other analyses and of years of detailed planning. Practically all of it is hand made, built to the exacting specifications and plans prepared by the truck company engineers and the fire department men.

The driver and company officer will ride on the front seat of the cab. Six firemen can ride on the Pullman type seats in the after part of the cab.

Michael J. Corrigan, fire commissioner, has ordered that one man ride the open rear of the pumper on the way to all fires, no matter what the weather. This will leave one man clear in case of a wreck. The outside man will also be in a position to lead out with the hose immediately when the engine reaches the fire. Mullaney and other officers say that most of the men will probably ride outside anyway on the way to a fire because of habit, but that the cabs will be invaluable for cutting down pneumonia on the way back to the engine house.

The cabs have shatterproof glass windows and sponge rubber cushions. The clearance between seat and roof is more than seven inches beyond that of the average motor car to allow for the firemen's peaked hats. Doors open on both sides and are of extra width to permit the men to get in and out in a hurry. The center of gravity in the 20,000-pound truck is so low that it would be virtually impossible for it to turn over.

"Hell, where's the kitchen?" a fireman asked.

The new pumpers are twenty-seven feet long, about four feet longer than the older ones. With their long wheel base and huge springs mounted in rubber, they ride better than a limousine. They are almost eight feet high and eight feet wide. They carry approximately 2,000 feet of hose, as compared with 1,500 feet of hose on the present pumpers. Gleason was forced to put springs on the brake pedals so sudden application by the driver would not throw occupants of the cab against the windshield.

For those with technical interests, the six-cylinder engine has a 5⅜-inch bore and a 6½-inch stroke. It develops 225 horsepower at 2,000 revolutions a minute and is used both for motive power and the operation of the centrifugal pump. As the driver leaves the cab he pulls a lever which disengages the motor from the driveshaft. A clutch operated from a point near the pump outlets on the left-hand side hooks up the motor with the pump. An outside hand throttle is provided. Pressure gauges and r.p.m. meters are installed near both left and right side pump outlets.

Every effort has been made to keep equipment off the sides of the new pumpers. The accompanying pictures show where the collapsible ladder, pike poles, hard and soft suction (which are used in drawing water from the fire hydrant into the pumper), valves, and so forth will be stored in readily accessible places within the body of the new engine. Gleason worked long hours figuring places to put it all. The storage of equipment and special attachments of the Chicago fire department has been done in the department shops.

But the main question asked of any pumper is, "Will it throw water?"

The new pumpers were ordered on a specification that they would deliver 1,000 gallons a minute at 120 pounds pressure. The 17-year-old Seagrave pumper shown here is rated at 750 g.p.m. (gallons per minute). Newer equipment in the department is rated at 1,000 g.p.m. The new pumper and the older ones were put into the identical hose layout.

The new pumper delivered 1,563 g.p.m. at 120 pounds pressure. The 750-g.p.m. Seagrave and an Ahrens-Fox pumper rated at the same capacity delivered together 1,713 g.p.m., an increase of 150 g.p.m. over the new engine standing alone. A Seagrave 1,000-g.p.m. of later vintage delivered 1,233 g.p.m. and a Fox 1,306 g.p.m.

"It's a beautiful engine, all right, but every man to his trade," said Father William Gorman, chaplain of the department. "I'm afraid that the men will come running out of those cabs right into automobiles that will be passing, and then one of the men is going to be hurt. But the closed cabs will be a great mercy in bitter weather."

The new hook and ladder tractors are regular White 3½-ton truck tractors with the cabs rebuilt under Gleason's guidance. The cab will accommodate the driver and the officer. There is no way that the ladders, which must be raised 85 feet in the air, can be inclosed for the comfort of the firemen. What Gleason calls the beaver tail of the cab had to be so constructed that the ladders will swing through an arc of 360 degrees without it being necessary to lower them.

"I don't want no part of those inclosed jobs," one engine driver said. "If I can't miss a wreck I want to be able to jump."

The majority of the drivers, however, welcome the protection from the elements that the new trucks afford. Mullaney expects to shift drivers who do not want to drive the new equipment.

New Kind of Drene Shampoo Works Beauty Miracles for Dry Hair

Millions of women now rave about this amazing new shampoo sensation that leaves hair unbelievably easy to manage right after washing—gives it new found brilliance and lustre

MILLIONS of women, whose hair has always been left dry, dull, and hard-to-manage after an ordinary shampoo, are getting the beauty thrill of their lives. For the new Special Drene Shampoo for Dry Hair magically leaves such hair soft, and amazingly easy to manage—right after washing. Leaves it sparkling with highlights, just as Regular Drene leaves normal and oily hair gleaming and glistening.

So whether your hair is dry, normal or oily, you can give it the most beautifying shampoo ever known. For there are now two Drene Shampoos, and all you need to do is this: If ordinary shampoos leave your hair dull and unruly use Special Drene Shampoo for Dry Hair. Otherwise, use Regular Drene. A single shampoo will amaze and delight you with the results.

Drene works these wonders because it is different from any shampoo you have ever used. A shampoo as safe as water on hair; and so different that the process by which it is made has been patented. It is not a soap, so it cannot possibly leave an unrinsable, sticky film on hair to dull its natural lustre. Thus, special after rinses are totally unnecessary. It is not an oil, so it cannot deposit a gummy film to catch dust and dirt. Yet, hair gleams and glistens as never before.

Drene actually makes 5 times more lather than soap in hardest water. Lather so gentle, so active and cleansing that it entirely rids hair and scalp of dirt, grime, perspiration—even embarrassing dandruff flakes. Yet you cannot find a milder, safer, more beautifying shampoo. And remember, healthy hair demands a safe shampoo.

Procter & Gamble make and guarantee both Drene shampoos. So, if you do your hair at home, get either Drene from drug, department or 10c stores. If you have your hair done at a beauty shop, ask for a Drene shampoo your next visit.

For the next 7 days only, the makers of Drene will send you, absolutely free, a bottle containing enough Drene for two shampoos, if you will simply send your name and address to Drene, Dept. 197, Box 629, Cincinnati, O. Spring Fancies Turn to Beauty

By ELEANOR NANGLE

SPRING is a disturbing season. A great deal has been said about what it does to a young man's fancy, but what has been done about the spring beauty yerning of women—young and not so young?

Spring is the season when you hate your winter clothes, when you look in your mirror and see there a face that most certainly isn't what you'd like it to be, when you turn away in loathing from the merciless full length glimpses of your figure. Spring is the season when you wish some bountiful fairy godmother would come your way, touching you with her wand and making you beautiful and young again.

But since there's a serious shortage of such fairy godmothers in this peculiar world it's up to you to wield your own wand. The beautiful thing about it is that you can. The wand isn't a diamond studded baton, of course. It's nothing more tangible than a set of new beauty rules, sort of a new design for spring living. But it's effective. Try it and see for yourself.

You can begin by rejuvenating your figure. Undoubtedly it needs it. During the winter you have such lovely excuses for not exercising and for eating plenty of what is known as "good, nourishing food." Before you know it April's here—and so are two extra inches on your waistline!

Salaam to spring literally. Come to think of it, salaaming is awfully good for the figure. All the twisting and bending and stretching you can do is good for your figure. Hold before you the vision of yourself in one of those new streamlined spring suits and the will power to stretch and bend and twist for thy figure's sake will come more easily. Do stretchers for five minutes when you get up in the morning and before you tumble in at night. If you are earning your crown in heaven by doing housework and plenty of it make it a double edged weapon against the loss of your girlish figure. Stretch, consciously, when you dust, when you wash windows, even when you put dishes back on the pantry shelves. Dash up and down stairs with a spring in your step, head up and back straight.

Even complexions have need of their own special spring tonic. A rich cream to restore the oils the cold months have sapped away is essential.

If you can possibly afford it hie yourself to a beauty salon. Results are fast there—and it's a pleasanter business. A course of exercises designed to fit you as perfectly as you hope your new suit will is sure-fire if you're faithful about taking it and doing your homework as you should. Body massage helps too, and so do the various baths. The inches you picked up during the winter will be memories when the bathing suit season arrives.

You'll find that this salaaming to spring improves more than your figure. You'll discover resources of energy you didn't know you had. You'll see a new radiance to your skin, a new life and luster to your hair. Improved circulation works miracles in more ways than one.

Then there is the matter of your complexion. Winter will inevitably have left it dingy. How are you going to achieve a skin beauty and freshness that will do justice to the tiny, flower bedecked hats, the soft feminine colors, and the seductive veils?

Your best bet will be some bang-up beauty treatments that clarify. Failing these you must do some judicious doctoring on your own, cleansing, toning, and soothing your skin back to the radiance that is today's first complexion requisite. One of the masks which in its own mysterious fashion acts as a spring tonic all the year 'round should be on your shopping list.

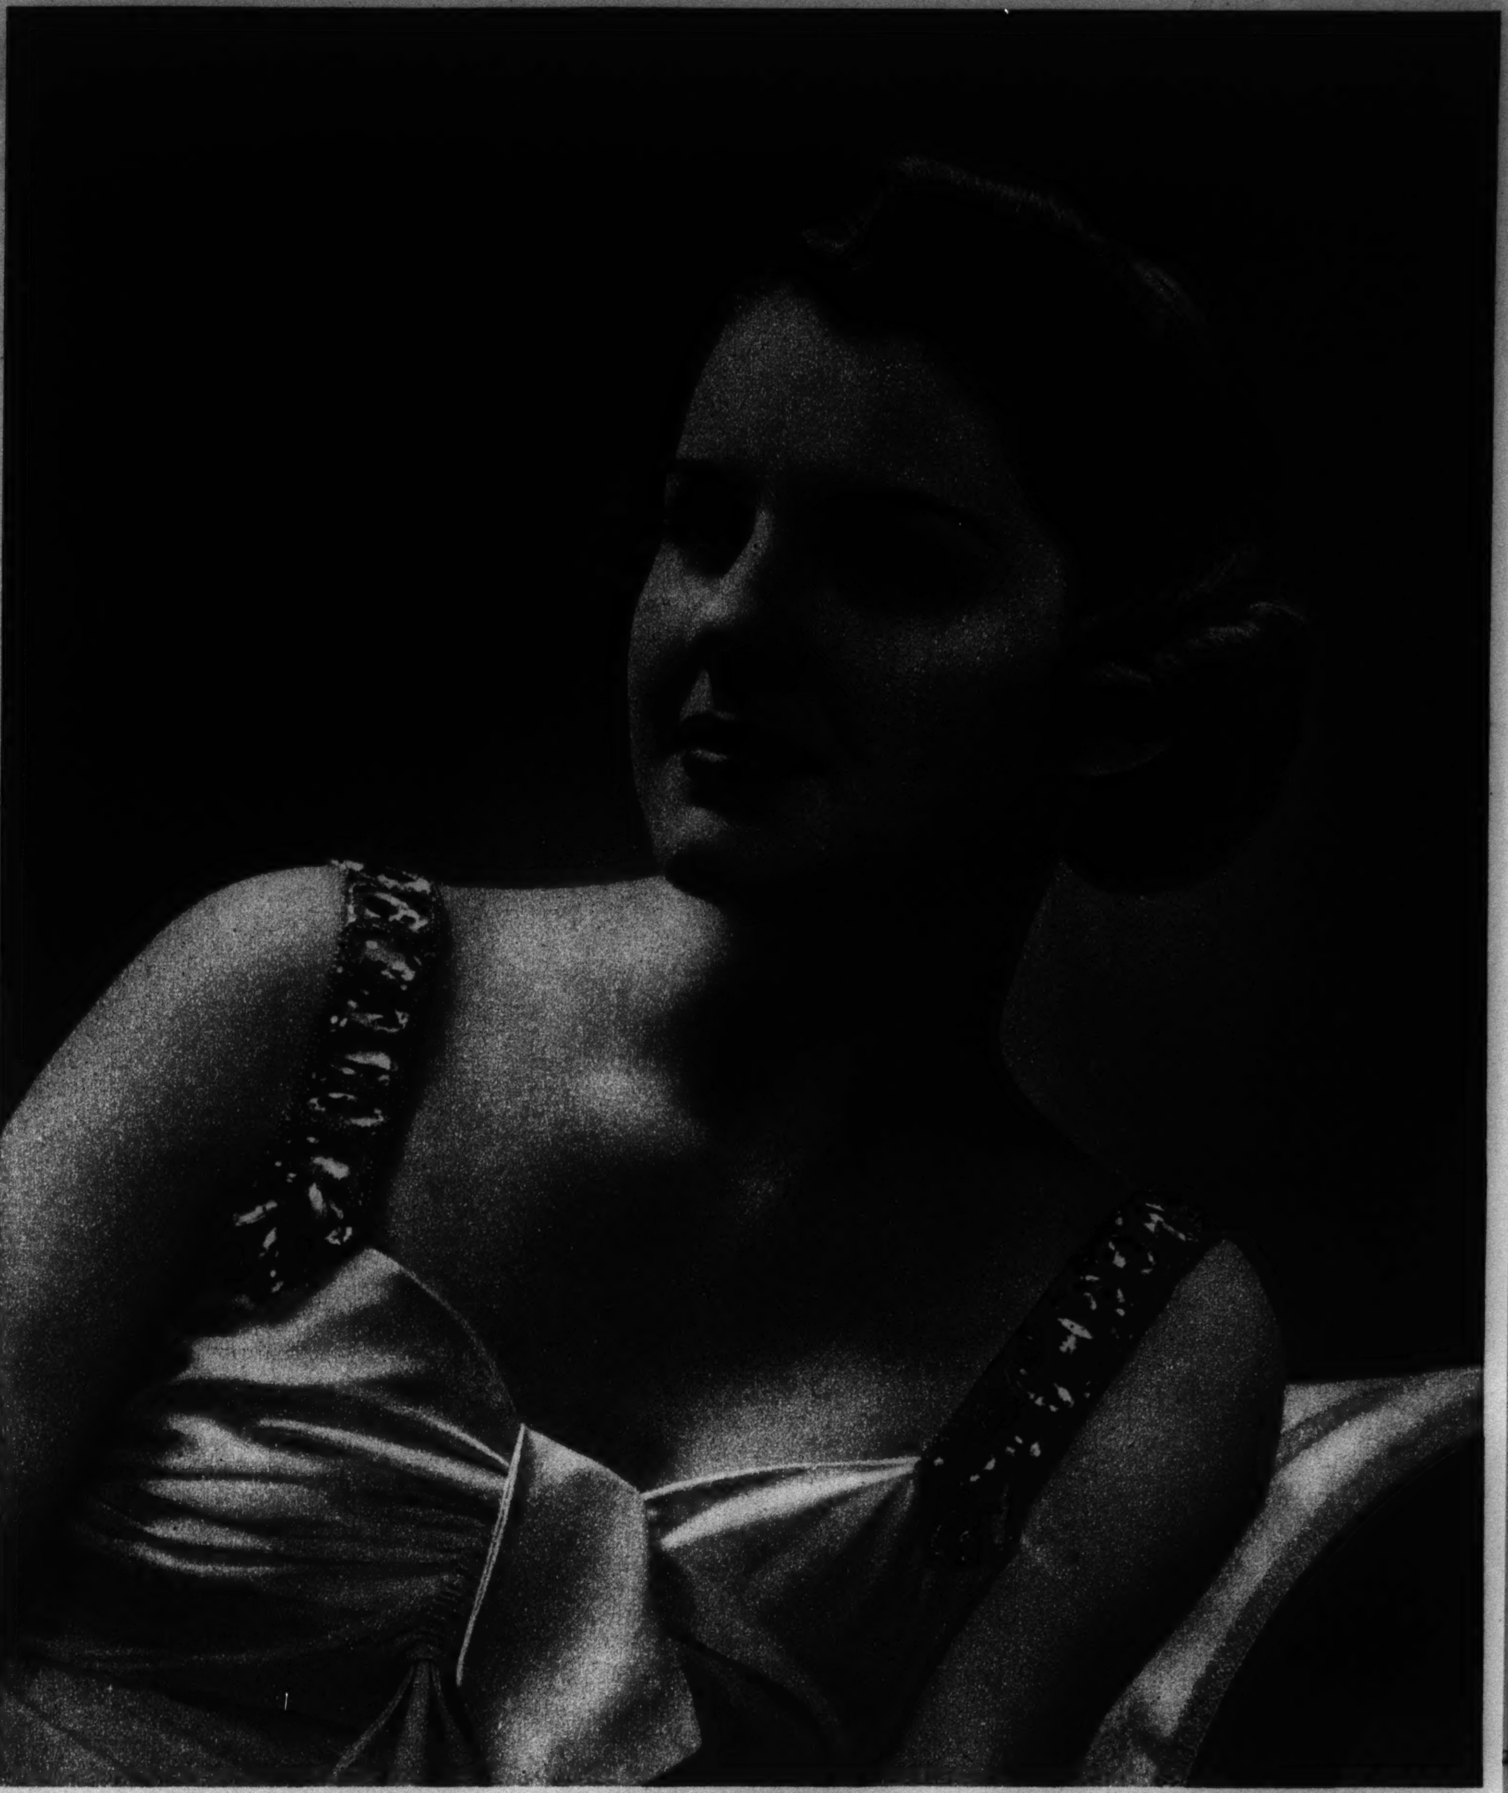
And you'll need a new makeup. As the winter pallor wears away you'll need warmer tones of powder, with lipstick and rouge that blend beautifully with the season's costume colors. By all signs and portents this will be a season for "soft" makeups. Fair skin, above all, with a minimum of rouge, the deftest kind of eye makeup and subtle rouge shades to accent the mouth. The stylized, flaming-mamie makeup is OUT, for which heaven be praised. Eadie is going to look like a lady, and a fragile one at that!

You must wield your wand over your hair, too. It must be conditioned for the spring permanent and the spring hairdress. There is always grandma's standby—the hairbrush, as effective now as it was in her day in restoring luster and life to brittle locks. A hundred strokes a day, at least, given under your own power. More than that, if your arm will stand the strain. And, if your budget affords, professional reconditioning treatments which include vigorous brushing, tonics, and salves your individual scalp condition calls for and restoration of the precious natural oil that has been lost. Your permanent will, with this preface, be an unqualified success. Your hairdress, too, will be garnished with a bigger and better glow of hair health.

Your transformation, once you get the enthusiasm that is born of a good running start toward good looks, can be surprisingly complete. You'll find yourself so beauty minded you'll do lots of things you've always known you should do but didn't. You'll be more meticulous about manicures, more faithful about appointments for your hair trim. You'll have a chiropodist treat those nagging feet that throw your posture out of kilter.

Your new set of beauty habits and the excellent results achieved thereby will all sneak up on you ever so pleasantly. You'll be prettier—and happier every time you see the image of your new self in your mirror.



Ready to greet the spring, with skin clarified, hair reconditioned, and silhouette remolded to the proportions that do justice to the streamlined spring suit! It's all done, not with mirrors, but with a new set of beauty rules. (Tribune Studio photo.)

It's a far cry from sulphur and molasses but the idea is the same . . . a new-old beauty treatment for winter-weary skin. Ultra modern and completely scientific in most respects, it has taken one good leaf from grandma's book with the introduction of an egg mask.

Even the hands that wave a gay greeting to the most exciting of the seasons have their post-winter beautifying. Oil massage makes the skin soft, deft manicures groom each nail to jewel-like perfection.

There's much to be said for this sort of a salute to spring. Exercise that gives a pull to every muscle serves two purposes. It molds the silhouette to spring-suit proportions and kills off every trace of winter lethargy.

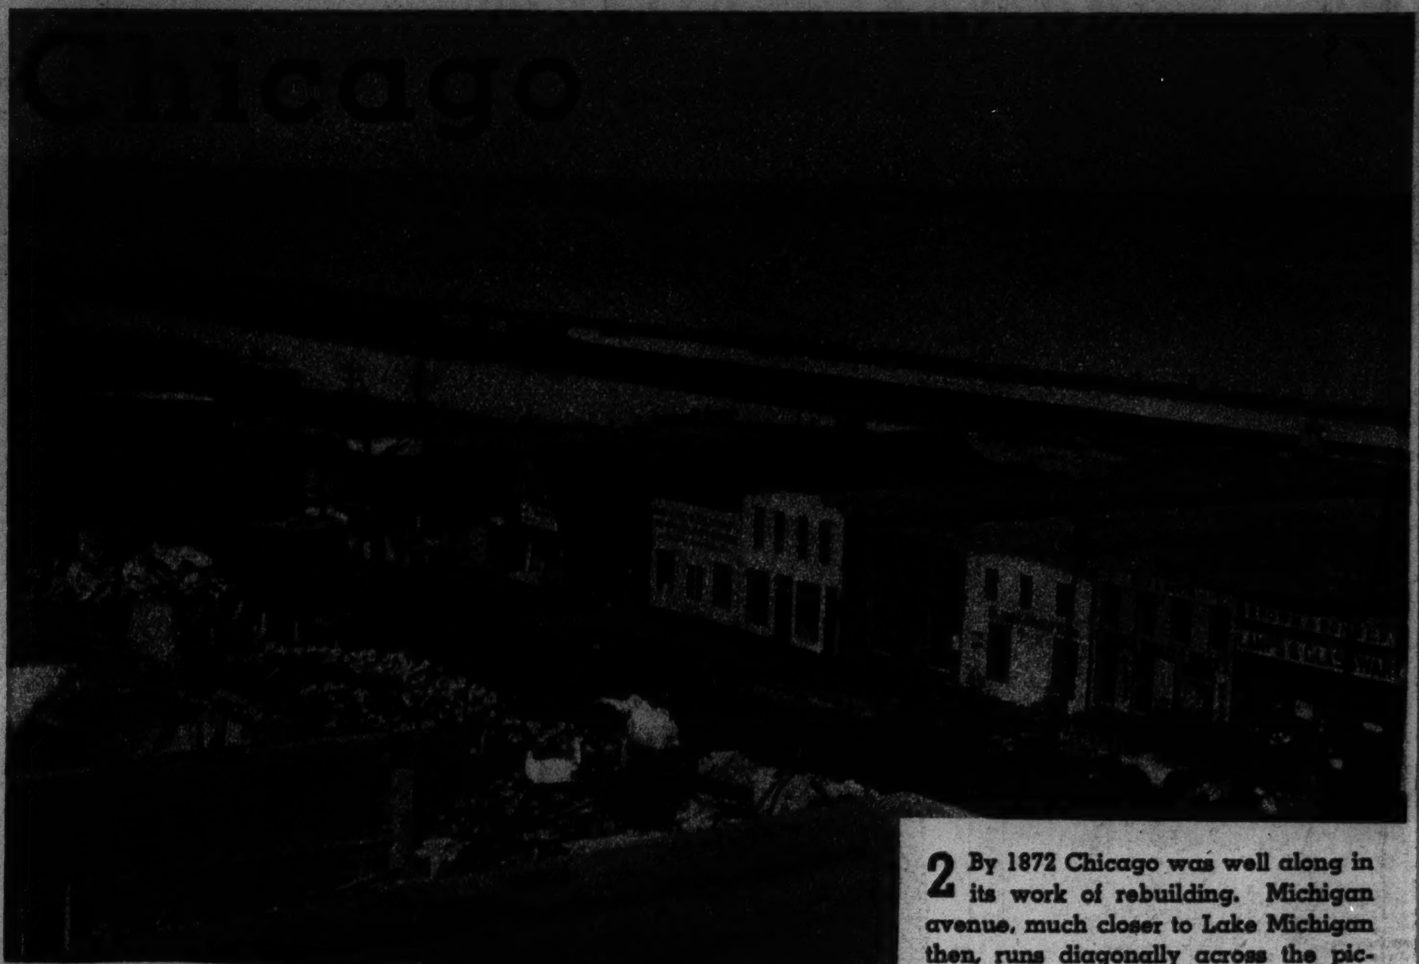
1 Time and the flames of 1871 have removed from Chicago many of the natural and man-made scenes that made it more than just a frame and mud city. This view of Lincoln park was taken from an artificial mound around which the boathouses were built. The mound was variously known as "Lookout mountain" or "Prospect hill" and still overlooks north lagoon at the foot of Belden avenue.



2 By 1872 Chicago was well along in its work of rebuilding. Michigan avenue, much closer to Lake Michigan then, runs diagonally across the picture. The old railroad tracks out in the lake occupied approximately the same position they do now in Grant park.

Coming Out Alive Depends Upon a Parachute

Foreword The parachute is today universally taken for granted as the life preserver of the air. The story of its origin and development, here presented, is something new to the reading public, and it is almost as dramatic as the story of flying itself. It covers a period of more than 150 years.

By GUY MURCHIE JR.

A "VERY gentle, evenly distributed pressure—something like being lowered gently into a great bed of softest down."

That's how Capt. Harry Armstrong, U. S. army doctor, describes the feeling of falling 1,200 feet through the air before opening his parachute.

This amazing first-hand impression of one of life's most dramatic thrills is something which few humans can comprehend and which no man living ever knew until about the time of the World war. For until then there was no parachute in the modern sense, and it was only the war itself that brought about the final perfection of this device, which has since become standard equipment in the army and in commercial flying where practicable.

So let's reflect on what men had to go through to acquire the knowledge that made the modern parachute possible. It is the pain of birth—an essential concomitant to the creation of any worth-while thing—that in perspective gives the experimental period of the parachute the dimensions of an epic of human daring.

The time was half past seven on the evening of July 25, 1837, at Vauxhall Gardens, London. A crowd of several thousand people stood gaping at a spectacle which few had seen the like of before. Some sixty feet above the ground a huge balloon floated, swaying gently at its mooring ropes. The attention of the multitude was concentrated, however, not on the gas bag itself, but on a queer saucer-shaped contraption thirty-four feet in diameter suspended from the balloon's basket and encircled by the taut ropes which held the great globe captive.

Two men were leaning over the edge of the lofty basket, waiting for a signal from a third man who was dangling below in a smaller basket twenty feet beneath the overshadowing saucer device. This man in the lower basket was Robert Cocking, England's daring pioneer of the air. His big contraption, known by the name of parachute, had aroused the interest of all England. Even the 17-year-old Queen Victoria, who had come to the throne three weeks before, was gazing interestedly from a distant window.

Parachutes were not brand new to the world at that time. For centuries there had been "umbrella dances," and court entertainers had amused royal families with tremendous leaps made possible by big umbrellas attached to their girdles. But previous to the last decade of the eighteenth century the most practical future use of the parachute was believed to be as a means of escaping from fire when trapped on the roof of a tall building, say four or five stories up in the sky.

In 1793, however, one J. P. Blanchard startled Europe by descending from a balloon. His umbrella came down faster than he had anticipated. One of his legs was broken—but he lived. The next parachuter was André Jacques Garnerin. While in jail in Budapest he had plenty of time to figure things out, and in 1797 at Paris, when he gave his first public demonstration, his 'chute was complete to the last detail. Rising in a balloon to the height of a mile and a quarter, Garnerin let go and sailed downward. His big umbrella rocked menacingly to and fro, spilling air each time and swinging the frightened man through an arc of 180 degrees—but in spite of his rough ride out of the sky Garnerin landed without serious injury. He made several later descents, but could never stop the violent rocking of his parachutes.

And now, several decades later, Cocking was about to carry on the experiments of Blanchard and Garnerin. Anxious to overcome the great weakness of Garnerin's 'chute—its tendency toward violent rocking—Cocking had made his parachute with the concave side upward, like a saucer right side up. He believed the enormous surface of the 34-foot contraption would make sufficient air resistance to retard his descent. The framework for his unique device was constructed of hollow tin tubing, which had the advantage of lightness combined with greater strength than the same weight in wood. Cocking was so confident in his creation that he had not even taken the precaution to test it out with a dummy, but had decided to risk all on a descent in person this very first time.

As the staring crowd still stood there with open mouths and awed eyes, the two men in the balloon basket waved their arms. Then Cocking shouted that he was ready to take off. Quickly the assistants on the ground released the anchor ropes. The great ball with its saucer cargo was free. It started to rise. Slowly up, up, up floated the bulging sphere, towing the strange device which spread like a sea anchor beneath it.

An hour later the balloon was out of sight of the crowd, having drifted eastward until it disappeared among the low, fleecy clouds. From the height of 5,000 feet (about one mile) the balloonists could only occasionally glimpse the earth through openings in the clouds, when they saw a bewildering patchwork of fields of different colors. Because they were rising only very slowly now, Green, the balloon's pilot, asked his navigator, named Spencer, to drop some ballast. This Spencer did, being careful to throw the little parcels of sand well clear of the spreading parachute below.

But the balloon continued to ascend hardly any faster, and as the twilight settled it was apparent that the balloon would take a long time reaching the mile-and-a-half altitude desired by Cocking for his test.

Green therefore shouted to Cocking (whom he could not see because of the intervening parachute): "We won't possibly have time to get up to 8,000 feet in time for you to descend by the light of day."

Replied Cocking, according to a report in the London Times the next morning: "Then I shall very soon leave you; but tell me whereabouts I am."

"We appear to be on a level with Greenwich," shouted Navigator Spencer.

Then Green asked Cocking: "Do you feel comfortable and satisfied that your calculations will be borne out in practice?"

"Yes," said the dauntless inventor. "I never felt more comfortable or delighted in my life."

Shortly afterward he added: "Well, now I think I shall leave you."

Said Green: "I wish you a very good night and a safe descent, if you are determined to make it and not to use the tackle." (A tackle had been arranged so that Cocking could be raised into the balloon basket should he for any reason decide to postpone his descent.)

"Good night, Spencer; good night, Green!" shouted Cocking.

"Scarcely were these words uttered," reported Green afterward, "before we felt a slight jerk upon the liberating iron, but quickly discovered, from not having changed our elevation, that Mr. Cocking had failed in his attempt to free himself. Another but more powerful jerk ensued, and in an instant the balloon shot upward with the velocity of a skyrocket." Green and Spencer saw no more of the dropping parachute, for they had all they could do to hold their faces in bags of air they had provided for themselves, while holding open the gas valve over their heads which poured a strong torrent of gas upon them, gradually diminishing the size of the balloon and arresting its ascent.

Meanwhile a terrifying drama was going on far below them. With a violent swishing sound the great saucer-shaped parachute fell, gradually picking up speed. The speed was much greater than the worried passenger in his little basket had expected—but he was probably somewhat comforted to note that there was no rocking motion. As the downward speed kept on increasing, however, suddenly the round rim of the parachute began to cave in. The speed increased still more as the furious air steadily forced the great surface to fold up. At last there was nothing left of it but a tail of flapping rags behind the basket as it plunged toward the earth. Finally the cloth and frame ripped entirely free of the basket, leaving the doomed man to plummet on down in his flimsy inclosure until he crashed in a field.

Struggling to clear his fouled shroud lines, Jack Coffin of Los Angeles, bank clerk-parachute jumper, plummets toward the earth. He landed safely.

Within a few minutes a crowd had collected and Cocking was found to be still breathing feebly. But one onlooker, a doctor, lost no time in bleeding the already bloody victim, according to the accepted practice of the day, and within half an hour Robert Cocking was dead.

Such were the risks faced by the parachute pioneers. Cocking's experiment, however, showed up both the advantages and weaknesses in the particular type of parachute he had designed. John Wise, an American aeronaut, carried on with parachute experimentation in the middle of the nineteenth century, trying out Cocking's model in various forms, as well as the more obvious umbrella model. He found the former to be "much more steady, descending generally in a spiral curve."

In 1912 a Captain Berry made the first descent from an airplane at St. Louis, Mo. He used a medium-sized parachute, folded and stuffed into a conical cylinder tied under the front end of the airplane skid. Parachutes were used frequently by German aviators during the last few months of the World war, but the Allied aviators considered them too bulky and heavy to be worth while—until just after the war, when the "seat pack" type of 'chute was perfected. This type is extremely efficient, because it can be used as a seat cushion, thus removing all .weight and bulk from the person of the aviator as he sits in the cockpit. The seat pack 'chute is in general use today. The whole thing weighs approximately 18 pounds. When open the sail of the parachute is 24 feet in diameter. It is made of carefully chosen untreated silk, because untreated silk resists creasing better than the finished material. The shroud lines are of high-grade thrown silk and consist of not fewer than 32 threads of three-ply, each with a breaking strength of not less than 400 pounds. The main 'chute is pulled from its case by a smaller "pilot chute" about three feet in diameter, which is thrown into the air by a spring when the falling aviator pulls the "rip cord," fastened to a pin that holds the pack closed.

When it has opened the parachute slows a man's falling speed to about twenty feet a second, but this may depend more or less on the man's weight and the density of the air. Each parachute is supposed to be tested as soon as it is made by an actual drop from an aircraft, using a dummy weight in place of a man. Well packed parachutes can be used when jumping from altitudes as low as 150 feet above the ground, and a few forced jumps have been made successfully from about 100 feet, but it is considered very dangerous to attempt a jump from less than 250 feet. In general the higher an altitude you jump from the safer you are, because time is sometimes important in getting a parachute open.

This brings us to the interesting question of the effect a jump has on a man, physically and mentally. Is he apt to lose consciousness or get panicky after he has jumped, and because of that fail to pull the rip cord? Does the rush of air impair his senses and make it difficult for him to see and hear? In short, how does it actually feel to make a parachute jump?

No one has ever answered this question with more precision than Capt. Harry Armstrong, who as director of the army air corps' physiological research laboratory at Dayton, O., made a "delayed-opening" jump especially for the purpose of observing his sensations and reactions. Jumping at 2,200 feet, he allowed himself to fall for 1,200 feet—most of the way plummeting end over end at 119 miles an hour—before pulling the cord.

As the American Medical Association Journal later published his findings: "During the few seconds preceding the jump the predominant mental factors were fear and excitement. . . . Throughout the free fall all conscious mental processes seemed normal. As soon as the airplane was cleared, fear and excitement disappeared. . . .

"Perception of an auditory nature may or may not have been impaired. While twelve airplanes were in close proximity . . . no airplane noise can be recalled. Also it was expected that the rush of air past the ears would produce considerable sound, yet none was noted. . . .

"Visual perception was normal. . . .

"For the first second of fall there was a horizontal velocity of about 175 feet a second, and a vertical acceleration. . . . At the same time there was a tumbling motion of the body, making a complete revolution in about two seconds. Of these motions . . . the only one recognized was rotation of the body. . . . During the third and fourth seconds the eyes were voluntarily closed, and during that time all sense of motion was lost. . . . The sensation was that of being suspended at rest in midair. When the eyes were opened, which was at an altitude of about 1,900 feet, and the ground again sighted . . . there was for the first time a definite sensation of falling. This . . . increased rapidly. . . .

"There was none of the empty or 'gone' feeling in the abdomen so common in elevators and in airplanes. The eyes, although unprotected from the high wind blast, were not irritated. . . . Breathing was even, regular, and undisturbed.

"The last phenomenon . . . has to do with skin sensibility and was a result of the increased air pressure on the lower surface of the body. It consists of that force which restricts terminal velocity to 119 m.p.h. instead of infinity, and appears in consciousness as a very gentle, evenly distributed, generalized, superficial pressure on the surface of the body toward the earth. The nearest possible similar earthly experience is that of being lowered gently into a great bed of softest down."

The impact of landing with a parachute is about the same as that after jumping off a ten-foot wall, though it may be considerably greater or less, depending on the wind, your weight, and the exact point in your sway at which you hit.

On the way down you can control the parachute's course to a slight extent by yanking at the shroud lines on one side, thus spilling out air and causing the 'chute to slip sideways in the opposite direction. But it is dangerous to do this very violently, as it may spill all the air out and foul the shroud lines, with fatal results.

As for the terminal speed of a man falling free through the air without opening his 'chute, it is well known to be close to 119 miles an hour, and the fact that it cannot harm a human being was dramatically demonstrated not long ago by a Russian flyer who dropped from a height of 26,575 feet to 650 feet before pulling his rip cord. The sheer drop of five miles took 2 minutes 20 seconds.

The time it takes to attain your terminal velocity after jumping is about eight or nine seconds, during which time you have fallen something over 300 feet. In this connection it is interesting to reflect that divers have survived jumps off bridges of nearly that height and must have hit the water when falling only slightly less than terminal velocity. Which is an indication that perhaps it is not necessarily all over for a parachutist whose 'chute does not open, provided he is over water. If he can manage to strike the water at just the right angle there is good reason to believe he might survive a fall from virtually any height. Proving this assertion is, of course, another matter.

Pirate War Gives Destroyer a Name

THE U. S. S. SOMERS, the new American destroyer pictured in the accompanying illustration, was named in honor of Richard Somers, an American naval officer who lost his life on the night of Sept. 4, 1804, while performing a heroic act in our war against the pirates of Tripoli.

The Somers is the fifth naval vessel of this name to fly America's colors, four of which are known to a certainty to have been named in honor of Richard Somers. Earlier namesakes of the hero of the war with Tripoli were destroyer No. 301, torpedo boat No. 22, and the old brig Somers, upon which there was a mutiny in 1842. In Perry's squadron on Lake Erie during the War of 1812 there was a schooner Somers, but according to Capt. G. V. Stewart, secretary-treasurer of the United States Naval institute, records do not make clear as to whether or not this vessel was named after the man who lost his life at the entrance to the harbor of Tripoli in 1804.

Richard Somers was born at Somers Point, Great Egg Harbor, N. J., in 1778, and entered the naval service in 1798. He was promoted to lieutenant in May, 1799. During 1803 and part of 1804, as commander of the Nautilus, he saw active service in the American blockade of the port of Tripoli.

When it was decided to send the ketch Intrepid into the harbor of Tripoli equipped as a floating mine to blow up the gunboats of the corsairs, Somers was selected to command the bold expedition. Midshipman Henry Wadsworth, an uncle of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, the poet, was chosen as second in command. Ten seamen volunteered for this hazardous service, and when the little ketch finally set sail on its fateful assignment a thirteenth member of the crew was aboard, Midshipman Joseph Israel, a stowaway.

At 8 o'clock in the evening the Intrepid got under way, accompanied by the Argus, the Vixen, and the Nautilus. The Siren also weighed anchor and stood toward the northern passage to the harbor, through which the ketch was to enter. Leaving its escorts outside the passage, the Intrepid vanished into the night.

Anxiously the crews aboard the vessels outside the harbor strained their eyes in the direction toward which the Intrepid had sailed. The stillness of the night was broken by the sound of guns fired from on shore. A light was seen to move on what was believed to have been the deck of the Intrepid. And then came a deafening crash!

No men returned from the Intrepid, although that vessel had carried two boats to provide for their getaway.

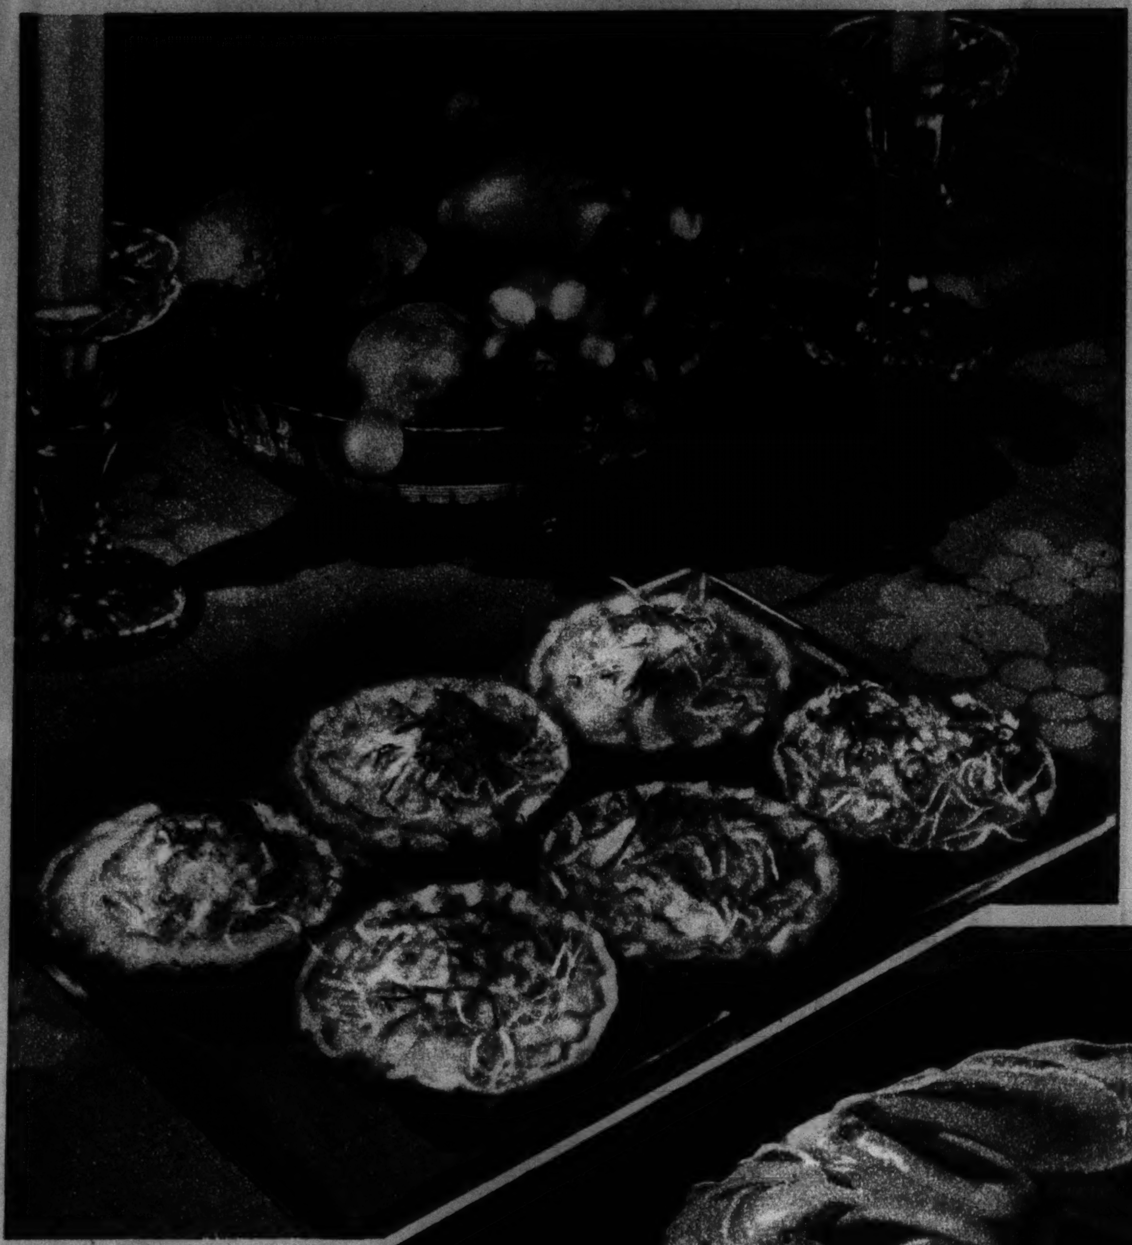
In the morning the tragedy was revealed. The Intrepid had gone onto some rocks near the entrance of the harbor and had been set upon by several gunboats of the enemy. Its store of powder, placed in a magazine for this purpose, had been blown up to prevent it falling into the hands of the Tripolitans. One enemy gunboat was destroyed in the blast, two others were badly damaged, and the little Intrepid was almost blown to bits. It was believed at the time that Master Commandant Somers touched off the magazine himself to prevent the powder from falling into the hands of the enemy and also to prevent the capture of himself and his crew. Bodies of twelve of the heroes, some of them mangled beyond possibility of recognition, were found later.

The present-day U. S. S. Somers is one of the navy's swiftest craft, believed to be capable of a speed of more than 37 knots. It is of the flotilla leader type and of the Porter class and was completed within recent months at a cost of approximately four million dollars.

The vessel is 372 feet in length over all, 36¼ feet in the beam, and displaces 1,850 tons. It carries eight 5-inch guns, ten machine guns, and eight 21-inch torpedo tubes. Fifty thousand horsepower geared turbines supply its propelling power. The crew aboard this craft numbers 175.

As Crust Goes, So Goes the Pie

This is sour cream peach pie. Nowadays you make it with frozen peaches, and a few months from now with the fresh fruit, by the same recipe. If you can imagine peaches, brown sugar, sour cream, and a little thickening baked together in a flaky crust you'll know how good this pie tastes.



There isn't much to making coconut cream tarts. Whipped cream, strawberry or raspberry jam, and coconut are the most essential ingredients. Of course, the pastry must be flaky and tender.

New Recipes Reveal the Secret

By MARY MEADE

THE COOK who can make perfect pies is a true culinary artist. In the making of pastry there are precautions to observe and pitfalls to circumvent. The amateur at pie making often doesn't understand the necessity of having the pastry cold when it is rolled or the importance of handling it as little as possible.

The pie filling is no better than its crust. The peach and sour cream pie pictured would be a total loss if it weren't baked in a flaky crust, and the coconut cream tartlets would scarcely be worth wasting time upon if the tart shells weren't crisp and tender.

This excellent plain pastry recipe is one which has stood me in good stead for years. It is the basis for both peach pie and coconut cream tarts.

PLAIN PIE PASTRY
(One Crust Pie)

1½ cups flour.
½ teaspoon salt.
½ cup shortening.
Cold water to moisten (about ¼ cup).

Sift flour and salt together once. Cut the shortening into small pieces and cut it into the flour with two knives or with a pastry blender. When mixed into coarse lumps about the size of peas, add water gradually, only enough to make the pastry hold together. Pat gently into a ball and chill for several hours. Roll out with cold rolling pin on a pastry canvas or lightly floured board, to about an eighth inch in thickness. Fit into pie pan and pinch edges of pastry around rim of pie pan. Trim off surplus, which may be baked as the basis for old-fashioned jelly tarts.

COCONUT CREAM TARTS

Plain pastry.
1 tablespoon confectioners' sugar.
Few drops vanilla.
¼ can moist sweetened coconut.
½ cup cream, whipped.
½ cup strawberry or raspberry jam.

Line tart shells with plain pastry, prick in several places to avoid humping and bake at 425 degrees until lightly browned. Cool and place a tablespoon of jam in the bottom of each tart shell. Fold sugar, vanilla, and coconut into whipped cream and cover jam. Coconut may be toasted before it's added to the recipe.

Sometimes a special pie crust is needed to give extra zest to a pie. An apple pie, for instance, will taste better in a flaky cheese crust. This department has available a mimeographed sheet of cheese, chocolate, cookie, and graham cracker pie crusts. If you want either this sheet or a recipe for the peach pie that is pictured here (or both), send a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Address your mail inquiries to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

A high, tender cake of fine texture, literally plastered with thick, "gooey" frosting, is many women's idea of a major baking triumph. "Baking the Perfect Cake," a booklet described in the story to the right, tells you how to make cakes like the one pictured above.

More "Perfect Cakes" in Revised Cook Book

By MARY MEADE

A FLUFFY banana cake covered with swirls of marshmallow frosting, like the one pictured, isn't the only perfect cake you'll be able to bake if you follow the rules and recipes in the newly revised booklet, "Baking the Perfect Cake."

Besides recipes for thirty-seven different cakes, including angel foods, sponge, Lady Baltimore, spice cake, coconut cake, caramel cake, and others, there are recipes for numerous types of filling and frosting.

A discussion of technique in cake baking, a consideration of ingredients and utensils, and a thorough treatment of the reasons why cakes misbehave, with remedies suggested for each type of misbehavior, are also included between the yellow covers of the 50-page printed booklet. The covers of "Baking the Perfect Cake" look the same as before the booklet was revised, but many changes have been made in subject matter and new recipes have been added. Among the new features is a chapter on mixing cake batters with the electric mixer.

This basic frosting recipe from the booklet was used for the banana cake. Quartered marshmallows were added.

SEVEN-MINUTE FROSTING

2 egg whites.
½ teaspoon cream of tartar.
½ cup cold water.
¼ teaspoon salt.
2 cups granulated sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla.

Cook first five ingredients in double boiler, beating continuously with rotary beater until frosting stands in peaks (about seven minutes). Add vanilla, beat until thick.

If you'd like a copy of this booklet, which is one of the very best my department has available, one may be obtained by mailing 23 cents in stamps to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune, asking for "Baking the Perfect Cake." If the book is picked up at one of the Tribune public service offices, 1 South Dearborn or Tribune Tower, it is 20 cents.

The Graphic Laboratory of Popular Science

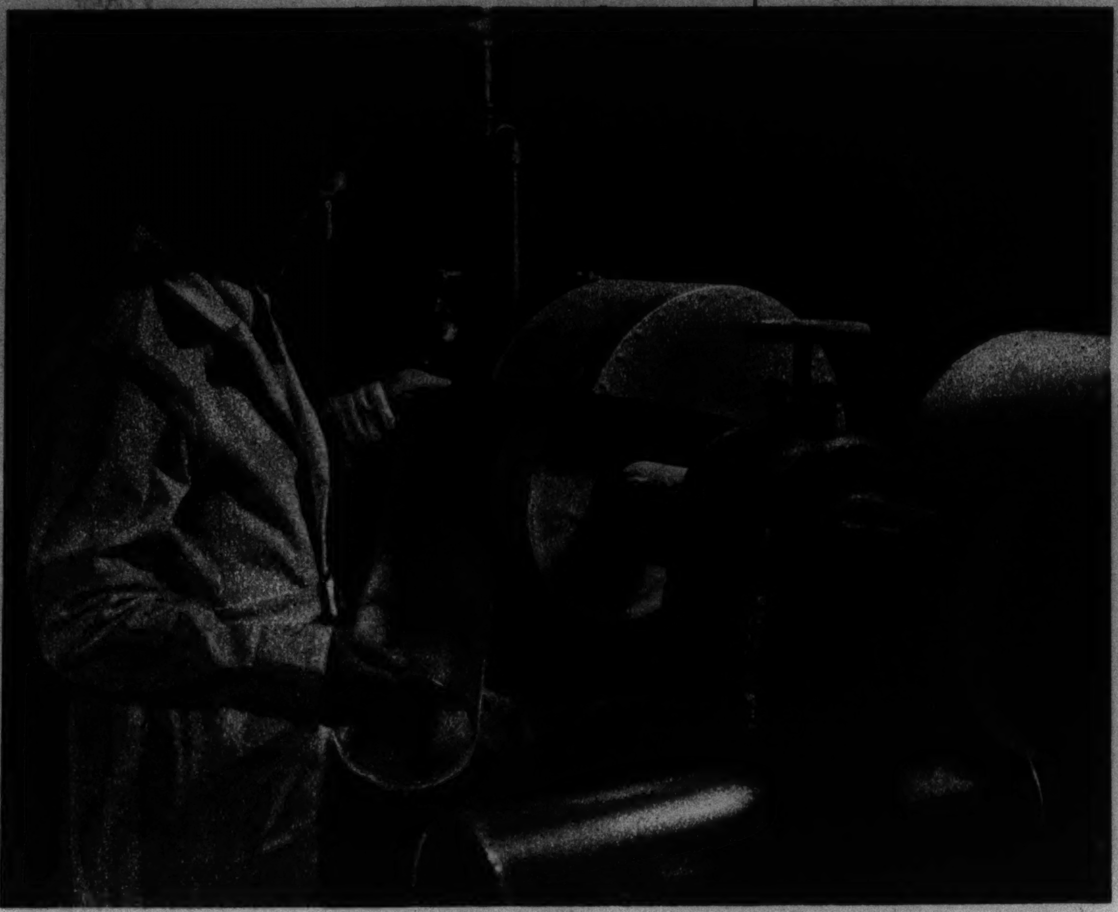
Laboratory Improves on Nature



A cylinder made from lucite, a new plastic, being polished by a special buffer preparatory to its use for a number of commercial items.

THERE ARE FEW more fascinating stories than that of man's success in synthesizing the carefully guarded products of nature—an achievement that has given birth to a billion-dollar industry.

Synthetic camphor, for example, manufactured from turpentine, is so like the natural product as to deceive even the camphor tree of Formosa. Scientists, in their zealous pursuit of the secrets of nature, have succeeded in analyzing complex substances into their elementary constituent parts and, by meticulously studying these building blocks, learned of their properties and hidden potentialities. Then, with a gusto and thoroughness that has characterized twentieth-century science, they have synthesized these complex substances, first in the laboratory and then on an industrial scale.

Chemists have learned what the essential elements really are in natural products and thus are able to produce from cheap raw material a substitute containing these essential ingredients. But imitating natural products is only one aspect of synthetic chemistry, for today chemists have made substances not found in nature. Notable among these are important drugs and organic dyes of colors rivaling the rainbow in beauty and delicacy of hues.

It is no exaggeration to estimate in the tens of thousands the number of synthetic products now in common use. These range from huge bakelite insulators molded from synthetic resins to the delicate aroma of perfumes extracted from coal tar.

Of the hundreds of man-made compounds that have recently come from our research laboratories none were received with such keen interest and anticipation as synthetic rubber.

Ever since rubber was brought to the attention of the civilized world this basic material has proved to be of the utmost utility. It is the sustenance of one of the world's largest industries.

Most of the world's supply of raw rubber comes from the milky juice of the hevea tree that grows wild in the jungles of Brazil. Although many vines and trees contain rubber, none equals the quality or quantity of the juice of the hevea tree. Unfortunately, it has not proved profitable to cultivate these trees anywhere except in this and other restricted regions.

Many industrial countries, including the United States, have no land suitable for the production of rubber. This situation has given impetus to chemists throughout the world to synthesize rubber. Today we are in possession of a synthetic product which, though not identical chemically with the natural product, has all the important properties of rubber, but none of its obvious disadvantages. The commercially manufactured rubberlike substance known as neoprene looks like rubber, acts like rubber, and can be used in many articles as a substitute for rubber.

Washing neoprene, plastic substance similar to rubber.

Neoprene is not a laboratory curiosity. Starting from four of nature's raw materials — coal, salt, water, and limestone—materials that are plentiful and cheap—industrial chemists have produced this remarkable synthetic product.

The chemical story as told by Dr. James K. Hunt of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours laboratories is as follows: "Coal and limestone, heated together in an electric furnace, give calcium carbide, which on the addition of water gives acetylene gas. This part of the story is familiar to some of the oldsters who used carbide headlights on their bicycles and automobiles some years ago. Acetylene plus a material known to the chemist as a catalyst gives another gas known as monovinylacetylene. The latter plus hydrochloric acid (made from salt) gives a liquid called chloroprene; and the union or intermarriage of chloroprene molecules gives the new rubberlike neoprene."

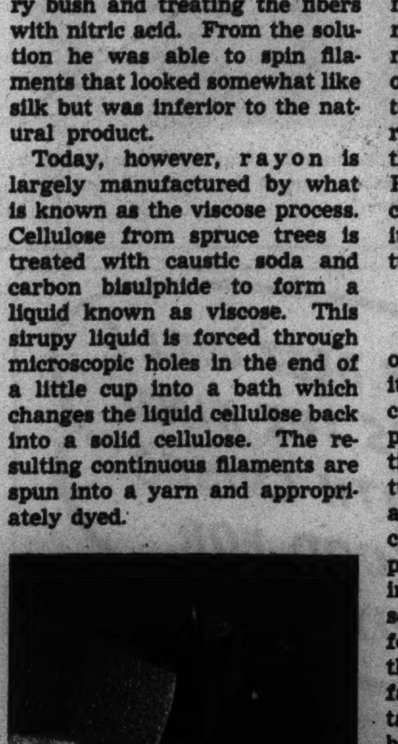
This synthetic compound is really not a substitute for rubber, although it is as tough and as elastic as rubber. The property enjoyed by neoprene but not by rubber is its resistance to such deteriorating agents as gasoline, oils, acid chemicals, sunlight, and heat.

Perhaps an even more important synthetic product than neoprene is acetate rayon—a derivative of cellulose—the silkworm's best competitor. Occurring in nature as fibers or framework of practically all plants, cellulose is one of the cheapest and most plentiful of raw materials.

Out of the millions of tons of cotton linters and pulp of the spruce tree come these synthetic fabrics, airplane window shields, fountain pens, toothbrush handles, motion picture films, and many others. In fact, it is estimated that more than 10,000 products have cellulose as the basic product.

Rayon had its origin in the attempt of the French chemist Count Hilaire de Chardonnet to create artificial silk. He endeavored to imitate the silkworm by taking the leaves of the mulberry bush and treating the fibers with nitric acid. From the solution he was able to spin filaments that looked somewhat like silk but was inferior to the natural product.

Today, however, rayon is largely manufactured by what is known as the viscose process. Cellulose from spruce trees is treated with caustic soda and carbon bisulphide to form a liquid known as viscose. This strupy liquid is forced through microscopic holes in the end of a little cup into a bath which changes the liquid cellulose back into a solid cellulose. The resulting continuous filaments are spun into a yarn and appropriately dyed.



Science has produced synthetically many of nature's products. One of the most realistic is camphor, shown here being packed.

This product, 1,300,000,000 pounds of which was produced in 1936, has when woven into fabrics many of the desirable properties of natural silk. However, rayon is not chemically the same as silk. As in the case of neoprene, rayon has many more uses than the natural product. Rayon filaments can be made finer than silk and hence give rise to fabrics of extreme softness. The wide range of sizes of filaments has made it possible to manufacture synthetic fabric rivaling in beauty and texture the finest satins and cashmeres. Rayon thread is used also in the cord fabric of tires because of its strength at high temperatures.

Another interesting sidelight of this synthetic compound is its close relation to the commercial product known as cellophane. The same chemical solution of viscose used to manufacture the filaments for rayon is also used to make transparent cellulose films. Essentially the process is this: Instead of forcing this liquid through microscopic holes, the solution is forced into a chemical bath through a long, narrow slit. The familiar transparent film is obtained after proper washing and bleaching. Films now obtainable commercially not only are waterproof and air-tight but have unusual tensile properties.

A discussion of synthetic products would not be complete without at least mentioning the increasingly important rôle that synthetic resins are playing in modern society. Bakelite as an electrical insulator is replacing hard rubber. The newly developed resin, methyl methacrylate, which is known under the trade name of lucite, is finding many practical applications. Through a molding process it has been possible to reduce this resin to rods which appear as part of a grillework in some of the newer acoustical cabinets. Indications are that when this product finds its way into the furniture field it will undoubtedly have an effect on the basic designs.

Springtime Is Puppy Time

Stub of London is the name of this well trained black cocker spaniel. He is a show dog and is owned by Walter H. Sattler of Cincinnati, O.

SPRINGTIME is puppy time in the northern tier of states. Winter is apt to hamper the activity of dogs of all ages, and it is at the first sign of warm weather that dog fanciers seem to get the urge to go to kennels and look over the stock of puppies.

One reason is that it is easier to raise a dog when the weather grows warm and puppies may be exercised and trained outdoors. Since we always have taught pups their house manners by taking them outdoors at frequent intervals, we would rather welcome a pup into our home at the beginning of the spring season than in the heart of winter. It's obvious that a ten-week-old pup doesn't mind going outdoors at this time of the year as he does when it is cold and snowy. Then, too, we like to teach our dogs to spend some time in a kennel and eat their meals there. Both are training features that are easier to follow during mild weather. Further, puppies need sunshine, just as humans do.

One training lesson that is particularly adapted to the springtime outdoors is teaching a dog to come to you. An open yard is desirable so that the pup can get away from you for a considerable distance before he is given the command to come.

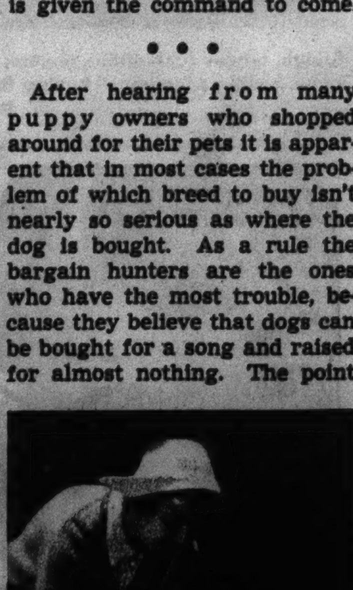
After hearing from many puppy owners who shopped around for their pets it is apparent that in most cases the problem of which breed to buy isn't nearly so serious as where the dog is bought. As a rule the bargain hunters are the ones who have the most trouble, because they believe that dogs can be bought for a song and raised for almost nothing. The point is that it costs money to raise sound, healthy puppies. Nobody yet has found a system of keeping good registered dogs, raising puppies, keeping them healthy, feeding them well, and then selling them for a few dollars. So today the dog buyer gets only what he pays for, just as he does in other merchandise.

Most of us buy a dog with the expectation that it will live for ten or twelve years. With proper care and a little luck one may keep a pet that long. If the pup costs $25 or $35, and you spread that cost over ten years, it amounts to just a couple of dollars a year for dividends in loyalty, affection, companionship, and perhaps guard work for the children in the home. That is a ridiculously small sum for what the good dog gives to us and the home. And it costs just as much to treat a nameless mixture of breeds (a cross-bred) for distemper, to feed it, and to look after it as it does to rear a pedigreed dog of the same size and weight.

The advantage of the pedigreed dog is this: You know what it is. You know its ancestors. If you are keen about your dog, and you want another one like it, you can breed it for a litter of puppies in the expectation of securing a pup much like the dam or sire. On the other hand, the cross-bred dog is the end of the line. One cannot breed it to secure any definite type of puppies. The cross-bred may be gentle, affectionate, heroic, and ready to guard a family at any time, because it is all dog. It certainly is better than no dog at all in many homes. But there is always that barrier ahead of such a dog; you don't know what you are going to get when it is bred.

After acquiring a puppy we suggest that the new owner read a simple handbook on the care of the dog — how to feed the puppy, how to treat puppy ailments, why distemper inoculation is important, how to train the puppy. It pays great dividends.



When it's a question of inspecting a dish of food this wire-haired terrier named Patty doesn't mind dancing on her hind legs. Patty is owned by Una Merkel, motion picture actress, who is feeding the dog.

DOG NOTES

We feel sorry for dogs being shipped to England. What a life — when you have to sit around for six months in quarantine! That's the law in England. This regulation is a pretty good barrier against selling many dogs to English buyers. But English dog breeders have an easy time selling to Americans, since we have no such quarantine laws.

Don't let anybody tell you how good a "spring tonic" for your dog may be made by putting a lump of sulphur in the pup's drinking water. It can't be done. Sulphur is not soluble in water!

One of the most valuable assets of a dog is its keen ears. We recently visited an elderly lady whose hearing is defective. If she is in any room of her house except the front room she cannot hear the doorbell. But her dog, a terrier, is always on the alert to let her know when any one comes to the door. Dogs also can distinguish the sound of a stranger from that made by a member of the family. We have noticed how dogs kept in the home will bark loudly when a stranger appears at the door late at night but will not make a sound when they hear the familiar steps of a member of the family.

Pair of Lion Cubs Go on a Visit

By GUY MURCHIE JR.

THIS IS A STORY of two lion cubs. Their names are Tarzan and King. They are growing up so fast that every now and then they think they are lions.

So far no part of their busy life has been more exciting than the weeks they spent in Chicago at the Woodlawn avenue home of Mr. and Mrs. Justin Dart. Mr. Dart met Tarzan and King in what might be called a business way. One day a vaudeville performer knocked on his office door and said he had some baby lions that he was willing to sell pretty cheaply.

"They were born in my trailer," he explained. "I have a pair of full-grown lions which I use in my act, and a few weeks ago they had three cubs. The father lion killed one cub. That left two. Now I am so broke that I've got to sell either these cubs or my trailer. Will you buy my baby lions?"

"Yes," said Mr. Dart, "I'll take them home for my little boys to play with."

And so it was done. It was a job, too. Tarzan and King demanded plenty of attention. They immediately began to explore the house with a curiosity that would have made Pandora envious. Tarzan saw a rubber cord that looked good to chew. He took hold of it. The next thing he knew—CRASH! A lamp was on the floor, and Tarzan was running away to hide. But he soon came back and forgot about it and yanked at the rubber cord again—and again there was a terrifying crash as the lamp hit the floor.

Tarzan—who sometimes thinks he is a lion.

After that Tarzan felt a little shy when he saw rubber cords.

At first Mrs. Dart kept her cubs in the kitchen at night, and they would cuddle up under the radiator or in a little nook by the stove. They liked the kitchen, but the cat (who formerly had called the kitchen home) was visibly worried at their presence. She left the house three days after they arrived and never has been seen since.

Warm milk was fed to the cubs several times a day. The vaudeville man had recommended it. "It soothes lions," he said. But the cubs also got raw liver at least once a day—and that made them wild. When they smelled the meat they would forget all about the polite manners they had when drinking milk together and would fly at each other's throats with blood-curdling yowls and sometimes a roar.

Most of the time, however, the cubs were good-natured. They would get used to the people they saw every day and would lie around on the sun porch floor or play together without a care in the world. Strangers made them feel different, however—especially strangers who felt a little nervous at being in the same room with lions. At such times King and Tarzan would grow very restless and obviously ill at ease.

One day the Darts' friend, Dale Carnegie, came to call. Although Mr. Carnegie is famous as the author of "How to Make Friends and Influence People," he still evidently needs to brush up on his influence over lions, for Tarzan and King went almost wild at the sight of Mr. Carnegie and refused to get over their jitters until he left.

As for taking discipline, lion cubs seem to be somewhere between cats and dogs. Spanking has little effect on them, but still they can learn things quite easily. Flicking them on the tips of their sensitive noses was found to be the best way to let Tarzan and King know they were doing wrong, and in that way they quickly learned which chairs they were forbidden to jump up in.

King—so tired of it all.
(Guy Murchie Jr. photos.)

They could be picked up most easily by the scruff of the neck, and if you weren't nervous in handling them they would never think of snapping at you or even scratching you. But, of course, there may come a day when it will be different with Tarzan and King. Right now they are probably somewhere down south, for Mr. Dart recently sold them to a man in Florida.

THE COMMITTEE: Miriam Miner Wolff, James Amster and Margaret McElroy.

Gulistan's amazing record of exhibition-successes has signalled the appearance of a great new decorative style in carpeting.

FIRST, IN 1936:

Selected for National Exhibit by The American Institute of Architects.

THEN IN 1937:

AGAIN IN 1937:

Selected by the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York, for its International Exhibition of Rugs and Carpets.

NOW, IN 1938:

Chosen by The Committee on Decorations of the New York World's Fair, 1939, Inc. for its most luxurious building, The Terrace Club.

What is the reason for all these honors? Gulistan Carpeting has discovered the style trend of the age, richness-with simplicity! More than 2,000 leading stores are showing it today. Twenty-nine patterns to choose from. Price: $13 a sq. yd. (or $156 to cover a 9 by 12 foot area).

AND NOW!

2 popular price qualities in the style that made Gulistan Carpeting famous!

Ask to see Ruxton and Afton. In these new Wilton Broadlooms, the Makers of Gulistan have developed the new style at prices almost anybody can afford. If you love the effect of solid color on your floor, yet want something richer and more elegant, here is the answer. Sixteen patterns in exquisite decorator shades: Ivory Beige, Woodtones, Rose Quartz, Burgundy, Green, Blue. Available either as wall-to-wall carpeting, or in rug form. Prices: Ruxton, $6.95 sq. yd.; Afton, $5.95 sq. yd.

30 Minutes After Eating-Drinking ALKALIZE

Thus escape the penalties of acid indigestion then and later

With "acid indigestion" it stands to reason that the longer it goes, the worse it gets — and the harder it is to alkalize. Therefore, act at the first sign of distress.

If you would relieve and "head off" nausea, "upset stomach," heartburn, gas, the thing to do is alkalize immediately.

Try this quick-acting way: take two Phillips' Milk of Magnesia tablets — or two teaspoons of the liquid which have the same alkalizing effect.

Almost at once you feel "acid indigestion" curbed. "Acid headaches," acid breath, pains from acid indigestion — all are given amazingly fast relief. You feel like a different person.

When you're going out carry your alkalizer with you — always — in tablets. They taste like peppermint. They cost 25¢ for 30. When you buy insist on Genuine Phillips'

ALSO IN TABLET FORM: Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

Ask your doctor when you should start your baby on vegetables

Libby's Baby Foods are being fed earlier

. . . they're EXTRA EASY TO DIGEST

All Baby Foods are strained.. but only Libby's are First STRAINED Then HOMOGENIZED

• Babies used to be seven or eight months old before they were given vegetables and other solid foods . . .

But now doctors know that earlier feeding of these protective foods helps babies to grow up big and strong. Vegetables contain minerals and vitamins for richer blood, firmer muscles, better bone formation.

Babies are thriving!

Studies show that Libby's Baby Foods can be safely fed earlier than ordinary strained foods. Many babies are thriving on them as early as two or three months!

It's because Libby's Baby Foods are prepared in a very special way that makes them extra easy to digest.

First of all, Libby's Baby Foods are strained through fine sieves (like other baby foods). And then Libby's are specially homogenized by an exclusive Libby method.

Different from all others

It is this second process that makes Libby's different from all other baby foods. Special homogenization breaks the food cells in solid food into tiny particles—releases nutriment for easier digestion. And coarse fibers are broken into tiny, smooth particles.

Nothing is lost or removed by Libby's special method of homogenization. But food values of vegetables and fruit, soup and cereal are made more readily and completely available.

Your grocer carries Libby's Baby Foods in economical enamel-lined tins—or will be glad to get them for you.

IN SIX SPECIAL COMBINATIONS

1	Peas, beets, asparagus tips
2	Pumpkin, tomatoes, string beans
3	Carrots, spinach, peas
4	Cereal combination—whole milk, whole wheat, soy bean meal
5	Prunes, pineapple juice, lemon juice
6	Soup—vegetables, chicken livers, barley

Every Day, a Varied Diet

Instead of putting only one vegetable in a tin, Libby puts three, all blended together. These special combinations give baby a more varied diet at each solid food feeding. It's handy to order them by number.

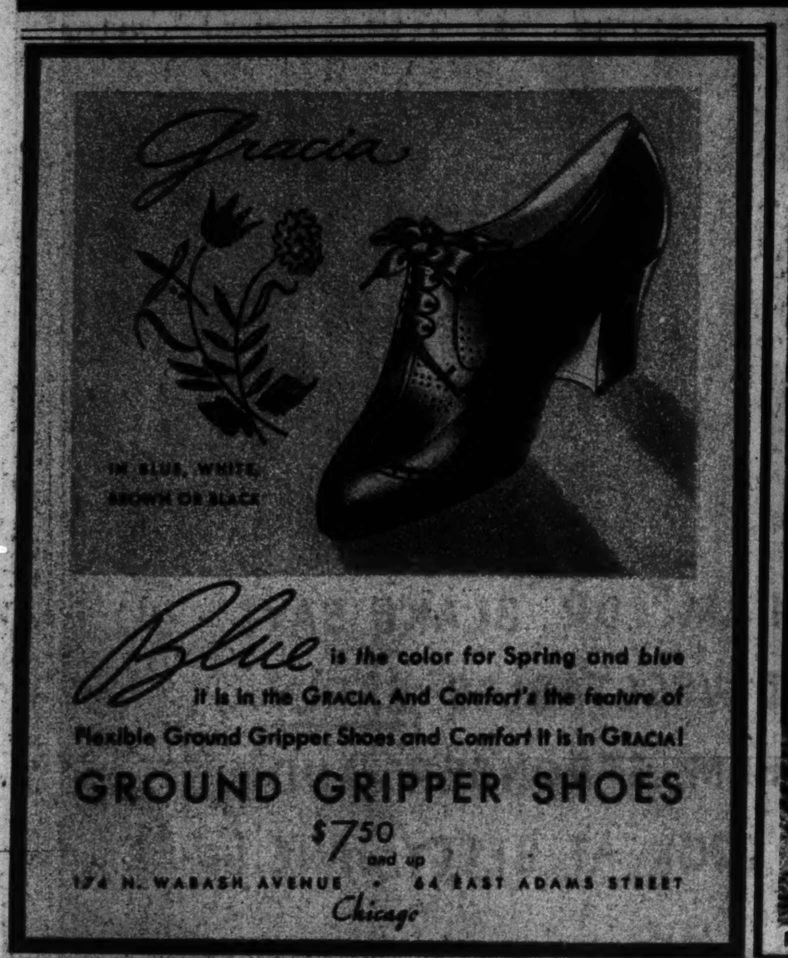
CONFIDENCE.



Not a "Cure-All"

..just a finer Cigarette

Old Gold does not pretend to be a "cure-all". The only magic it claims is the magic of the finest prize crop tobacco, brought to you as fresh as it left the cigarette machines.

You see the House of Lorillard has been making fine tobacco products since George Washington's day. It's this skill, born of 178 years' experience, that enables Lorillard to select, age and blend the world's kindliest tobacco leaf into a mighty pleasing cigarette.

But the Lorillard quality-insurance goes further. We put Old Golds in a weather-tight, double Cellophane package that keeps out dampness, dryness and every other foe of your cigarette enjoyment. The outer Cellophane jacket opens at the bottom of the pack; double sealing the top of the pack where the ordinary cigarette package is weak.

But we'd rather let a trial package of Double-Mellow Old Golds tell you the rest of the story. We believe you'll find that (1) Old Golds are genuinely of better tobacco quality, (2) are ALWAYS FRESH, (3) so smooth and mellow you can smoke them in any number without Cigarette Hang-Over.

Sincerely, P. LORILLARD COMPANY,
Purveyors of fine tobacco products since 1760.

THE PARK FIFTY SUIT

Fashion Park presents, in the Park Fifty Suit, a new and distinguished development of the English tradition of casual elegance. The styling is characterized by an athletic width of shoulder and fulness of chest, accentuated by skilful draping, and judicious fitting about the waist and hips. The sleeves are tapered. The whole effect is that of the youthful figure, yielding throughout an impression of increased stature and height. The Park Fifty is, needless to say, hand needled and custom tailored, in accordance with Fashion Park's unvaryingly high standards of craftsmanship; in either the Park Ease or Broad Blade model. Both may be had in a variety of rich all-wool and worsted fabrics, in herringbone weaves (illustrated) or clear-cut silk stripes.

The Calendar said: "stay in"

MIDOL said: "step out!"

YOU know what it means to give up all pleasure certain days each month, and to give-in to miserable inactivity, because of periodic functional pain. But you may not know it is unnecessary.

You may not know about Midol!

Doctors have discovered that severe pain during days of menstruation is not natural to most women; in Midol, science offers a way to relieve it quickly. Unless you have some organic disorder calling for a physician's or surgeon's attention, Midol in all probability can help you.

Most women who try Midol find it permits them to go through their dreaded days physically and mentally carefree. Midol is offered for this sole purpose. It acts promptly. In all but unusual instances it brings relief. Many women declare they have no pain at all, or even discomfort, since they learned to rely on Midol.

Get Midol, and "step out" when the calendar says "stay in". Instead of giving up to suffering, let Midol take care of the pain. A few Midol tablets should see you comfortably through your worst day. Drugstores have Midol on the counter in convenient purse-size tins.

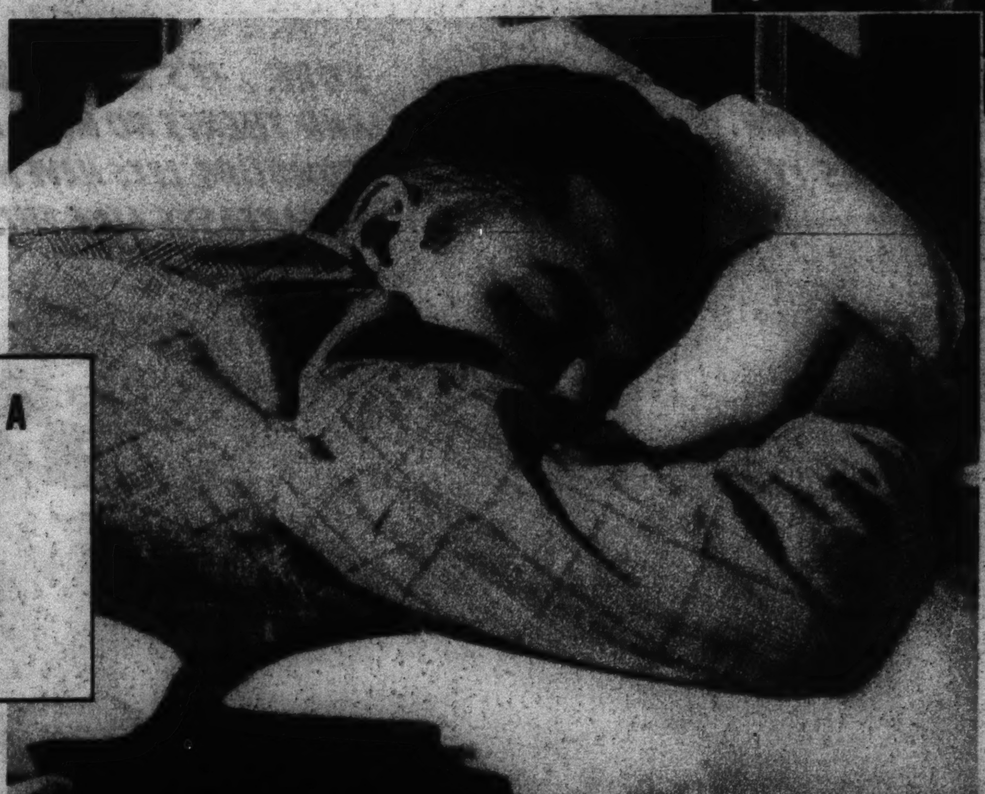
SLEEP IMPROVED by ONE THING ONLY

IN 3-YR. UNIVERSITY TEST!

Of all things that were tested, Ovaltine alone improved the QUALITY of SLEEP



(ABOVE) The thirty-six men and women who took part in this experiment were carefully instructed in the exact procedure of the test. They slept for a total of 6,800 test-nights—in order to determine whether taking certain things at night will aid sleep, or not . . .

(LEFT) Will "any hot drink aid sleep"—as people often say? This experiment disproved it. Of the various things which were tested in this experiment, Ovaltine was the only one that made sleep more restful!

36 MEN AND WOMEN SLEPT FOR A TOTAL OF 6,800 TEST-NIGHTS

This experiment was conducted by Men who are well-known for their Sleep Research

IN a recent series of scientific experiments in a leading American University . . . Ovaltine was the only thing tested which improved the quality of sleep!

It was the only thing which made sleep more restful. It was the only thing which increased the percentage of mornings on which the sleepers awoke well-rested.

One entire phase of this investigation was devoted to the question of whether "taking" certain things at bedtime affects sleep.

After determining the normal sleep habits of the 36 human subjects in this test, the investigators gave them various things to take at bedtime:—for example:

On certain nights they gave them a sandwich, to test the effect of food . . . On other nights they gave them a cup of hot milk . . . On other nights one or another of two well-known sleep drugs.

And on still other nights they gave them a cup of Ovaltine (hot or cold) made either with milk or water. (Ovaltine was included at the wish of the investigators because of its wide use as a sleep aid.)

Of all the things tested, Ovaltine alone improved the quality of sleep . . .

Summary of the Results:—

1. The food-at-bedtime did not aid sleep.
2. A cup of hot milk did not aid sleep.
3. Of the two sleep drugs, one put the sleepers to sleep more quickly, while the other prolonged the length of their sleep. (Both these results were to be expected from medical experience and so confirm the accuracy of the test.) Neither drug, however, made sleep more restful or increased the feeling of being well-rested on awakening.
4. Ovaltine reduced the restless movements of the sleepers at night, as recorded on a special scientific apparatus . . . Ovaltine also definitely increased the number of mornings on which the sleepers awoke well-rested. It exerted these effects whether taken hot or cold, in milk or water, thus establishing that it was Ovaltine which improved quality of sleep.

A study of this investigation indicates that to secure the fullest benefits from Ovaltine it should be taken regularly. Since it is not a drug it is not habit-forming. But it is a mighty good habit to form.

So if you do not sleep well, try Ovaltine. Take it every night for a few weeks. See if you don't sleep better and wake up more refreshed!

You can get it at all grocery and drug stores. Get a can today and make it your regular nightcap.

Eating a sandwich at bedtime did not aid sleep. Neither did hot milk. Of the two sleep drugs tested, one brought quicker sleep, the other lengthened sleep. But neither increased the restfulness of sleep.

When the sleepers awoke they were obliged to report whether they felt well-rested or not. Of all things tested, nothing increased the number of mornings on which sleepers awoke well-rested—except Ovaltine!

(RIGHT) Clocks and a rotating chart were connected to each bed, whereby the time and extent of the sleepers' "tossing and turning" were recorded . . . Ovaltine, alone, reduced their restless movements!

Ovaltine is a food. It was originated over 40 years ago. Widely used as a restorative food by convalescents, expectant and nursing mothers, the aged, and as a "building" food for children. Helps nourish you while you sleep. Rich in vitamins and minerals. Doctors approve it. Hospitals use it. Used in 57 countries!
